TUNNEY'S BRIDE RALLIES

Today

Mainly About Fliers.
The Lindbergh Lesson.
Diphenyl Chloroarsine.
What 500 Planes Could Do.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LINDBERGH flew the ocean sitting in a cockpit, unable to look ahead except with the aid of a periscope, as men look from trenches, or a submarine.

That supplied a valuable idea to the army of Great Britain.

EVER since Lindbergh's flight, British Royal Air Force engineers have been working, in secret, on what they call "the greatest lesson of Lindbergh's flight."

Amazed at Lindbergh's good physical condition when he landed in Paris, thoughtful British engineers decided that it was due, largely, to the enclosed cockpit, protecting him from cold, engine noise to a great extent, and fumes from the engine.

THEY have produced, keeping secret its details, a fighting plane with a cockpit protected by armor in which the pilot will sit and fight, entirely enclosed, or drop explosives or gas, safer than any fighting pilot has ever been.

THREE Swedish fliers will soon start for this country, coming west via Greenland. Swedes, always pioneers, are excellent fliers, and they will be welcome.

This trip would amaze the hardy Scandinavians that came here in a row boat long before Columbus.

Imagine their incredulity had someone told them, "Before many years, Swedes will fly across this ocean."

THE Texas fliers are finishing their sixth day of continuous flight. At dusk tonight, if still in the air, they will have eclipsed the "Question Mark's" record and hold the world's championship.

SUCH flights "against time" are extremely important, testing the endurance of engines and pilots and preparing for the round-the-world air trips soon to come.

LEMOIGNE, French flier, has beaten the world's record for altitude flight with load.

He went up 31,500 feet, carrying half a ton.

TODAY or tomorrow two planes may start together in a race across the Atlantic. One plane starts for Rome, one for Paris. Such is the day's flying news.

MORE important to this country is the announcement by British army authorities that gas masks and all defense against poison gases will be worthless in the next war.

A safe place would be the inside of a submarine, 100 feet under water, except that a depth bomb could reach that.

THE nations, according to the same authority, are secretly manufacturing gases far more deadly than any yet known. That seems hardly necessary, after you read of one new gas known to all, called diphenyl chloroarsine, interestingly described by Stuart Case in the "New Republic."

IN a recent theoretical air attack 75 planes from the imaginary "northern enemy" bombed London, with 75 other planes and unlimited anti-aircraft guns defending the city.

The attacking planes broke through with ease, not one being theoretically or otherwise checked. Each dropped 500 pounds of bombs.

MR. CHASE writes: "Had these 22 tons of bombs been filled with diphenyl chloroarsine, half the population of London, men, women and children, would have been wiped out. All known methods of defense were helpless before 75 pilots.

"Not a single attacking plane was downed. Imagine what might be done with 500 planes, instead of 75, a force that every one of the leading nations can readily mobilize.

"France, for instance, is now in position to bring 4,000 planes into action at the call of the radio."

EUROPE'S laboratories have prepared bombs "filled with deadly plague bacilla, or with anthrax for the extermination of milk cows and horses."

THE new explosive, "radium atomite," more powerful than T N T, is interesting. But the main thing is the number of planes. In this country, where nobody in authority seems to worry, a well-planned attack could wipe out New York, Chicago and Washington in a couple of hours. And millions of unprotected Americans would pay with their lives for official indifference and lack of imagination.

Diphenyl chlororarsine, you must know, makes gas masks useless.

CAN anything be done? Certainly. The richest country in the world might have such powers of attack as would mean swift destruction for any nation foolish enough to attack the United States.

To attack this country now would be as safe as "taking candy from a sick child."

SHALL we ever abandon the Philippines? Not if we continue finding gold there. Many an American will long to cross the Pacific when he reads of gold discoveries on the Angat river, 25 miles out of Manila.

Nineteen Americans have staked out a gold territory with 20 to 50 million dollars gold in sight.

HOW much more gold the Spaniards may have missed on that river, and in other parts of the Philippines, no one knows. American engineers will find out. The 19 Americans that hold the big find are all members, or

FORT WORTH PAIR TO FLY TILL MOTOR BREAKS

Plane Takes on Sufficient Fuel to Pass World Mark At 10:13, Pittsburgh Time

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 25.—(AP.)—The single-motored rebuilt Ryan monoplane christened the Fort Worth today was within a few hours of establishing a new record for sustained flight.

The plane completed its one hundred and forty-first hour in the air at 8:33 o'clock this morning. At that time the ship had approximately 10 hours to go to equal the record.

Enough gasoline and oil were taken aboard the plane this morning to keep it aloft the remaining hours required to break the record.

Every endurance and distance flight record known to man will be perched on the wings of the ship at 7:13:15 o'clock tonight, when it will have surpassed by an hour the record of 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds made last January by the Army monoplane Question Mark.

If successful in breaking the Army plane's record, the two civilian pilots, R. L. Robbins and James Kelly, plan to sail onward to answer the question put to the Question Mark on its flight—how long can an airplane stay in the air?

PASS DIRIGIBLE MARKS

Robbins and Kelly said when they took off at 11:33 a. m. last Sunday that they would stay up until the motor fails.

The Fort Worth already has beaten the dirigible endurance record of 118 hours made by the ill-fated French Dixmude and the dis-

FLIER SEEKING SOLO RECORD

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, LOS ANGELES, May 25.—(AP.)—Herbert J. Fahy took off at 5:15 o'clock (Pacific coast time) this morning in an attempt to establish a new record for solo endurance flying.

Fahy's Lockheed-Vega monoplane carried 435 gallons of gasoline, nine gallons of oil and other supplies to last 40 hours. He planned to beat the official mark of 34 hours and 50 minutes held by Royal Thomas and the unofficial time of 35 hours and 33 minutes established in New York by Martin Jensen.

The flier's food supply consisted of sandwiches, water and black coffee.

Before the take-off Fahy stowed a rabbit's foot in the plane for good luck. This same rabbit's foot rode with Capt. Frank Hawks on his transcontinental non-stop flight last year and also aboard the Army monoplane Question Mark during its record breaking flight here last January.

Lindbergh Awaits Return of Morrow

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 25.—(INS.)—Non-communicative as ever concerning his matrimonial plans, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was enjoying seclusion at the Morrow estate here today with his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow. He probably will remain here until Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow arrives. The ambassador is now en route to Englewood from Mexico.

Further indications that the wedding would take place at North Haven, Me., and not at Englewood, were given by the report that Lindbergh and the Morrows would shortly return to Maine.

Man Hurt as Auto Crashes Into Pole

MIDLAND, Pa., May 25.—J. H. Bollinger, 28, of 403 Midland avenue, was injured seriously by flying glass when his automobile failed to make a turn and crashed into an iron pole in Beaver. He is in the Rochester Hospital.

CLARENCE CHAMBERLIN

SEA FLIER HERE BLAZING TRAIL

Blazing the trail for a passenger route from New York to Pittsburgh, Columbus, Cincinnati and Chicago, Clarence D. Chamberlin, of trans-Atlantic fame, flew to Bettis Field today after a forced landing last night near Somerset. After a short delay for minor repairs, Chamberlin and his party, consisting of H. R. Taylor, of Hadley and Company, bankers of New York, M. K. Marlowe, of Louisville, and F. D. Benham, of New York, were to take off for Columbus and Cincinnati.

Chamberlin is flying a monoplane of his own design. The purpose of the flight, according to Chamberlin, is to map a transport route across the mountains. Daily scheduled flights, east and west, are expected to be put into operation within the next 60 days, the flier said.

Low ceiling over the mountains forced the party down on the farm of Elmer Shaulis near Somerset about 9 o'clock last night.

After flying blind for almost an hour, the pilot finally sighted a clear field on the Shaulis farm and sat down his plane without damage.

Daughter of Willys Wed to Argentine

LONDON, May 25.—(INS.)—Miss Virginia Clayton Willys, debutante daughter of John North Willys, Toledo, O., motor magnate, was married here today to Senor Luis Marcelino de Aguirre, wealthy Argentine. The wedding took place at the Henrietta street registry office, in the presence of the bride's parents and six friends of the couple.

The bride was dressed entirely in blue. A large crowd which had gathered outside the registry was keenly disappointed when the bride and groom made an unnoticed exit out the back door. The registry office marriage was followed by a benedictory service at the Savoy Chapel.

TEN FAMILIES DRIVEN OUT BY TEAR GAS

Throngs See Braddock Police Force Shooting Suspect From Home With Fumes

A crowd of 2,000 watched Braddock police use tear bombs to subdue John Hursko, 42, who had taken refuge last night in his home at 213 King way, after he was said to have fired three shots at police who tried to arrest him on complaint of his wife. The plan worked, but the gas was so strong that 10 families living in nearby houses were driven to the street, and could not return to their homes for an hour.

The bombs were used after Hursko is alleged to have fired three shots at Patrolmen William Lanahan and Andrew Hovan, who went to the home when Mrs. Hursko reported that her husband had come home drunk and threatened to shoot himself. At the Braddock police station he was charged with pointing firearms. He was to be given a hearing today.

After throwing the bombs into the room where Hursko was barricaded the police waited several minutes before entering. They were met in the hallway by the staggering man, and helped him to the street where he was given relief and sent to the police station. The police then turned their attention to the nearby houses, helped occupants open windows and doors and guarded the houses from intruders until they were free of the gas fumes.

HILL BOSS ASKS NEW TRIAL

A motion for a new trial for Joseph Engelsberg, Hill district political leader, who on Tuesday was convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, was filed today in Federal Court by Attorney Mortimer B. Lesher, counsel for the politician.

Attorney Lesher, in his motion, charges that during the deliberation of the jury, and before a verdict had been rendered, the deliberation was interrupted while the jurymen were taken from the Federal building for lunch. He charges that the jurymen were permitted to mingle with other patrons of a lunch room and then return and resume their deliberations. This is a point which never before was brought up in Federal Court here.

The motion also sets forth that the verdict was against the weight

FULL PUBLICITY FAVORED BY 53 SENATORS

Fight Over Lenroot Secret Ballot to Get Airing in Rules Committee Monday

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(INS.)—A liberalization of the Senate's rules to provide for public consideration of presidential nominations and official publication of roll calls, seemed assured today when an International News Service poll revealed at least 53 Senators pledged to "full publicity."

The poll showed the Senate would revise its rules and abandon the secrecy policy toward presidential appointments, whenever the question comes to a vote. The existing rule requires a two-thirds vote before nominations or treaties can be discussed in public.

FAVOR PUBLICITY

The poll revealed these senators favoring "full publicity": Allen, Ashurst, Barkley, Black, Blaine, Blease, Borah, Bratton, Brookhart, Capper, Caraway, Connally, Copeland, Couzens, Cutting, Dill, Frazier, Fletcher, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Hawes, Hayden, Heflin, Howell, Johnson, Jones, Kendrick, King, LaFollette, McMaster, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Pine, Pittman, Robinson (Ark.), Robinson (Ind.), Schall, Sheppard, Steiwer, Swanson, Thomas (Idaho), Thomas (Okla.), Trammell, Tydings, Vandenberg, Wagner, Walsh (Mass.), Walsh (Mont.) and Wheeler. Of these, 23 are Republicans and 30 Democrats.

The 53 "pledges" constitute a clear majority of the Senate, as only 49 votes would be necessary to change the rules.

Some Republican members of the Senate Rules Committee have agreed to open the doors of the session Monday at the start of the inquiry to find the source of a pub-

Long in Jail, 2 Plead And Get Light Terms

Two defendants in Federal Court pleading guilty to violating the prohibition law received light jail sentences from Judge R. M. Gibson because of long periods spent in jail since their arrest.

Atillio Bandino, who was in the Erie jail for 63 days, was ordered committed for 10 days more. Charles Sloan, 529 Brushton avenue, was sentenced to serve 15 days when the court was informed he had already been in jail 45 days. In both cases the prisoners had been committed in default of bonds pending trials of pleas.

Clearing House Pool Trial Is Postponed

Failure of a defendant in the alleged Pitt lottery and clearing house pool, uncovered in the recent graft investigation, to appear in Criminal Court yesterday caused Judge James B. Drew to postpone the case until June 3. The three who appeared were Walter L. Reinecker, Herron Hill politician; Harry Holliday, a business associate of Police Inspector Charles R. Faulkner, of the North Side, and Joseph Lauer, former downtown hotel man. Les McCormick, of the North Side, the fourth man indicted, failed to appear.

North Side Rum Plot Trials Off Until Fall

Continuance of the trial of 12 North Siders named as defendants in the Twenty-second and Twenty-seventh wards rum conspiracy from the present term of the United States District Court to the November term was announced at the Federal Building last night. No cause for the change was given. The change was not made at the request of the defense, according to attorneys.

Senate Must Deal With Big Questions in Open Sessions

The Senate barred the representatives of the press from the Senate chamber and deprived them of press privileges because the record of the vote by the various senators on the confirmation of Lenroot had been made public by the newspapers.

Apparently the Senate is ashamed of the fact that while it was conducting an alleged investigation of the power trust it voted in secret session to confirm the appointment of a power trust lobbyist to an important judicial position.

It is very much to the discredit of the Senate that it should have confirmed the appointment of ex-Senator Lenroot, ex-power trust lobbyist, but it is SOMETHING TO THE CREDIT of the Senate that it should be ashamed of its vote and regretful that the humiliating record of the vote should have been made public.

As a matter of plain fact, however, the Senate should not have the right to go into secret session and to hide its acts, creditable or discreditable, from the knowledge of the American public—except possibly in matters of foreign relations, where a certain secrecy in regard to our international policies might conceivably be desirable.

But in domestic matters there is no excuse whatever for senatorial secrecy, except the unwillingness of the Senate to have the American public know what senators are responsible for an unpopular or unworthy senatorial performance.

In the matter of the power trust, the Senate is debating daily the various acts of the trust in hiring school teachers, college professors, editorial writers, and legislators, and in seeking to purchase a large proportion of the press of the country to distribute its propaganda and further its plans.

THE SENATE IS NOT MAKING THESE DEBATES IN SECRET. It is conducting them very publicly and making very public its professions of devotion to the popular welfare and its noble and patriotic desire to preserve the free press of the country and the educational institutions of the country and the legislative bodies of the country from power trust pollution.

But when a power trust lobbyist comes up before the Senate for confirmation, THE SENATE GOES INTO SECRET SESSION, hides behind the smoke-screen of senatorial privilege, and confirms the appointment of the power trust lobbyist.

In other words, in relation to the power trust the senators' PROFESSIONS are public and their ACTS are secret.

And the Senate so greatly objects to having the contrast between their patriotic PUBLIC professions and their discreditable SECRET acts brought before the attention of the people, that it penalizes the representatives of the public press and denies them henceforth, in very petty spite, the privilege of the Senate chamber.

The Senate will please realize, however, that the newspapers of the country are not as yet all bought up by the power trust; that there are numerous newspapers, among them the Hearst newspapers, which owe their allegiance to the citizenship of the nation, and which are not to be subsidized or suppressed by the power trust, and not to be intimidated by the Senate.

The Hearst papers made public the facts which led to the investigation of the power trust's subsidizing of school teachers, college professors, editorial writers and legislators.

They then revealed the first fact of the nationwide attempt to buy up the public press and pollute the wellsprings of public information.

They then published the facts concerning the secret vote

BUCCOS CLOSE WITH REDS

The Pirates will wind up their business with the Reds this afternoon and soon after the battle will board a flyer to St. Louis, where Sunday they are slated to take on the fast-going Cardinals in a doubleheader.

Single games in St. Louis are carded for Monday and Tuesday. At the conclusion of this series the Buccos will hurry homeward to take on the Cubs in three games, two of them to be staged as a part of the Memorial Day program in Pittsburgh on Thursday.

Adolfo Luque will oppose Steve Swetonic this afternoon in the last clash of the Reds and Pirates. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

Manager Bush announces that Paul Waner will be back at his former third-notch position in the batting order today. Adam Comorosky will bat fifth.

Diplomat Ready To Give Up Rum On U. S. Request

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP.)—Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, is personally willing to relinquish the time-honored privilege of importing liquor into the United States enjoyed by foreign diplomats.

"If the United States intimates a desire to cancel the privilege," he said at New York last night, he will be glad to co-operate with other diplomats in complying.

It was made clear in a statement issued by the British embassy here that the ambassador, who is dean of the diplomatic corps, was expressing only his personal opinion.

The ambassador's statement came after he had been shown an article dealing with correspondence between Sir Esme and James T. Carter, Lynchburg, Va., lumberman.

2 PHYSICIANS OVERCOME RELAPSE

Doctors Summoned by Gene Return Home, Pronouncing Patient Out of Danger

POLA, Italy, May 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gene Tunney, the former Polly Lauder, who suffered a relapse yesterday in her recuperation from an operation of several weeks ago, was stated by her physicians today to have improved.

Profs. Zadro, director of the naval hospital at Roviono, and Roberto Christofoletti, noted Trieste doctor, examined Mrs. Tunney yesterday and later declared that she was out of danger.

DOCTORS RETURN HOME

Her malady, they said, was continuing its course with a tendency toward betterment.

An indication that Mrs. Tunney's condition was not critical was contained in the fact that the doctors returned to their homes.

The wife of the former heavyweight champion underwent an emergency operation on April 30 for an old undiscovered appendix abscess and a long and difficult convalescence was expected. When she showed an increase in temperature, Tunney became alarmed and called in several doctors from the mainland.

BERLIN, May 25.—(INS.)—An encouraging message from Gene Tunney, retired world heavyweight boxing champion, regarding the condition of his wife, the former Polly Lauder, was received at the home of Dr. A. W. Meyer here today.

Dr. Meyer performed the operation on Mrs. Tunney on the Island of Brioni on May 11. It was while recovering from this operation that she recently suffered a relapse.

"Mrs Tunney is improving," the message said, "and Dr. Meyer will not be needed."

The surgeon, however, already had left Berlin for Brioni in response to an urgent call from Tunney. Members of Dr. Meyer's household immediately made efforts to transmit Tunney's message to him while en route, and it is believed that he will return to Berlin as soon as he receives word that his services are not needed.

TUNNEY BALM DEMAND TOLD

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 25.—(AP.)—Negotiations between Gene Tunney and Mrs. Katherine Fogarty, which threatened the champion's second fight with Jack Dempsey, have been brought to light by the mayor of Hot Springs.

Mayor Leo P. McLaughlin, a friend of the retired heavyweight champion, recalled some of the background of Tunney's connections with Mrs. Fogarty when the divorcee and former wife of a Fort Worth, Tex., plumbing contractor, sued Tunney for $500,000 damages for alleged breach of promise. The mayor was city attorney of Hot Springs and a practicing lawyer when Tunney trained here several years ago, and he said Tunney retained him as his representative at a conference with Mrs. Fogarty and Billy Gibson, the champion's manager in April, 1927. An unsuccessful attempt was made at the conference to placate the woman and arrange a settlement with her, McLaughlin said.

Mrs. Fogarty was adamant, the mayor declared, and said she would not accept less than $100,000. She said she still loved Tunney and was willing to marry him, and "she told us at that time that she had turned over letters and photographs which she said she had, involving Tunney, to her attorneys in the East," McLaughlin related.

Gibson told her that Gene did not have that sum and that he would not enter the ring again unless an agreement was reached, because he did not wish to risk having his money tied up, the mayor said.

PROSECUTOR SCORED IN AGREEING TO POPP PAROLE

TWO BOARDS' UNION WINS FAVOR

Dr. McEwan Reports Failure Of Committee to Bring Waring Groups Together

By DR. JAMES H. SNOWDEN,
Special Correspondent of the Sun-Telegraph

ST. PAUL, May 25.—The reports on the Princeton Theological situation were presented in the Presbyterian General Assembly yesterday and were under discussion for two and a half hours. No fewer than six reports were laid before the body, a majority and a minority report from each of the boards of directors and trustees and from the Committee of Eleven.

First, the Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan, of Pittsburgh, gave the report of the majority of the directors, recommending the merging of the two boards with their present membership, making a board of over 50 members.

He admitted that his board had not been able to carry out the mandate of the last assembly to compromise their differences but maintained that they had made some progress and that further time would enable them to solve the problem.

DR. SPEER SCORES

The majority report of the directors was also supported by Dr. Robert E. Speer in a brief but powerful speech in which he denied that the plan of one board would remove Princeton from its historic foundations.

The report of the minority of the directors was presented by the Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Craig, who is a director of the seminary and also is the editor of The Presbyterian, published in Philadelphia. Dr. Craig was aggressive in his speech and insisted that the blame of the present trouble is due to the policy of President J. Ross Stevenson, who wants to make Princeton inclusive of both the old and the new school elements in the church, and this, he maintained, would destroy its orthodoxy.

The report of the majority of the special committee of 11 was presented by Dr. W. O. Thompson, its chairman.

ONE BOARD FAVORED

He was followed by Dr. Cheeseman A. Herrick, president of Girard College, who made a calmly-reasoned and forcible speech in favor of the one board as recommended by the committee of 11 as the only solution of the trouble.

Dr. E. D. Warfield then spoke as the minority member of the committee of 11 and he maintained that the new members should be named before the plan of one board is adopted, and this would involve a discussion of the persons so named.

Dr. John McDowell then spoke for the majority of the trustees that also recommends the new board of the committee of 11.

Prof. Magi was the one dissenting member of the board of trustees and his brief report was read for him by the Rev. Dr. Frank H. Stevenson. About two and a half hours had been consumed by these speeches, and only one speech of five minutes was made from the floor by Elder Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago, who spoke in favor of the new board of the committee. It was then agreed that the discussion should be halted and resumed Monday afternoon.

Unless some unexpected change in the wind takes place in the meantime, Princeton will have a new board to take it in hand at the close of this assembly.

CHURCH UNIONS SUPPORTED

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 25.—(INS.)—More than 5,000 churchmen attending an assembly here of the Presbyterian church today were considering a proposal for unification of four churches into one group of about 5,000,000 communicants.

Action toward the merger, suggested by the Protestant Episcopal church, would unite the Methodist Episcopal church, the Episcopal Church South, the Presbyterian church and the United Presbyterian church or the Presbyterian church in the United States.

Consummation of the unification, proposed in a resolution adopted by a vote of the assembly, would indicate that the fundamentals of faith of the four churches were regarded as the same, the only difference being in administration.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 25.—(AP.)—The Rev. Dr. George W. Richards, president of the Reformed Church Theological Seminary at Lancaster, Pa., and chairman of the commission on closer relations of the churches, yesterday commented favorably on a proposed union of large Protestant church bodies. The general synod of the Reformed Church is in conference here.

lished roll call purporting to show the secret vote on the confirmation of Irvine L. Lenroot as a federal judge.

CALL REPORTER

In the absence of Chairman Moses some of the Republican members yesterday informed Paul Mallon, a reporter for the United Press, said to have sent out the news of the Lenroot vote, who has been subpenaed to testify Monday, that the session would be open. It also was agreed to permit him to be accompanied by counsel.

Meanwhile there was no renewal on the Senate floor of the discussion over the publication of the purported roll call which has infuriated the Rules Committee. The resolution of Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, authorizing the committee to summons each member of the Senate to ask him if he gave any information on the executive session, is still before the senate.

No cognizance has been taken, apparently, of the challenge of Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, to the Senate to enforce its rule of expulsion against him if he tells his constituency how he votes in executive session.

Well-Drilling Topic At Gas Men's Feast

H. R. Pierce, consulting engineer of Dunn and Lewis, last night outlined modern methods of gas well drilling at a dinner of the Pennsylvania Gas Men's Association, in the Keystone Athletic Club. E. COUNSEL OPENS VARE DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(INS.)—Counsel for Senator William S. Vare, Republican, Pennsylvania, today opened a fight for the right of its invalid client to retain a seat in the Senate.

Taking his argument from contentions in a massive brief, Edward A. Kelly, Vare's chief counsel, outlined before the Senate privileges and elections committee his voluminous denial of charges of fraud and corruption made by William B. Wilson, Vare's Democratic opponent in the 1926 elections.

The committee has given Vare four hours in which to sum up his answer to the Wilson attack. Wilson's counsel also was given four hours of argument, and concluded the case yesterday.

When both sides have completed argument the committee, headed by Senator Waterman, Republican, Colorado, will determine the validity of Vare's claim to his seat.

BRIDE MISSING, MAN SUES KIN FOR $50,000

Husband Tells of Threats in Charging Family With Alienations of Affections

An illegal conspiracy has deprived him of his bride of one day, Thomas E. Bevins, of West View, unsuccessful in regaining her through a writ of habeas corpus, alleged in an action against William Monoghan, his wife, Stella Monoghan, and Miss Kathryn Smithhammer, all of Bessemer street, Lawrenceville, filed in Common Pleas Court, seeking to recover $50,000 for the alienation of the affections of Mrs. Stella Couzins Bevins.

Bevins charged that Monoghan, stepfather, Mrs. Monoghan, mother, and Miss Smithhammer, aunt, of the 21-year-old bride, acting maliciously because of ill feelings, brought pressure upon the girl and made false charges against him to alienate her affections and to persuade her to refuse to return and live with him.

All three defendants declared his wife would never return to him and one of them, with the approval of the others, declared they would kill her before allowing her to return to him, according to Bevins.

of evidence and that the court had erred in refusing to grant binding instructions for the defendant. Charles Berger, with whom the alleged conspiracy to violate the liquor laws was committed, was the principal witness against Engelsberg. Berger was not a defendant. The conviction carries a maximum sentence of two years imprisonment, a fine of $10,000, or both, on each of its two counts.

Lesher's also sets forth that the indictment is invalid because it charges a conspiracy between the defendant as a seller of liquor in violation of the national prohibition laws and the government witness, Berger, a buyer of liquor; buying of liquor in itself, not being an offense under the prohibition act, the purchaser cannot be convicted of aiding the sale and cannot be convicted of conspiracy, with the seller to make the sale.

OIL CITY, Pa., May 25.—The final goal of $73,600 sought by the community fund has been reached and the campaign will be discontinued. According to an announcement today, 3,800 persons made contributions, an increase of 1,300 over the 1928 campaign.

Prince, 20, Gould Heir, Love Lorn, Shoots Himself

PARIS, May 25.—(AP.)—Youthful Prince de Sagan, 20, son of the former Anna Gould, was near death at a private hospital today, after shooting himself eight days ago when his parents refused him permission to wed until he was 21.

The bullet penetrated between the lung and liver. Surgeons operated almost immediately, but pleurisy set in, and his condition was described today as desperate.

His mother, the Duchess de Talleyrand and daughter of the late Jay Gould, American railroad financier, herself announced her son's grave illness and explained his action.

The prince's sweetheart is the 21-year-old daughter of an architect of Southern France. She came to Paris with her family at Whitsuntide at the same time De Sagan came home for his vacation, both wishing to be married immediately. Her family was told of the shooting immediately and every day since she has visited the young man at his hospital.

Injunction Asked to Save Convicted Boy Slayer

PAINTSVILLE, Ky., May 25.—(AP.)—Attorneys for 6-year-old Carl Newton Mahan today sought a writ of prohibition from a higher court to prevent carrying out of a 15-year sentence for manslaughter imposed on the boy Wednesday after a jury had found him guilty of killing his playmate, Cecil Van Hoose, 8.

Hearing on the motion for a writ, filed before Circuit Judge J. F. Bailey, was expected to be held during the day. The attorneys contended in their application for an injunction that the proceedings conducted by County Judge John W. Butcher, who sentenced the boy to the state reform school, were irregular and illegal because the boy was charged with "willful murder" rather than delinquency.

The ordinary procedure in Kentucky in juvenile cases is to charge the defendant with delinquency and try him before the county judge, without a jury. In Carl's case a jury was asked by the defense.

3 IN RUM RING SENTENCED, 8 PAROLED

Negelman, Former Dry Agent, Gets 2 Years as Leader of Greene County Liquor Plot

Archie (Red) Negelman, former government prohibition agent in the Pittsburgh district, described in Federal Court as the leader of a huge bootleg liquor ring in Greene County, was in the county pail today awaiting removal to federal prison. He was sentenced yesterday by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to serve two years in the Atlanta penitentiary. Edward Graves, of Belle Vernon, partner of Negelman, was sentenced 18 months to the penitentiary, and Mike Midved, alias Steve Kovacs, of Nemacolin, was sentenced six months in the Greene County jail.

Eight other defendants in the so-called Greene County rum conspiracy trial were paroled for two years each, with the exception of Raymond Bittinger, of Scott Run, W. Va., whose parole was for one year. The others were Ernest Ghenne and his wife, Rita Ghenne, of Monongahela; William Durr, of Carmichaels; George Crago and his wife, Mrs. Cal Crago, of Carmichaels; Owen Brown, of Donora, and Mrs. Rose Bosio, of Fredericktown.

RING RECORD SHOWN

Ernest Martinas, another defendant, never was apprehended, and August Bosio, husband of Mrs. Rose Bosio, was not called for trial as he is serving a term in the Washington County Jail on a liquor charge.

Before the trial started Wednesday, Negelman, Mr. and Mrs. Ghenne and Durr, entered pleas of guilty and Ghenne and Durr went on the witness stand as government witnesses. The others, with the exception of Mrs. Bosio, went on trial, but the following morning withdrew their pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty, bringing the trial to an abrupt end. In the meantime, Mrs. Brosio was found by prohibition agents and brought into court. She entered a plea of no defense.

NOTE BOOK PRODUCED

In summing up the case before sentences were pronounced Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith produced a little black note book found on Graves when arrested, which showed the working of the rum ring. It recorded the costs of operating stills on various farms in the county, the production, list of customers and other data, and in some instances a division of the spoils.

Negelman also pleaded guilty to another indictment, charging him with conspiring with Sheriff Aron S. McClellan, of Greene County; Albert H. Scales, a suspended prohibition agent, and others to violate the prohibition law. On this plea he also was given a two-year penitentiary sentence, to run concurrently with the other term.

POSSE TRACKS GIRL SLAYER

FORT BRAGG, Cal., May 25.—(AP.)—Search for the murderer of 6-year-old Teresa Johnson, Fort Bragg school girl, assumed wide proportions today as scores of vengeful townsmen joined a posse of deputy sheriffs in following a dim trail across the hills. The girl's bruised body was found in a clearing near her home yesterday. The slayer evidently killed the child by strangling her.

Sheriff R. R. Byrnes, of Mendocino County, said every road out of the region was guarded. The nature of the land would prevent escape across country, he asserted.

The sheriff, however, advanced the opinion that the murder was committed by a resident of the region.

Efforts to track the killer were hampered by cross trails made by possemen. The ground at the scene had been trampled by hundreds this morning.

The little girl disappeared while on her way home from school Thursday.

Senate Must Deal With Big Questions in Open Sessions

of the Senate in confirmation of a power trust lobbyist's appointment to an important judicial position.

If the Senate disapproves of all these acts on the part of the Hearst newspapers in giving all this vital information to the public, the Senate may rest assured that the public does not disapprove, and the Hearst newspapers are much more concerned with public approval than they are with senatorial approval.

Furthermore, it is much more important for the Senate to have the APPROVAL OF THE NEWSPAPERS than it is for the newspapers to have the APPROVAL OF THE SENATE; and the Senate can never have the unqualified approval of the newspapers while it publicly makes noble and patriotic professions and secretly performs acts which are at vital variance with those professions.

The first thing for the Senate to do is to free itself entirely from power trust influence.

The second thing for the Senate to do is to be sincere in its professions of loyalty to the public interest, and to deal honestly and courageously with the great questions before it which so seriously threaten the public interest, such as the corruption of schoolbooks, the subsidizing of college professors and editorial writers, and the attempt to control by purchase the free press of America.

Instead of putting power trust lobbyists in office, the obvious duty of Congress is to pass a law creating a Federal commission to regulate the power trusts of the country, as railroads are now regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

And when the Senate does these decent things, it will not have to be ashamed of its acts, and will not have to go into executive session to conceal its acts, and will not have to expel the representatives of the press from the Senate floor for making its secret performances public.

Withal, the Hearst papers realize that the Senate is no more to blame for confirming Lenroot than the administration was for appointing him; and that even the mistakes which the Senate occasionally makes are of slight importance in comparison with the immense service which that historic body has rendered the people of the country on various crucial occasions; such, for instance, as when the Senate kept the United States out of the League of Nations in spite of the attempted coercion of the then President, and the powerful influence of the international bankers.

The Senate AS A RULE deserves the respect and admiration of the nation, and it should not weaken that respect by such antiquated procedure as secret sessions, or by such reactionary performances as confirming power trust lobbyists, or by such fatuous and futile acts as expelling from the Senate chamber the representatives of the public press for performing their public duty.

MILKMAN HELD IN GUN TOTING

Because he had no helper or guard, John Garver, 19, of 304 West North avenue, driver for the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation, armed himself with a revolver, he admitted in Central Police Court today, as a protection against strikers.

"I wouldn't have had the courage to shoot, though, if I had been attacked," Garver told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones.

Police Lieut. William Walsh testified to confiscating the revolver from Garver at the dairy company offices yesterday along with one loaded shell and 14 blank cartridges. Garver was held for court charged with carrying concealed weapons.

VETERANS HOLD POPPY DAY

Workers in the Poppy Day drive of the Veterans of Foreign Wars went "over the top" at an early hour today, determined to make the eighth annual sale of poppies set a new record in the collection of contributions for veterans' welfare work.

While many teams concentrated their efforts in the downtown district, the drive extended into the outlying sections.

The poppies which were worn throughout Pittsburgh today were manufactured by disabled veterans. P. D. Seybold is commander of the Allegheny County Council of the organization. Thomas Fitzgerald is drive chairman.

SEA AIR RACE DELAYED BY WEATHER

Americans and French Mark Time as Rain Squalls Beat Upon Coasts of Atlantic

International News Service.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 25.—With a "line" squall moving up the rain-drenched coast of Maine, and unfavorable weather conditions reported off the coast of England, France and Spain, the two trans-Atlantic flying crews here fretfully marked time today. There appeared to be no chance of either plane hoping off before tomorrow morning.

Roger Williams and Lewis Yancey, pilot and navigator of the Green Flash, took the postponement philosophically. Held here all week by unfavorable flying conditions, they have become inured to delay. The Americans realize it would be foolhardy to begin the long hop to Rome under unfavorable conditions.

The chief concern of the Frenchmen, Armeno Lotti, Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, waiting to start their non-stop flight to Paris in the monoplane Yellow Bird, was to protect their big plane against the fury of the elements. It is staked securely against the hangar on the beach here, with a brown canvas shielding it from the rain.

FLIERS NEARING AIR RECORD

tance record of the German Graf Zeppelin which covered 6,500 miles in 111 hours and 46 minutes on its voyage to America from Friedrichshafen last fall.

It is estimated the Fort Worth already has flown between 10,000 and 12,000 miles, nearly half way around the earth, and if still in the air tonight will have flown farther than the Question Mark.

Robbins and Kelly are keeping their monoplane close to Meacham Field, their base, during the remainder of the flight to protect records already surpassed. Records would not be recognized as official unless the ship lands at the same field from which it took off.

CASH PRIZE RAISED

The plane was refuelled twice last night, 120 gallons of gasoline being transferred in the two contacts with the auxiliary ship piloted by K. K. Hoffman and H. S. Jones. Food, letters and newspapers were lowered to the pilots.

Robbins, who owns the plane, and Kelly have had little financial assistance in the flight. Since their take-off, however, the Fort Worth Association of Commerce announced it would raise $16,000 to be presented the fliers if they are successful. Robbins and Kelly would receive $5,500 each and Hoffman and Jones of the auxiliary ship, would receive $2,500 each.

A CONFESSION by prohibition authorities that young college men have been hired to act as spies, and incidentally, as consumers of bootleg rum, in getting evidence, does not sit well on the public mind.

It would be interesting to hear from the faculties.

PARENTS do not send boys to college to have them convict bootleggers, through spying. There appears to be sufficient consumption of bad whisky among college men, without any artificial stimulation of the drinking.

MEXICO CITY reports serious riots, with students shot down, some of them killed.

Mild East Orange, N. J., reports a bank robbery, five gangsters escaping with $25,000.

BANK robberies, highway robberies, and similar exploits, located by old-fashioned story writers in the West, are now the East's specialty.

Before the big war and prohibition, the most exciting thing seen in East Orange was a runaway horse.

REPAIRS ON ZEP RUSHED FOR NEW FLIGHT TO U. S.

ENGINEERS INSPECT MOTORS

Commander Eckener Says Trip Will Be Resumed In Two or Three Weeks.

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS,

(Famous explorer, who will be a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin when it flies to Lakehurst next month, and who returned on the airship from France to Friedrichshafen yesterday.)

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., in United States, Canada, Mexico, South America, Great Britain and Ireland and continental Europe, except Germany. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, May 25.—The Zeppelin hangar is a busy workshop. One hour after the great dirigible entered its home hangar yesterday the engineers were busy working on the motors used on the flight from Toulon to Friedrichshafen, preparing them for research to determine whether they show any signs of trouble similar to that which caused the other motors to break down on the flight which ended in France.

"The Zeppelin's damaged motors," said Dr. Maybach to me today, "will also undergo thorough tests. Before now opinions as to the cause of motor troubles have been based to some extent on guesswork. A scientific analysist is now possible.

VIBRATIONS TESTED

"Our laboratories are already exhaustively testing the effects of the vibrations and stresses set up, by changes made on the engines. The laboratories will now begin an immediate examination of the Graf Zeppelin's damaged motors, and the results of these examinations will be made public. I consider the present type of water-cooled engines the best available for airships, and we have no great improvements for gasoline or gas engines in view. But we are working on a lightweight Diesel engine."

Commander Eckener today declared:

"Only when the report from the Maybach factory is available will it be possible to state the time when we will be ready to start our Atlantic flight. As soon as the cause of the motor trouble is discovered then we can tell when we will be able to go, depending always, of course, on the meteorological conditions.

ECKENER HONORS FRENCH

"At this time it seems probable that we will install five new motors of the type used on the previous flight, in which case we may leave for America anywhere between two and three weeks from now."

Others here are more optimistic and consider that it will be possible to make the new start within 10 days.

Dr. Eckener gave a luncheon to the French officers who arrived on the Zeppelin. German officials and Commander Vincent A. Clark and myself also were invited. To his guests Dr. Eckener again expressed his appreciation of the efficient service of the French officers when the Graf Zeppelin was in distress over their country. He told them he was glad to have them with him on the homeward flight.

Louis Kahn, chief adjutant in the French Air Ministry, replied that his department was happy to be in a position to render service to the Zeppelin company.

FLIGHT THROUGH ALPS

The luncheon was a happy termination of the wonderful flight across the moonlit mountain lakes of Switzerland. The international group of passengers saw a dreamlike vista. It was the most wonderful panorama I have ever seen in my many years of trekking, traveling and exploration.

As we crossed over Marseilles with its dusky housetops garlanded and festooned with bright lights in the streets, the full moon was rising, its dull light shimmering across the sea. We turned inland over the velvety black landscape and took advantage of the wind which helped us about 10 miles an hour.

Only the bare rocks of the mountain tops were reflected in the moonlight. At low altitudes we seemed to remain still while the ridges passed beneath us like huge billows rolling in the ocean. We flew 4,000 feet above the sea level, but were only a few hundred feet above the earth's surface.

HELPS FATHER WHO KILLED HUSBAND

Girl Testifies for Parent in Plea for Habeas Corpus; Tells of Secert Marriage

AMARILLO, Tex., May 25.—(AP.)—Reconciled to her father, whose pistol made her a widow, Theresa Hamilton Walton, 19, today testified for the parent, R. H. Hamilton, in his appeal for habeas corpus release under bond from a murder indictment returned after he killed Tom Walton, Jr., the girl's 21-year-old husband.

The shooting occurred when Walton visited Hamilton at his law office to tell of his secret marriage with Theresa. He went there upon the advice of his mother to "tell the Judge all about it." Mrs. Walton had told her son she thought Hamilton would "be sensible."

Hamilton, prominent Amarillo attorney and former judge on the Texas Supreme Court Appeals Commission, did not know whether his application for freedom pending trial would be granted. Court recessed suddenly yesterday afternoon.

The proceedings were featured by the entrance of Walton's young widow, who fondly embraced her father. Theresa told of marrying against her father's will. It was in February while she and the boy she loved were students at the University of Texas.

CIVIL SERVICE OPPOSED FOR CENSUS WORK

Reed Charges Democratic Plot to Get Jobs as Keystone Members Fight Move

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Adoption by the Senate of an amendment to the combined census and reapportionment bill providing that all workers in the next national popular enumeration shall be employed under civil service regulations brought a vigorous protest from members of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation, who declare that the amendment will never be accepted by the House.

The amendment, sponsored by Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem.), of New York, and supported by a coalition of Democratic and Progressive Republican senators, was attached to the pending bill Friday by a narrow margin. Should it be retained in the lower House, which is yet to consider the reapportionment-census legislation, it would have the effect of destroying all plans already formulated by the Pennsylvania congressional group for filling the several thousand census jobs in the state.

Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, who has been active for some months in arranging for the appointments, charged that the amendment was sponsored by Democrats in an effort to gain an upper hand in landing jobs for members of their party throughout the country.

At the same time Representatives Magrady, of Mt. Carmel, and Swick, of Beaver Falls, both members of the census committee which has jurisdiction over the bill in the lower body, declared that the amendment would be opposed to the finish. Not only would it unload a tremendous burden on the United States Civil Service Commission, they said, but would cause an important delay in taking the next national census, scheduled for 1930.

Previously the plan urged by Senator Reed for filling the estimated 100,000 jobs that will be required for conducting the national population count, called for the director of census to accept the recommendations of Republican members of Congress and organization leaders.

PITT LIBERAL CLUB PLANS BUSY YEAR

Meeting Set for First Day Of 1929-30 School Term As Current Activity Ends

Pitt's rebellious Liberal Club last night sang its swan song for the current school year. Its final note had the shrillness of defiance, for plans were laid to resume activities the opening day of the 1929-30 term.

Meeting in a Fifth avenue dining room, whose windows furnished a fairly close view of the campus, members of the club announced their executive board for next year.

It includes Alfred Tronzo, senior, chairman; Charles McDowell, Louis Teitlebaum and Miss Alice McCabe, juniors. All are Pittsburghers.

75 MEMBERS PRESENT

Tronzo immediately declared that "the next meeting of the Liberal Club will be held September 27, and on the Pitt campus."

That day school opens.

The Liberal group, numbering about 75, was presided over by William Albertson, expelled chairman of the Liberal Club. He explained that it was the first dinner of the body, but that he hoped there would be many others. He came to the dinner shortly after having served subpenas on Chancellor John G. Bowman, Dr. J. Steele Gow, secretary, and Dr. Lee Paul Sieg, dean of the college, ordering them to appear in court Monday.

COMPROMISE URGED

He presented his former educational administrators with the papers, which command that they appear in court concerning the expulsion of Arthur G. McDowell, who, with Albertson, suffered expulsion through Liberal Club activities. McDowell was formerly a member of the executive board, but is succeeded by his brother, Charles.

Speeches following the completion of the meal evolved into a brilliant duel between professors of the school. Dr. Bowman and other leading administrators and members of the faculty had been invited. A few were present.

Dr. Clyde W. Gleason, assistant professor of psychology, spoke of the club and its methods from a neutral but critical viewpoint. While in sympathy with the Liberal movement, he explained, he also held respect and sympathy for the administrative views. He urged a compromise in which the objectives of the two might be attained.

'SUPPRESSION' SCORED

William Lee Nunn, instructor in economics, differed, feeling that the protest of the Liberal Club was as the protest of the Ministerial Union, Civil Liberties Union, and other groups.

"The university is in the midst of a building program," he said, after a prelude in which he quoted prominent educators tracing the history of educational institutions.

"When it is completed," he added, "it is not hard to prophecy that the University of Pittsburgh will be as liberal as can possibly be. But there are so many building programs in Pittsburgh. It is an overdeveloped frontier town controlled by men who have vast properties, not because of intelligence or shrewdness, but because they came here first. These men rule the universities and churches as they do their corporations. They control and suppress thousands of lives. It is against such control that the Liberal Club protests, the Ministerial Union protests, the Civil Liberties Union protests. Suppression is felt at every hand. The history of institutions is repeating itself in Pittsburgh. Some day it will grow out of it."

STATEMENT CORRECTED

Other speakers were Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, of the Civil Liberties Union; A. S. Whitely and William McDowell.

Attorney Ellenbogen today said the published statement that he withdrew the mandamus proceeding in the McDowell case and instituted the injunction action instead, because he felt he had made a mistake in naming Chancellor Bowman as defendant instead of the trustees, was incorrect. Ellenbogen said he had made no mistake in directing the proceedings against the chancellor. The chancellor was properly the chief defendant, he maintained, and would continue to be named as such.

Marion Talley Buys Farm In Heart of Wheat Belt

KANSAS CITY, May 25.—(AP.)—Marion Talley, of Kansas City, late of the Metropolitan Opera, has made clear her decision to retire from the operatic stage to a farm. The singer arrived home yesterday and announced the purchase of 640 acres near Colby, in the heart of the Kansas wheat belt.

The farm is 12 miles north of Colby, 400 miles from Kansas City and 200 miles from Denver. Miss Talley described it thus:

"It's a mile square, with wheat up to my knees and everything to make a really fine home—in the rough."

Miss Talley said she plans to stock her farm, and that her chief interest would be in saddle horses.

"I love to ride, and it wasn't any fun creeping over the bridle paths in Central Park," she said.

"Of course, I'll have other things besides horses. I'll have cows—Holstein cows, because they give good milk and go well with Western Kansas. And they raise fine turkeys in that country, and chickens and guineas."

Alhough the singer plans to enter fully into the new phase of her life, she will coninue her music studies. Her phonograph record contract will not expire for three years, she said.

New 'Human Eye' Camera Shows Lifelike Movies

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP.)—RCA Photophone, Inc., has announced perfection of a new departure in motion pictures, described as "natural vision photography and projection." The system was demonstrated for the first time last night to a private audience.

The new system, the announcement said, makes possible the projection of pictures in lifelike perspective upon a screen covering the entire proscenium opening of an ordinary theater. It is further claimed that they can be synchronized satisfactorily with sound.

The camera and projection machine, both of which use an especially wide film, were developed by George K. Spoor and John J. Berggren, of Chicago. The camera was said to be capable of photographing scenes five miles away from its lens and renders unnecessary the taking of closeups to show facial expressions.

It also is of lifelike perspective because of a focus "approximating that of the human eye."

"The new camera," the announcement said, "captures two images and resolves them into a single picture, bringing to the negative the full relative shadow values of the photographed object."

Its backers said that the new system was an important step in ultimately bringing lifelike, full-stage musical comedies and dramatic productions to the screen and that it would be especially valuable in photographing panoramic battle scenes, broad stretches of natural scenery and large crowds in vivid detail.

Hollywood Chronicles Combined With Local Theater Announcements

DOROTHY AND ALICE FEATURE SIMILAR COAT EPISODE WHILE SHOW GOES ON

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 25.

SEVERAL days ago, Dorothy Mackaill went a-shopping and bumped into Betty Compson doing ditto. They landed in due course in the eve dress department. There, Betty spotted a nifty spangled eve coat which she declared had Dorothy's name written on it. Dorothy figured it pretty oke and not so worse to take along on her Honolulu jaunt. So she purchased it. Only—and this is important to remember—she ordered it lined with black crepe. In display form, 'twas spangles fore and aft.

Dorothy Mackaill

Came the premier of Warner's initial all Technicolor-talky, "On With the Show." Dorothy decided to wear the new Eve coat.

No sooner was she seated than down the aisle traipsed Alice White. Yea and behold, Alice sported precisely the same coat. Was Dorothy daunted? Not on your life. Calmly she slid out of her coat. Calmly she put it on again, with the black crepe on the outside, a fringe of spangles showing at the neck line:

Honor to the Mackaill.

Espied Mervyn LeRoy and Edna Murphy in the lobby during the intermission.

"Hey," I shrilled elegantly to Mervyn. "Who's the blond?

"That's the overhead," he returned. What was Edna doing all this time? Humph. Making that "Cut yourself a slice of throat gesture."

Betty Compson Wins Applause

"ON With the Show," incidentally, is a colorful production. The Technicolor effects are startlingly beautiful and most effective. Curiously enough, they weary. I say curiously enough for the simple reason that prior to this flicker I, for one, have never been able to fight off boredom at a Technicolor exhibition.

Betty Compson

Acting honors for the picture go to Betty Compson. One could have seen more of Miss Compson. Histrionically, I mean. The other insinuation is effected curtesy of the stage activities filmed. Sam Hardy's voice is really superb. Louise Fazenda hands out chuckles when she becomes tough. And Hoop-ee-da, how that Ethel Waters can moan a blue-blue tune. The very long array of players, in fact, acquit themselves nobly. Except it did seem a pity to waste Arthur Lake's talent in a distinctly ga-ga party. And a salute, of a surety to Director Alan Crosland.

If there were more story to "On With the Show," the offering would be a Lulu. The picture, however, shows hard, industrious work and because of its beauty and the individual performances merits applause.

MORAN AND MACK, the Two Black Crows, were entertaining a writer in their Famous Players' dressing room.

Writer: Do you boys like Omar Khayyam

Moran: Pretty well, but I prefer sherry.

Mack: Humph, that's one on you, George. That ain't a wine. It's a cheese.

Bessie Subdues Confident Youth

BESSIE Love and a gang were enjoying a night at the Ambassador Coconut Grove. Suddenly, a confident youngster breezed to the table.

Bessie Love

"I beg pardon," to Bessie, "but I just bet my friends that I had nerve enough to ask you for a dance."

"You've won," retorted Bessie, and continued conversing with her friends.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Reginald R. Church to Bring Gotham Girl as Bride To Pittsburgh

THERE are all sorts of interesting bits of news today, not the least of which is the engagement of a Pittsburgh man to a New York girl. I am referirng to the betrothal of Elizabeth James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lyman James, of East Sixty-sixth street, New York, to Reginald Reinhart Church, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, of Wallingford street. They haven't set a date for their wedding, I understand, but when it occurs it will add another attractive girl to the ranks of Pittsburgh society.

Elizabeth attended Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn., and she also studied at Miss Nixon's School in Florence, Italy. She made her debut in New York three seasons ago.

THEN there was that successful benefit last night in the new ballroom of the William Penn Hotel—the "showcase" ball of the social service department of the West Penn Hospital. As I have told you before, the new Urban ballroom presents an effect of black and gold, and against this background, the gay-colored frocks of our society matrons and maids made a gorgeous picture. And speaking of these bright hues, have you noticed how very popular are chiffons in the shades of reds and yellows? Many other materials and colors were seen last night, of course, but the gay chiffons seemed to predominate.

Between dances, the guests used the adjoining blue and silver room as a lounge, and later in the evening they were admitted to the Cardinal room where the big gilt showcases had been arranged. In the first was Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, posing in a representation of a modernistic boudoir. Wearing a gown of rose chiffon and metal cloth, she lay on a chaise-longue in rose a shade deeper than the frock. An effective showcase displayed a hostess putting the finishing touches on her dinner table. Mrs. James Polk McKinney, Jr., was the hostess, wearing a gown of flowered taffeta, while Ann Watt was the maid, wearing a smart uniform. All the apointments for the table had been loaned for the occasion by local merchants, as in the other showcases.

"The Convalescent" was the title of another showcase, in which Mrs. Ira Fitch Brainard, wearing a negligee of eggshell chiffon and pale blue satin, was the invalid and Mrs. Charles Arrott, her nurse. And in another case, "The Jewel Box," was Elinor Munroe, wearing a metallic cloth evening gown and displaying gems lent by a Pittsburgh jeweler. Josephine Nicola was the saleswoman in the "Trousseau Thoughts" showcase, while Mrs. Thomas Grant McCutcheon, Jr., posed as the bride. Mrs. McCutcheon wore a green crepe frock with a black hat, and a silver fox fur was thrown about her shoulders. In the "Sports" case were Mrs. Lewis A. Park, wearing a blue and white golf costume and a straw hat, and Mrs. J. Crossan Chaplin III, the spectator, appearing in a rose and white costume. Nancy James was the "tennis girl."

One of the showcases was flooded with artificial light, and in it posed a group of girls on a beach. Mrs. John B. Semple, Jr., and Harriet Ramsburg wore suits of beach pajamas, and in bathing costumes were Mrs. J. Shirley Austin, Virginia Goldsbury, Mrs. George L. Craig and Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys.

Another showcase represented the tea hour, and in it were Ellen McClay, who wore pale tan chiffon and a scarlet straw hat; Helen Leovy, in green with a hat to correspond, and Louise Reed, who wore flowered chiffon and a green hat. The "evening" showcase displayed Virginia Willock, wearing a white satin gown, and Mrs. James McKay, representing her maid.

During the early part of the evening, a group of girls, headed by Frances Johnston, distributed the programs. Frances wore a long-in-front-short-in-back model in sunset chiffon, and among her aides were Louise Evans, who wore deep flame chiffon, made in the popular long-back style; Frances and Virginia Forsyth, the former in shell pink beaded crepe, and the latter in flame chiffon, and Harriet Wainwright, who wore pale blue lace.

Mrs. John C. Dilworth, who was general chairman for the ball, wore a handsome gown of satin in a pale egg-shell tint, while Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, who was chairman in charge of the show cases, wore black chiffon and lace. The chairman of the social service department, Mrs. J. Garfield Houston, wore crepe in light green, while Mrs. Thomas M. Jones III, who was assistant chairman for the show cases, appeared in black lace.

Then I noticed Mrs. Frank A. Leovy, who wore chiffon in the sunset hue, and Mrs. George Willock, who appeared in a gown of white moire. Mrs. John Woodwell wore green lace, while Mrs. Frank J. Kier appeared in a frock of flowered chiffon. Mrs. Felix Brunot Snowdon wore lace in a deep blue color, and Mrs. John H. K. Burgwin appeared in metal cloth.

Mrs. William Frew wore a black satin gown, while Mrs. Frederick Ickes Merrick appeared in blue chiffon. Mrs. C. C. Sandels' frock was of dark brown chiffon, and I noticed Mrs. T. H. C. Wurts in blue crepe.

Elizabeth Leovy was there, wearing a deep red chiffon frock, and Mrs. Barnet Wolfe was another guest, appearing in chartreuse satin. Margaret Scully wore pale tan lace and chiffon, and Mrs. J. Scott Burke wore yellow satin. Mrs. Burke's sister-in-law, Mrs. Donald Scott Rodgers, wore a white satin gown.

Mrs. Frederick G. Blackburn wore a white frock, too, and Margaret Stewart was gowned in blue moire. Betty Scott wore violet chiffon and Nancy Brown appeared in silver lace touched with blue. A frock of green chiffon was worn by Dorothy Scaife.

Congress Dramatic Group Ends Season

ONE of the most delightful programs the Congress of Clubs drama department has had all season was that given yesterday at the closing luncheon. Chester M. Wallace, director of the school of drama at Carnegie Institute of Technology, stirred the audience with his reading of "Naboth's Vineyard," the strong drama which Clemens Dane has woven about that period of Biblical history as told in the first Book of Kings. From this glimpse into ancient history, the audience was transported to another period when Delphine Heimert and Harriet Werle, in lovely colonial costumes and white wigs, gave a charming song recital, beginning their numbers with some old fashioned melodies. The trio of entertainment features was completed with a modern playlet, Edna St. Vincent Millay's bright, little "Rolls and Salt," presented with professional finish by Mrs. E. F. W. Salisbury and Mrs. Leonard K. Guiler, of the Twentieth Century Club. Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, president, paid tribute to Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, who has so capably and with so much graciousness served as department chairman for four years and a gold bar was presented to her. Then, if anything else were needed to round out a very happy occasion, word came from the board of directors in session at the time, that Mrs. Johnston had been reelected department chairman.

Cables to Cut Rocks

A LONG steel cable, drawn at high speed and fed continually with wet sand, cuts through solid rock in a new type of quarry saw. Tiny grains of sand, dragged across the rock face, serve as abrasives to groove it at a rate hitherto unknown.

Pressure on Water

A PUMP lifts water only as high as the atmospheric pressure will force it. The pressure on the highest mountains is much less than that at sea level. As the air pressure is reduced the column of water which it will balance is also reduced.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

A Man's Stock Poses

CONSIDER, my Daughter, the POSES wherewith a man deceiveth himself. For in these he taketh great stock.

Lo, he saith, "I hate perfumes! They are an abomination in my nostrils and an affliction to my spirit."

* * *

Yet, behind it is the damsel that anointeth herself in spikenard and myrrh and black narcissus and imported bath salts, who stirreth his imagination. Yea, it is she that smelleth like a Sultan's harem, and wafteth fragrance in passing, that causeth him to lift his eyes.

HELEN ROWLAND

And many a man hath mistaken a sweet scent for a sweet disposition, and an imported sachet for "sex appeal."

He saith, "Go to. I despise flattery, and a gooey woman getteth my goat. Yea, verily, she insulteth mine intelligence!"

* * *

Yet, behold, I have seen men run from a straightforward damsel as from a small boy with a machine gun. Yea, she is hated like a prohibition agent.

But a damsel that pinneth medals on a man, extolleth his ways, and saith always "How wonderful!" is never among the wall flowers. She is as a soothing poultice to the inferiority complex, and wine to the vanity.

* * *

He saith, "Lo, I cannot bear a loud woman; and a forward damsel that arrayeth herself as a human shriek offendeth my soul and maketh me to blush."

* * *

Yet, the shrinking violets continue to adorn the walls of the ballroom, and the modest wrens to hover in the cloak-room, while the human peacock divideth her dances among the multitude and the "fire alarm" cannot count her partners.

He saith, "I shall never marry! Give me free life and free air! For I take NO woman seriously, but every one as a new experiment."

* * *

Yet, be of good cheer. For, tomorrow, the "marrying mood" shall descend upon him, and he shall feel sorry for himself. And, behold, the woman who seeth him first shall lead him to the altar without effort.

* * *

He saith, "I cannot abide a stupid woman, and a dumbbell is a weariness to the spirit."

* * *

Yet the prizes continue to go to the beautiful and dumb. And what woman with brains hath ever drawn a peach in the Garden of Love?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Clear Mind and Health Depend on Oxygen

YOU read in the paper every day about the need of fresh air and exercise. You are told they must be had if you would enjoy perfect health.

DR. COPELAND

These are both essential to be sure. But they are not in themselves sufficient.

Let me explain: Fresh air without proper breathing is of little value. So it it with exercise. It must be the right kind of exercise, taken under appropriate conditions. Otherwise it will fail to accomplish its purpose. Today I want to talk about breathing—what it does for the body. No matter how much you eat, you cannot be well nourished unless you breathe correctly.

Do you believe that the breathing capacity bears any important relationship to goodness of character? This surely is surprising, if true.

My friend, Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, studied 4,000 chest measurements to show the connection between breathing and delinquency in women. Dr. Hoffman is a conservative man and would be the last to make a positive conclusion in a matter of this sort. What he found is very interesting.

The investigations show that the breathing capacity of delinquents is distinctly less than in normal women. In women over 30 years of age, the delinquents have a chest expansion of three inches, as against four inches for normal women. Under 30 the normal women have an expansion of four and a half inches, at least a half inch more than the delinquents possess.

I am all the time preaching to you the importance of deep breathing. I have done this because of what it means to your physical well being. I have not thought of its relationship to morals.

It is easy to see, however, there may be a lot in Dr. Hoffman's idea. Unless the brain is well irrigated with pure blood it cannot operate as it should.

The nourishment of the body and the proper functioning of all the vital organs are dependent on the purity of the blood supply. The blood cannot be rich and capable unless the lungs give it an abundance of oxygen.

It is reasonable to believe, then, that delinquency which depends on wrong operations of the mind or on wrong impulses due to perverted stimulation of certain organs, might well come from shallow breathing. To have the quantities of oxygen essential to normal blood supply and proper flow of nerve energy there must be the fullest use of the breathing machinery.

The chest expansion is an index of the degree of lung development. If there is not free expansion there is no likelihood of obtaining the necessary oxygen. A healthy mind and a clear brain depend on an abundance of fresh air. You must take into your lungs an abundance of oxygen with every breath.

You will find your general health improved if you follow these suggestions. Restful sleep, good digestion and a happy disposition will result.

Begin today to breathe properly.

Answers to Health Queries

M. R. Q.—Is there any cure for infantile paralysis other than isolation, and what can be done to prevent the ravages of the disease?

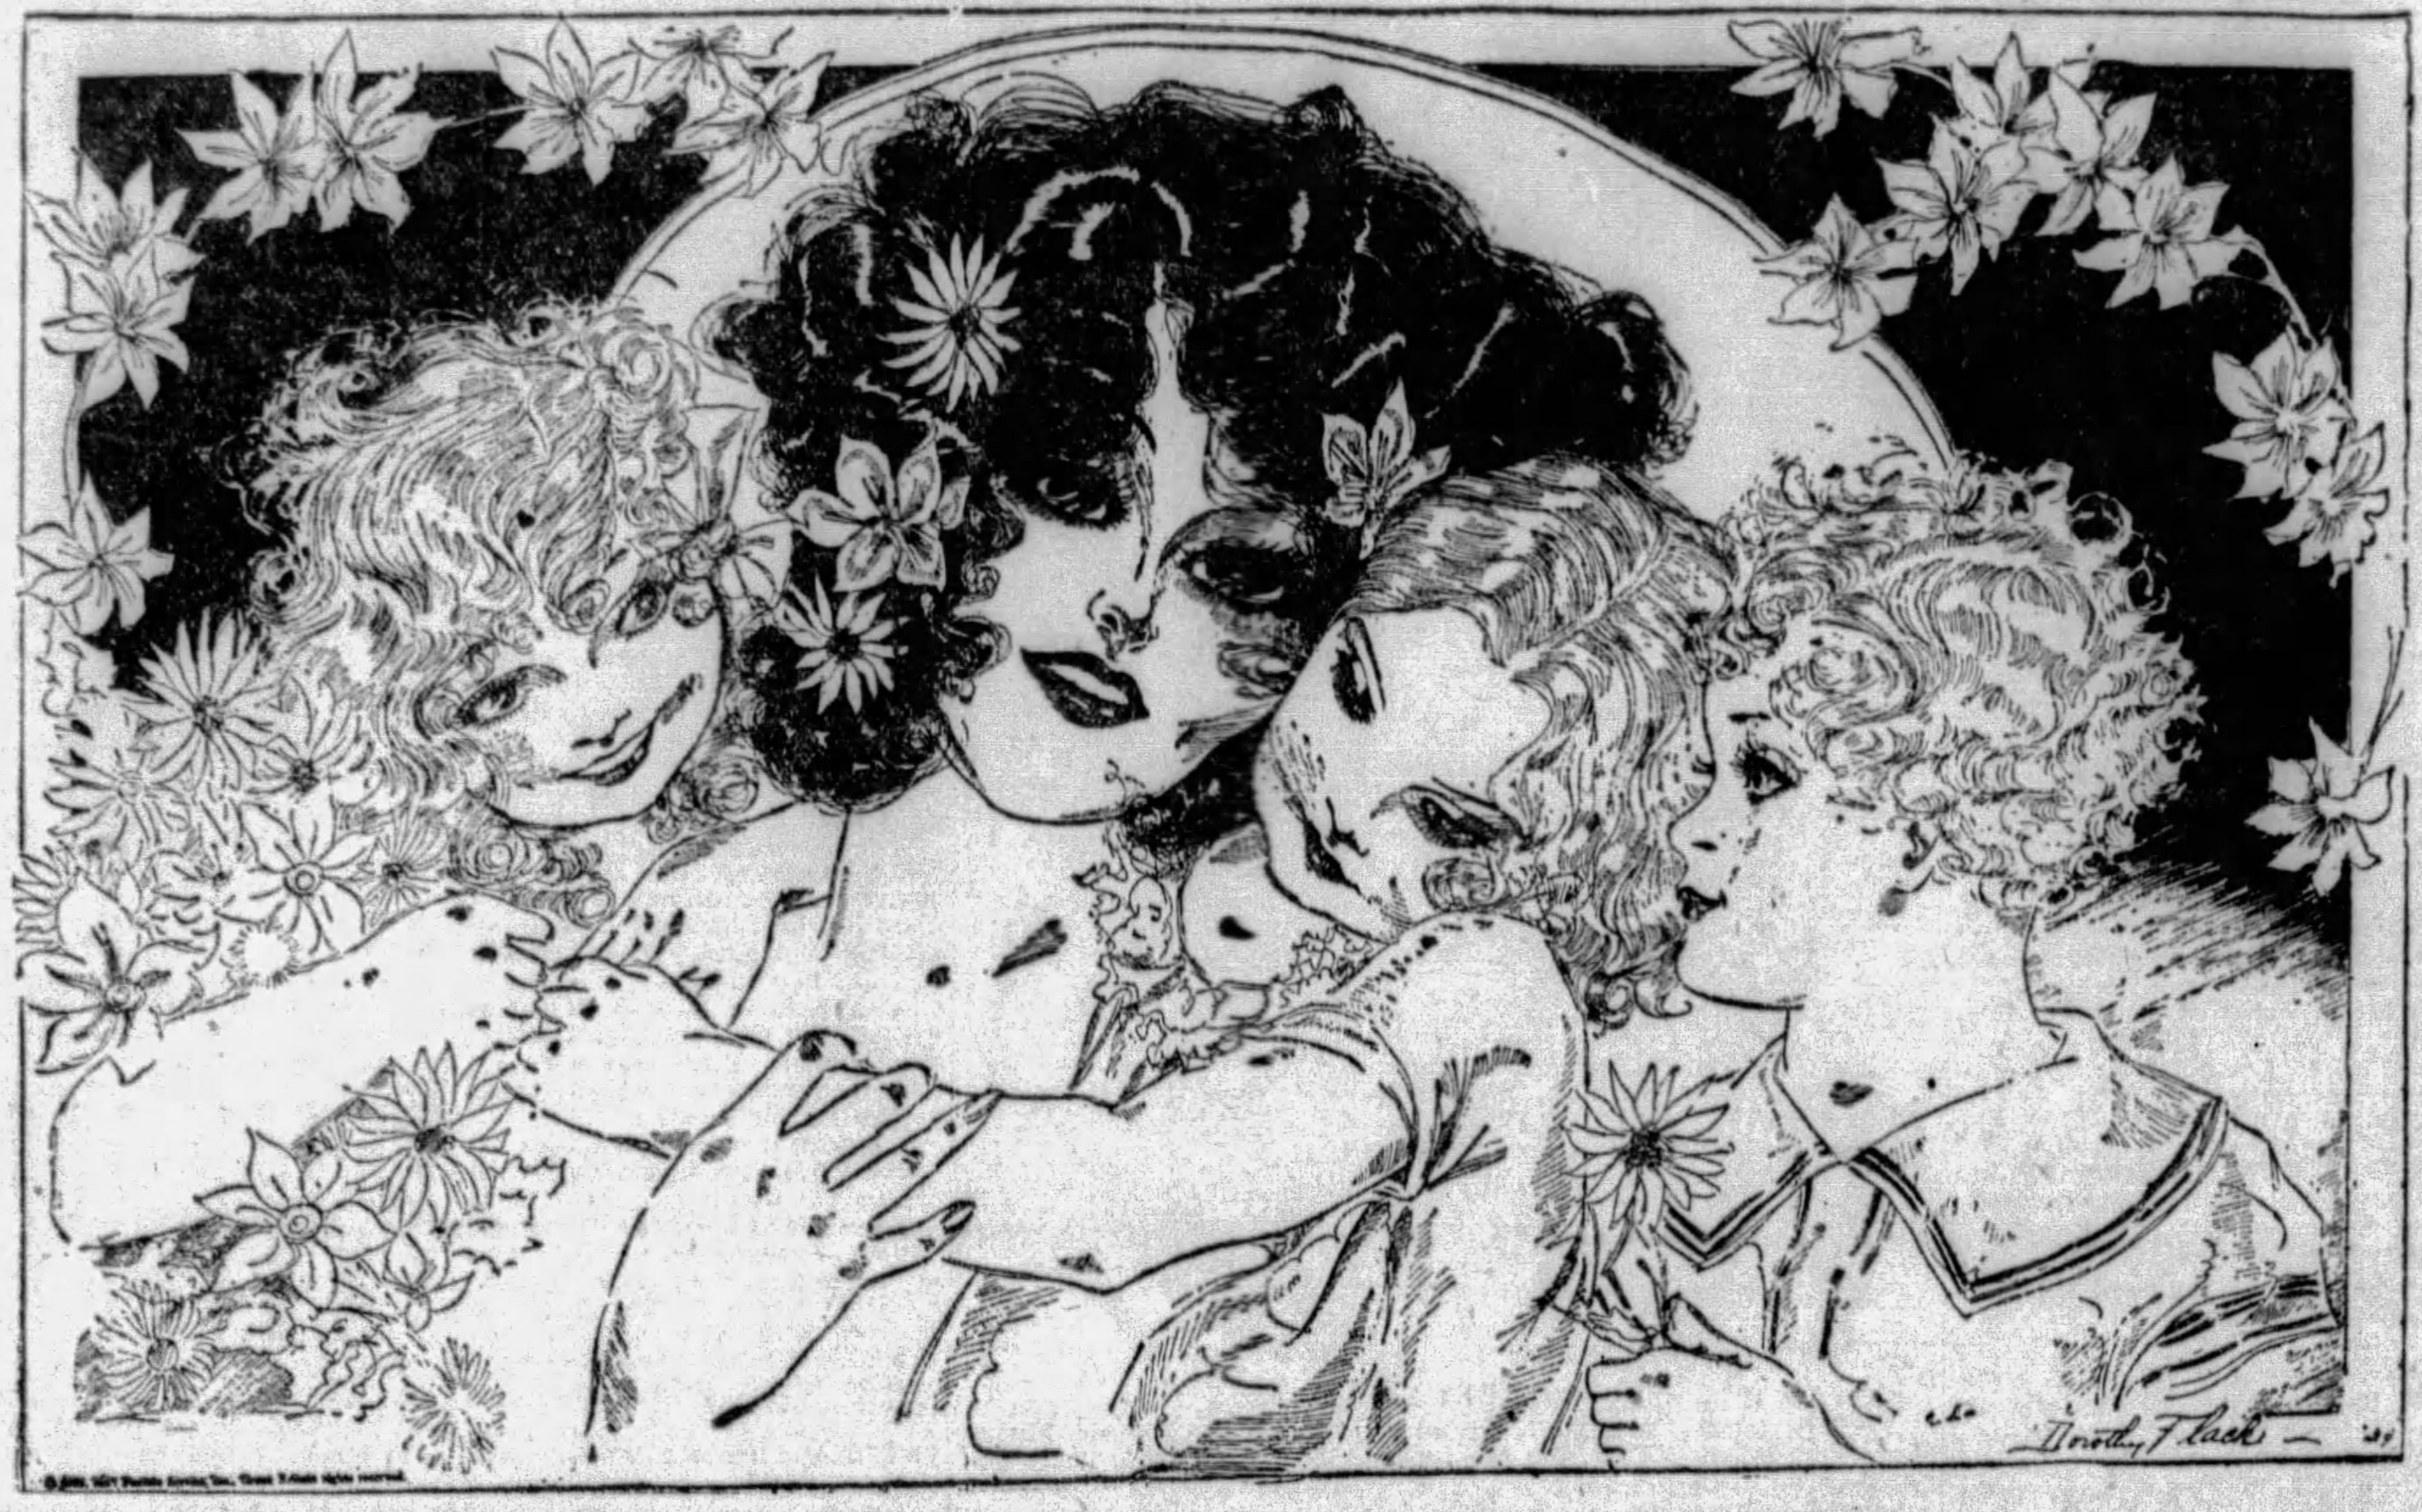
THE MAY QUEEN

Drawn by Dorothy Flack



NO more for her the gaily bedecked Maypole! No more do all the boys and girls join hands and dance joyfully around, paying homage to her liveliness and crowning her Queen of the May! Ah, what happy memories they are! And what a world of sweetness they bring to her heart! But now—! She's still Queen of May, only the domain over which she reigns is the Domain of Love!

Hers the joyous, happy little faces which Love has brought to her. Her's the supreme happiness of the feel of tiny arms, trustingly twinning themselves around her! To them she's the most beautiful, wonderful, adorable person in the world. She's absolute queen in this tiny domain, sharing her joys and troubles and happy hours with the king of her heart!

Queen of the May? Of course, she is, for when it comes to choosing a queen these tiny, trusting hearts can see no one else but their own darling Mother! To them she is surpreme.

And Love crowns the whole with a joyous happiness that makes this wee principality of Love the happiest place on earth!

Her willing subjects, these tiny hearts. Her word is law, and if it seems despotic, it is with the despotism of Love and the good of her subjects at heart! So here's all happiness to this Queen of the May and to her loyal, loving subjects! May Love guide her always and Happiness ever dwell with her!

Brixton Demands Receipt After Returning Money to Lillian

LILLIAN did not put out her hand to take the check and receipt which Sam Brixton was holding out to her. But with a movement incongruously deft and quick for so large and unwieldy a man he laid the papers in her lap, and then stepped back, looking at her appealingly. But I was sure I caught a gleam of alert watchfulness back of the appeal.

For several seconds Lillian let the papers rest in her lap while her eyes searched Samuel Brixton's face.

"Twenty thousand dollars!" she repeated at last. "That is a large sum, Sam. I did not understand from—Tom—that the sum involved was that large."

As always there was the hesitation before speaking the name of the husband of whom she had nothing but cruel, sordid memories, and I realized anew how nerve-racking this interview was with this stirring of those memories which for years had been mercifully buried.

"It wasn't that large," Mr. Brixton said promptly. "But of course there is interest for all the years since. You are entitled to that, you know, and Helena will not feel that I have atoned fully unless that is included in the sum."

"I am entitled to nothing," Lillian said with a sudden fierceness, stressing the pronoun. "If I accept this proposition of yours it will only be with the understanding that Marion is to receive the money."

"That, of course, is up to you," Mr. Brixton said, and I saw his eyes watching the papers in her lap. As if impelled by his gaze she lifted first the check and looked at it, and then, laying it down, took up the paper he had designated as a receipt, and began reading it.

Something in Samuel Brixton's eyes, fixed upon Lillian's face, warned me that in the "receipt" she was reading lay the real season for this interview.

There was a light tap upon the door, and I crossed the room to open it. A little premonition told me who was standing outside, a premonition which was fulfilled when I saw Charles Owen standing in the doorway.

"I am so sorry if I am interrupting," he said, "but the tennis players are involved in a dispute over a point which they say only you can settle. I tried to arbitrate the matter, but they refused by offices. It will take but a minute or two, I am sure. They are all willing to abide by your decision."

It was a plausible errand, for Marion and Mary are eternally squabbling over tennis points, and when Dicky is absent I am their umpire. But with my "imagination working overtime," as Dicky would have phrased it, I read into the message a cleverly staged maneuver of Charles Owen's to get me away from Lillian so that his half-brother could have a few minutes alone with her unhampered by my presence.

I was in no mind to let Mr. Owen suspect my doubt of him, however, and I smiled in my very best manner.

"Oh! those tiresome children!" I exclaimed. "I mean ours, of course, not your young people," I added with perfunctory contrition. "But Mary and Marion have more disputes than could be found at Wimbledon or Forest Hills. What is their particular issue now? I am familiar with them all and can send back the decision at once."

He had not expected this move. I could see that plainly, but his recovery was prompt.

"Oh! I never would dare to return without you," he said with a smile. "Besides, I'm a terrible dub at tennis, and I'm sure I wouldn't get the message straight. Won't you let me escort you over to the courts?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Introducing "Him"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is the proper manner in which to introduce a young man friend after there has been an understanding?

2. When one becomes engaged?

3. Also on the day of the wedding, if there are guests who have never met the groom?

PUZZLED.

IF the "nderstanding" is between you two only (as I judge you mean, since your second question indicates that the news has not become public), you would not change the form of introduction from the usual formal one: "Mrs. Allen, may I present Mr. Browne?" or, more informally, "Mrs. Allen, Mr. Browne."

2. "Mrs. Allen, may I present my fiance, Mr. Browne," or "Mrs. Allen, this is my fiance, Mr. Browne."

3. "Mrs. Allen, may I present my husband?" or "Mrs. Allen, this is my husband."

Don't Append Notes

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I will soon be graduated from high school and I am anxious to know if the tissues which are in the invitations should be discarded when the invitations are sent out, or should the name card be placed in the fold of the tissue? I have been told that it should be placed in the fold of the tissue and sent thus so as to protect the invitation from the rubbing of the card.

2. Also would it be quite appropriate, when sending a teacher an invitation, to put a friendly note on the card asking that she omit a gift?

READER.

I THINK that it is far better to send the invitation without the tissue. To me the tissue left in the invitation gives an unfinished appearance to the whole that is not pleasant. However, some people think that it is such an important added protection that it should be left in. The point is that if the invitations are ordered far enough ahead, as such important invitations should be, the engraving will be dry, and then the tissue has done its work. Personally, I should never send out an invitation with the tissue in it.

2. No, this would not be good form. A formal invitation must be left formal; that is, no writing should be on it.

Omit Degrees

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I wonder if you realize what a godsend your little column is to us doubtful business girls who are not just sure of some rules which govern our everyday life? When attending the theater is it correct for the lady to wear a sleeveless evening dress, which is not extreme, when the man wears only a dark blue business suit?

2. When a couple attend the theater and instead of taking a taxi go on the street car, is it proper for the lady to go without a hat and also wear carriage boots over her slippers, instead of ugly galoshes? I hope you will say "yes" to this latter question, else when are we to wear the few pretty things we do possess?

3. When a medical man writes a business, or rather professional letter, is it correct for him, when signing his name, to follow his signature with half a dozen letters of special degree which he may be entitled to, as well as M.D.?

COUNTRY MOUSE.

THANK you for your kind words about by column. How happy you made me!

This type of dress is not correct for the lady to wear when the gentleman with her is wearing business clothes. It is inappropriate. Either they both will dress formally, or both dress informally.

2. I can and do say "yes" to this question, dear friend, for, if the woman does not mind, there is no reason why she should not wear evening clothes just because she is going to the party in a street car. Carriage boots over her slippers are quite correct.

3. I see no reason why the medical man writing a business letter should use the letters of his various degrees, and it would seem to be absurdly pretentious. Of course, if there is, from the point of view of the contents of the letter, a special reason for this, that would be a legitimate use; but otherwise such a signature would be of a comic opera nature! Don't you think so? He would find excellent and appropriate use for these significant letters after his name as the author of a medical paper, or when his name is recorded as a member of a medical society, but not in the signature of a business letter.

Household Hints

To clean a white enameled bedstead, wipe with a cloth which has been wrung out of warm water sprinkled with paraffin and well squeezed. Wipe afterward with a cloth wrung out of soap and water. Rinse and rub dry.

Mud stains can be removed from any kind of material by rubbing them with a pad of soft cloth which has been wrung out in the water in which potatoes have been boiled.

Horoscopes

Sunday, May 26

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds presage of some unwelcome upheaval for disaffections, involving or attended by financial loss or hazard. It would be wise to refrain from all manner of speculation and to suppress a tendency to criticism, sarcasm and other unkind speech or action.

Those whose birthday it is may be assailed by some unwelcome upheaval or abrupt change, with disturbed finances or losses, unless they are very conservative in handling funds. They should also refrain from critical, unkind and sarcastic speech, which would be likely to precipitate disagreeable situations.

A child born on this day may be restless and nervous, with certain wayward and erratic tendencies which would contribute to its self-undoing. It should be trained in an attitude of kindliness and toleration in its human intercourse.

Monday, May 27

MONDAY'S forecast shows rather negative and unimportant conditions, albeit these partake of a rather sinister complexion, which it is advisable to meet with every safegard against fraud, treachery and subtlety. This applies especially to new undertakings and may likewise bear a sordid rule for those working in the employment of others. There may be some furtive attempt to undermine one's position with superiors or those in authority.

Those whose birthday i. is are confronted by a year calling for wariness and precaution against fraud, misrepresentation or underhand attacks. There is a sinister sway that may affect the employment or the good standing with superiors or those in authority. Beware all manner of secret dealings or intrigue.

A child born on this day may have some singular or subtle trait of character, with a proclivity to intrigue or conspiracy, and these may militate against its success, especially in the employment of others.

Eve Becomes Intoxicated in Effort to Forget About Her Husband

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Don Carlos Whiting goes to Hawaii after he discovers that his wife, Eve, is carrying on an affair with George Phillips, a neighbor. She is a pretty, selfish person, with whose beauty Don Carlos had fallen in love. On landing in the islands he is accosted by a native, David Nahuli, who offers him $2,000 for delivering a black bag. In carrying out this mission he sees Eugenie, Nahuli's wife, a gorgeous creature who fascinates him. In the meantime Phillips carries on his suit for Eve's love, but quarreling brings unhappiness. Then, in wandering around, Don Carlos meets Selma Wilson, crippled mother of an unusual family, which includes a daughter, Ruth. The latter plans a companionate marriage with Al Harding, much to the disgust of her father, Big Tim Wilson. One day while Don Carlos is loafing at his hotel a mysterious letter is dropped at his feet and a woman motions for him to read it. It contains an invitation to meet her at the crest of Tantalus road. The same day Nahuli orders him to carry the black bag again. He delivers the package to an out-of-the-way seashore retreat, thinks he has been followed, but arrives home in safety. The night for his meeting with the woman of the mysterious letter arrives, and he learns that she is Nahuli's wife, the same one he had seen when he first carried the bag for Nahuli. She tells him he has been delivering opium in the black bag and warns him to evade the gang. Among her revelations is that Nahuli forced her to marry him to save her father from prison. Don Carlos spends his time working on a play from which he expects success.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIV.

"BUT Eve," remonstrated George Phillips, "you've had enough to drink already."

"Say, who's doing this drinking, anyhow? Now I ask you? Ha! Ha! Ha! Can't answer that one, can you, dumbbell?"

Eve was rocking back and forth drunkenly on the floor of one of the cafes at North Beach. She had teased George to take her out for a night of drinking and dancing, even when he had begged that they have a quiet evening alone. She did not wish to be alone with him—to listen to his tender lovemaking—submit to his kisses.

Ah! There was the fly in the ointment. She knew, even while she hated to admit it to herself, that every time the face of George Phillips came close to hers, she saw in its stead the dark, laughing eyes of her husband—smiling into hers as he once had.

She had tried to forget him in the arms of this other man. But day by day the realization was brought home to her that she loved Don Carlos madly. That she did not know how to love, save in the intensity of her mad longing for him, she never stopped to consider. It was there; an obsession, eating into the very heart of her.

And it kept her faithful—after her own strange fashion—to his memory.

She sought, then, to drown her longing in the wild night life of San Francisco.

There were other swains about her who would gladly have taken George Phillips' place in her life. Until they found her out. But Eve had in her a strong element of cruelty. It fascinated her to see the hurt look which came into George's eyes when she waxed sarcastic. There are some people who thrive on other people's hurts.

George Phillips looked at her now and caught his breath in amazement at the sheer beauty of her. The liquor served to give an added sparkle to her eye; a brighter flush to the rose petal cheek. The jade-green dress set off her golden beauty. All eyes were turned toward her, there as she careened drunkenly on the floor.

Just then the orchestra struck up a lively tune, and George had an excuse to put his arms about her and whirl her about the dance floor. Eve never lost her dancing instinct, even when she was under the influence of many drinks.

"Hello, Benny," she cried as they were whirling over the floor, espying an acquaintance. "Come and dance with me; I'm sick and tired of doing the same steps with George. I'm fed up with him." She leered drunkenly at the newcomer.

Good-natured George Phillips saw red for the moment.

"Better watch your step and keep your hands off, Ben," he murmured in a low undertone to Ben Roberts, who was acting on Eve's suggestion.

"Say, how do you get that way; insulting my friends? Let me tell you, George Phillips, I'll dance with anyone I want to, and I don't mean maybe. You don't own me yet even if you think you do. I still belong to Don Carlos," she added.

Eve knew that any allusion to her husband infuriated George Phillips, who was usually so tractable. He feared him as a rival, for he knew too well that Eve had never forgotten him. And yet she maintained that she hated him. Strange, these women.

"Why don't you go back to him, then?" he flung back at her as she whirled away with Benny Roberts.

"Maybe I will!" she retorted, and then under her breath—"with your money."

"Did you say something, Eve?" asked Ben Roberts as they did the latest chicken shuffle.

"Talking to myself, old thing," she murmured. "Make love to me, Benny."

"You're drunk, Eve. Better let me take you home."

"Is that so?" Eve stopped in the middle of the dance floor, and gave Ben a push which well nigh upset him. "You fellows make me sick. Always howling about a girl being a good fellow, and then when she takes a drink or two you have the nerve to tell her she's drunk."

"But, Eve, your 'little drink or two' means several quarts. Boy! You've certainly got some capacity. You're an expensive luxury when it comes to that. Have you hollow legs, Eve?"

He had been attempting to pull her around the floor, against her will. But now Eve left him and walked in what she considered a haughty manner to her own table. They were too conspicuous on the dance floor, quarreling loudly.

"Aw, go to the devil," she rasped out, as Ben attempted to push the chair in behind her, bowing low and thanking her for the pleasure of the dance.

Ben Roberts flushed to the roots of his hair.

"Eve!" began George. "Please, dear—"

"Say, you shut up, too, will you, before I really lose my temper around here?"

She attempted to arise.

"What can I do for you, Eve?"

"Well, now, Georgie-Porgie," she babbled drunkenly at him, "if you're really hankering to do something for me, suppose you take me home, call up the bootleggers and let's get plastered to the gills."

There was nothing for George Phillips to do save follow her out of the crowded dance hall.

At a late hour that night he pulled off Eve's pretty gown, now crumpled and ruined beyond repair, there where she had fallen over in a drunken stupor on the davenport, wrapped a negligee about her bare shoulders, carried the sleeping drunken figure to the bed.

Opening the windows wide and turning out the lights in the apartment, he stopped for a moment to gaze down at the girl.

This was the girl he loved with a dog-like devotion; this beautiful piece of humanity, with the face and form of an angel.

The uneven equation of life! Love, lingering where it was out of place.

The Zig-Zag Scar By Mildred Plem Merryman Daily Short Story

IT was lonely in the cabin. She kept wondering about Chad—wishing he'd come home. Idly her glance strayed to the calendar on the wall. Yesterday's page still clung. She went over and ripped it off. It was the second she had torn since he departed. Two days it should have taken him—no more. One day to drive the cattle to Dodson's Corners, one to return—unless—refusing to complete the mental picture the word evoked, she left the sentence dangling in her mind.

When, after working long and faithfully for months, Chad suddenly found himself in town with plenty of money, anything might happen. Experience had taught her she had reason to be troubled by that word "unless."

To lull her vague foreboding she took down a basket of needles—threaded a needle, but soon her fingers slackened over the task.

For the hundredth time her gaze went through the open door scanning the skyline for a swirl of dust.

Hungry for the sound of a voice—any voice—she went over and turned on the radio. It spluttered—crackled—gave nothing. She reached to twirl the switch.

Curt and clear a man's voice nicked the stillness.

"Station WRQ speaking at Dodson's Corners. Last night in a shooting fray here a gambler was killed. Ten thousand dollars in treasury notes were stolen from the victim. Keep a sharp eye out for a man with a zigzag scar on his chin. He is known to be the killer. Posses are forming east and west of the range. Remember the zigzag scar!"

In a crackle of static the message tangled—broke.

Rigid with fear she sat there, unhearing and unseeing, while the menace of the message bore in and in. Daily for a dozen years she had seen that zigzag brand—ignored it. Now suddenly it took on a terrible meaning. Struggle as she might to give the lie to it, already she felt it to be true. Whatever had happened, she must bend her mind to the facts.

Hoofs scuffled the sand outside. A shadow pooled the threshold. Sick with horror she looked up.

Chad stood in the doorway hatless, gently swaying. Light caught at his tumbled, sun-scorched hair and traveled down across his face to the zigzag scar at his chin. He said nothing. He strode to the cupboard, flung open the door. In a panic she saw what he wanted. Quicker than his, her hand slid toward the battle, jerked it down. He scowled, ripped loose her fingers, tipped back his head and drank.

Questions crowded to her lips, so many she couldn't choose. She wanted both to rail at him and take him in her arms. He gave her no chance to speak—to approach him. Laughing, he pocketed the bottle—lurched out. Hoofs pounded on the trail and he was gone. She shut her eyes to think, but all her mind could shape was a zigzag scar. Posses were forming east and west of the range. They were after Chad—her Chad—and Chad was drunk. Sober, she would have pitted his chances against any man's she knew; drunk, he was a fool. Drunk, he had killed and stolen; yet in spite of it all he was hers and incredibly, even at the moment, she was glad.

She tried to think where he would go; what trail he would make for, how she might help him. All at once she knew. He had one good chance of escape—the old unused pass over Table Top would take him to Canada. If he kept his head he might make it, before his pursuers caught him up. He would try it, she felt sure.

Suddenly she remembered what a ranger had told her in passing. On the Canadian side at Lone Pine Gulch beyond old Pedro's deserted shack, the bridge had broken; only yesterday a man and his horse had plunged through.

It would be night before Chad could make it. In her mind she saw him go forward blundering—half-dazed.

Then at once, mad as it was, she knew she must follow him, catch him before he reached the bridge.

With the resolution, all sense of giddiness left her. She dashed toward the bedroom, donned breaches, boots, a sweater, jammed a gun in the holster at her waist, a felt hat on her head. In the barn she shouldered the saddle—dragged it out. At the corner of the corral stood her horse, head righ, neck arched, black against the sun. She whistled. Whirling, he came to meet her. In a muddle of haste, her fingers twitched at the straps. She flung herself up. Hoofs clattered, pebbles flew.

Underfoot, fresh hoofprints gave her courage. The trail grew rough, wound up.

At a fork in the path she got off to examine the hoofmarks. Two sets of tracks wound toward the pass—not one, but two! Already they were at his heels. She must hurry faster—faster. Clouds crushed low overhead; the air blew chill. She pressed on toward the summit. It stretched before her flat and bleak, jagged with crevices. Cold mist crept to meet her, needled with dreary rain.

Before her, sheer and steep, the path descended. She got off and led her horse. Through snow, through slush, through sleet, hoof and boot slogged downward sucking the pasty mire. Rain turned to sleet and lashed its stinging flails across the chasms.

Night came. In the darkness the black of rock and the black of vacancy were one. A tremor shook the mountain. Off to the right, over the face of nothingness, ran a zigzag scar of fire.

Step by step she plunged down and came at last to trees. Fire broke along the slope. She stared ahead and trembled. Stark in the glare stood a riderless horse—the horse was Chad's.

Terror seized her—senseless, shuddering terror like the terror of a child. Terror of the night—the mountains—the yawn between—terror of a horse without a rider.

Battered by hail, half-blinded by the lightning, her horse stood cowering, refusing to go on. She tried to talk to him, but she had no breath, nor strength. Through the trees to the left a wan of light guttered. Shelter they must have and quickly. As the night struck its flare, she saw the outlines of a shack. It was Old Pedro's she knew—there was no other close to the trail. Tethering her horse to a pine trunk under the lean of a rock, she crept forward, gun in hand.

The door was closed, but two shadows moved at the window, dark on the yellow blind. Others before her had taken refuge from the storm. Under the meagre shelter of the eaves, she knelt at the sill.

Through a half-inch slit at the bottom, she peered in. All she could see was a shift of boots, but the spur on one, she knew. She drew back, the better to watch. Two shadows grappled—clinched. The smaller one was Chad's.

Back and forth wove the silhouettes, softly as the shadows on a screen. Drowned out by the clatter of the sleet, they seemed to make no sound—no sound at all. It was eery—weird—unreal. If only they would cry out—knock over something! To and fro across the shade they pitched, dragging away the pattern, putting it back. Then the larger shadow lunged—the smaller bent and doubled—sagged from view. Sharp on the blind an arm, a hand, a muzzle flung its outline and the muzzle pointed down.

She had no time to think, to plan, to reason. She shoved her gun against the glass and fired. The curtain dropped its shadow in a splintering shower of glass. Feeling wobbly and sick, she forced herself to go in.

Two forms lay slumped on the floor, but already Chad was stirring—coming to. Sinking to her knees beside him, she helped him first to sit up and then to stand. He tottered for a moment wavering—brushed an arm across his forehead. Then bewilderment cleared from his eyes. He strode across to the shape on the floor, bent down and rolled it over. Ignoring the trickle that stained them, he unbuttoned jacket, shirt and reached in. When his hand came out, he held a packet of notes clutched triumphantly in his grasp.

She stared. Stumbling forward, she looked full in the dead man's face and crumpled with relief in Chad's outstretched arms.

Scrawled on the chin of the stranger was a livid zigzag scar.

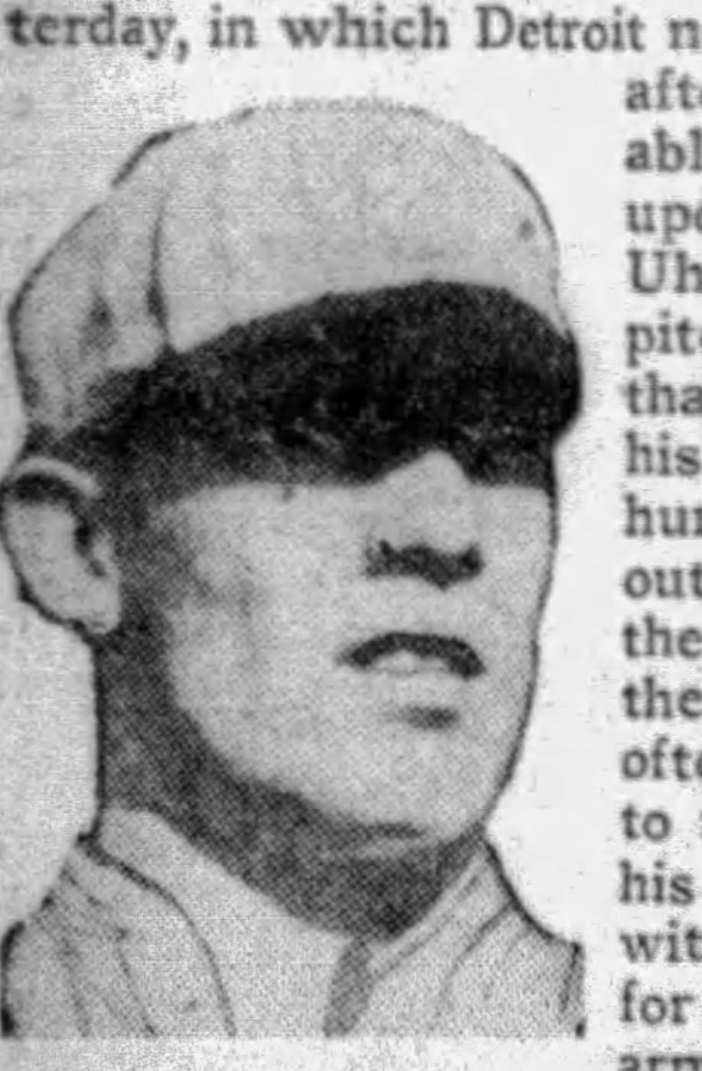
SEVERE STRAIN MAY HURT PITCHERS



George Uhle

THE angle that will lead to most speculation as the fans look back over the sensational baseball struggle in Chicago yesterday, in which Detroit nosed out Chicago by a 6-to-5 score after a battle of 21 innings, is the probable effect the terrific strain will have upon the later pitching form of George Uhle and Ted Lyons. Sometimes a pitcher will come through a grind of that sort apparently none the worse for his experience, and will go right on hurling in his usual style as if nothing out of the ordinary had happened, but there are others who never look nor feel the same afterward. Babe Adams often declared that he was unable ever to rise to his old pitching heights after his memorable 21-inning struggle here with Rube Marquard, which Doyle won for the Giants with a home run, that his arm lost something that day which it never regained.

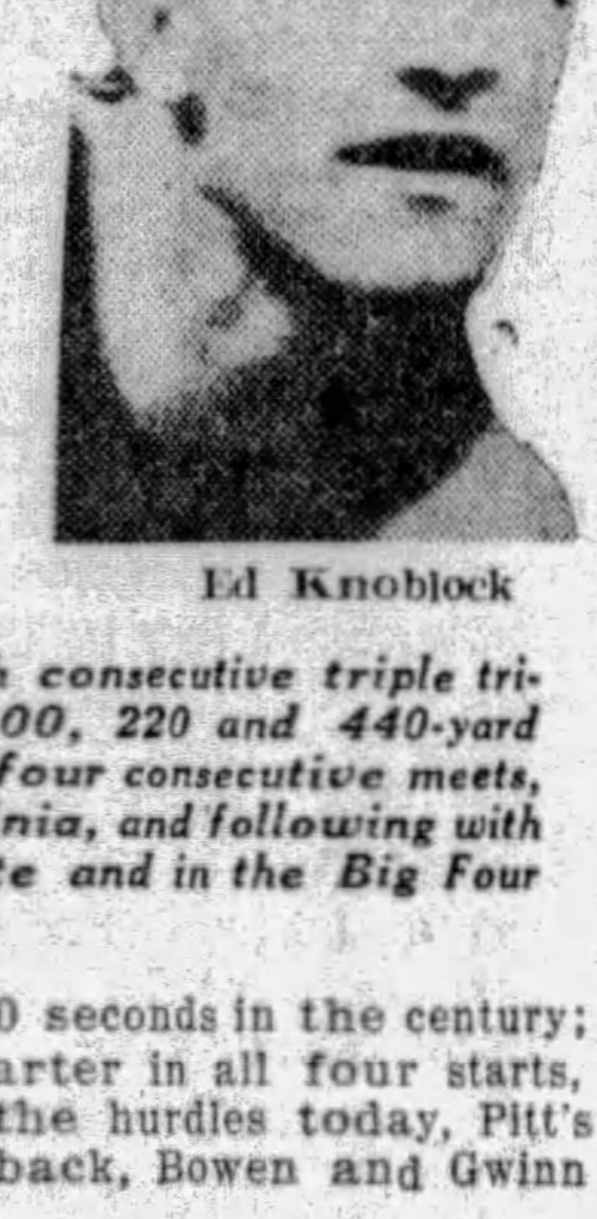
Other hurlers have had similar experiences in long overtime battles, so the fans will await with interest the answer to the question as to what price the Tigers and White Sox will have to pay for keeping Uhle and Lyons on the firing line for such a long time. It may cost one of the clubs heavily in a lessening of the effectiveness of a star pitcher.

EVEN though Uhle did not finish the game, he missed only one inning of service, and by reason of the fact that the contest was won before Stoner went in, the victory must in all fairness be credited to Uhle. It is his eighth straight win of the season, and he again leads Burleigh Grimes by a single triumph for the pitching leadership of the majors.

The long game did not equal the record in either of the major leagues. The longest game ever played in the big show was a 26-inning tussle between Brooklyn and Boston in the National League on May 1, 1920, the contest ending in a tie with one run credited to each side. In the American game the longest game on record is a 24-inning battle in which Philadelphia defeated Boston, 4 to 1, on September 1, 1906.

PITT'S varsity track and field team is at West Point today for its closing dual meet of the season, that with the Cadets. The Panthers stand small chance of winning, but the performances of Frank Shea's "Big Four" against the Soldiers—Pickard, Bowen, Knoblock and Utterback—will be watched keenly by eastern critics.

If the Panther stars show well today, Pitt will be rated with the strongest teams in the East for the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet next week, and will be counted on heavily to aid in stopping Stanford and Southern California, favorites to divide most of the points at Franklin Field.



Ed Knoblock

PITT will not be able to send its Big Five into action against the soldiers today, as the hammer throw is not contested at West Point. This robs Pitt of an almost certain first place, as the Cadets haven't had a hammer thrower since Tiny Hewitt. Gwinn, of course, will be an entrant at the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet, and will be a one-two choice. He and Edmund Black, Maine's Olympic star, will battle it out for first place at the Intercollegiates. Bowen will try for his fifth consecutive triple triumph against the Army in running the 100, 220 and 440-yard events. He has won these three events at four consecutive meets, starting with the dual meet with West Virginia, and following with triumphs against Carnegie Tech, Penn State and in the Big Four carnival.

BOWEN hasn't been clocked at more than 10 seconds in the century; :22 in the furlong and :49 in the quarter in all four starts, either. If Ed Knoblock comes through in the hurdles today, Pitt's stock will soar accordingly. Pickard, Utterback, Bowen and Gwinn are certain I. C. A. A. A. A. point winners.

Knoblock should place in the high hurdles, and the East hopes he cuts into the scoring in the lows, for if he does, a fine opportunity will be created for some Eastern squad to steal the championship from the coast favorites.

CHAIRMAN H. N. VAN VOORHIS, chairman of the ring committee for the Allegheny Country Club Horse Show June 6, 7 and 8, at the clubhouse on Sewickley Heights, is the dean of Western Pennsylvania horse enthusiasts, and one of the best known horsemen in the state.

His stables at Red Gate Farm, his Sewickley Heights home, are known throughout the country, and horses from them have been exhibited at most of the horse shows of any prominence. He is the owner of Liberty Bond, one-time sensational jumper, now retired.

H. N. Van Voorhis

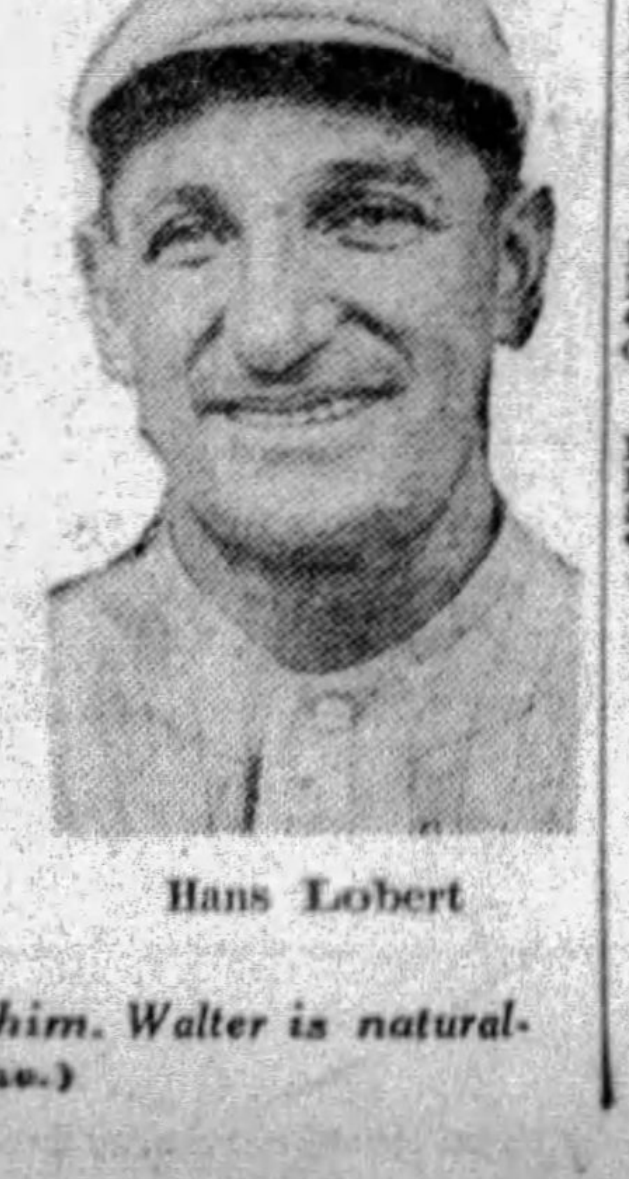
TWO of Chairman Van Voorhis' horses, Bingo and Flashlight, were entered in the Cleveland show, which ended May 18, and these, with Dictator, owned by B. F. Jones III, constituted a Sewickley Hunt team that won first prize in the hunt team class. J. O. Burgwin, master of Sewickley hounds, rode Dictator; H. C. Bughman, Jr., Sewickley whip, rode Flashlight and the huntsman rode Bingo. Several horses owned by Edgar J. Kaufmann went from his stables at Fox Chapel Farm, near Sharpsburg, and came home with prizes and ribbons.

NEITHER the Athletics, who are leading the pack in the American League pennant race, nor the Cardinals, who occupied first place in the National for some time until the Cubs knocked them out of it yesterday, can claim that they attained their prominence by showing superiority over the remainder of their respective fields.

On the contrary, the rise of each club to the top was due to its success against one particular opponent. In the National League the Cards have waxed fat by feasting on the Reds, and in the American the Mackmen have gained largely at the expense of the Senators.

NOT since the Yankees captured 21 out of 22 games played with the Browns in 1927 has any club in either big league beaten another team so often and consistently in a similar period as the A's have defeated the Washington outfit this spring. Out of 11 games played to date the Athletics have won 10 and the Senators only one. The latter victory was scored in the third meeting of the two teams, and it took 11 innings to do it at that.

In the National League the Cardinals owe their lofty position in the race largely to the manner in which they have been able to clean up with the Reds. They have encountered the Cincinnati tribe 10 times so far, and have won eight games against only two lost.



Hans Lobert

TWO former residents of this district have been the main factors in keeping Bridgeport in the first division in the Eastern League. One is Manager Hans Lobert, one-time Beltzhoover citizen, and the other is Walter Kimmick, Turtle Creek product. Kimmick has been the batting sensation of the league and is leading the whole circuit in hitting with the remarkable average of .545. No other regular in the league is even close to him. Walter is natural-

M'GRAWMEN TO BE TESTED IN WEST

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Are the Giants getting set to show their vaunted class? The heavy cannonading by the Men of McGraw may be ominous—and then, again, it may not be so hot. Nevertheless, the Polo Grounds seem to be snapping out of it and as the club on paper is very much "first division," it would not surprise their backers if the club soon lands in the upper bracket.

On the other hand, the Giants are getting close to a very severe test. Since the season started about five weeks ago, the New Yorkers have been hobnobbing for the most part with seaboard entries. It is true that they took on each of the Western clubs for a series, and it also is true that they took a fine shellacking while the Western clubs sojourned in the East.

COMING WEST

It won't be long now until the McGraw circus leaves the Coast to enter very hostile territory. They must play the four clubs of the West, and if we do say it ourselves, the West has the punch once again. There seems to be a grave doubt as to whether the Giants can take the impending hurdle gracefully, there being a feeling in some quarters that they will be tripped up often.

Late reports out of the East indicate that Manager McGraw is trying to put over a deal with the Quakers which would give him Outfielder Denny Southern. Now this same boy, who won his spurs in the Middle Atlantic League, is a crackerjack baseball player. Denny is one of the sweet baserunners of the league and he should be able to hit .300 or thereabouts. In the outfield he knows to "go out and get that ball," as the players say.

Be that as it may, the Giants would seem to need a good right-hand hitting ball-hawk in the garden. The club is surfeited with southpaw singers, the outfield list including Roush, Leach, Ott and Welsh. Welsh and Pitcher Henry are the players mentioned as being involved from the New York angle.

TOO MANY SOUTHPAWS

Jimmy Welsh stood out as one of the leading fly-chasers in the league when he played with the Braves and he enjoyed a good season with the Giants last year. The overabundance of lefthander hitters, however, is sufficient to induce McGraw to look into other pastures for the other style of hitter.

Getting back to the local subject, it is time to state that there will be a ball game at Forbes Field this afternoon, weather permitting. The Pirates and Reds, rained out yesterday, are slated to play the final game of their series, the contest to start at 3 o'clock.

Paul Waner will return to his old third spot in the lineup today. Manager Bush will make this move in view of the improved batting form shown by the star. Adam Comorosky will bat in the fifth notch.

LUQUE VS. SWETONIC

Senor Adolfo Luque and Steve Swetonic are ready to oppose each other in the finale. The same pair of righthanders held the slab slips yesterday. Capt. Pie Traynor will continue on the bench for another day.

Immediately after today's game, the Pirates will hasten to St. Louis where Sunday they will meet the Cardinals in a double-header. Single games will be played Monday and Tuesday. Next Wednesday will find the Buccos back home for their first long stay of the season. The Cubs will be the attraction through the Memorial Day period.

Notables Honor Honus Wagner

With a number of celebrities in the sport world on hand, together with prominent civic personages, Honus Wagner opened his new store on Liberty avenue, for inspection last evening.

President of Council James Malone, P. J. McArdle, Honus Wagner, Mayor Woodward of Monessen, E. L. Braunstein, and other prominent men spoke in honor of Wagners' new venture. Telegrams were read from Bill McKechnie, Judge Landis, Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey wishing the famous ball player luck, and throngs of persons in the sporting world were seen walking around. Among these were Jack Metz, Dan Dougherty and his band of umpires. Captain Sharples, director of the Preston North End football club and a number of his players.

Missions Quote Pirates Price On Slade

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—(AP.)—Sale of Gordon Slade, brilliant shortstop of the San Francisco Mission Reds, to the Pittsburgh Pirates, appeared to be a strong possibility last night with the announcement of President Wade Killefer that he had quoted a price to the major league club for the immediate delivery of the youngster.

The Missions are leading the Coast League and Killefer said he was reluctant to part with Slade, but would do so if the Pirates would send him a suitable infielder on option.

Killefer also revealed he was trying to interest the Pittsburgh management in Mickey Finn, second baseman as he would prefer to sell the youngsters as a combination. Slade's work also has attracted the attention of scouts of the Brooklyn club and the Boston Americans and they have asked Killefer not to make a deal until they have watched him perform.

HEIDELBERG MEETS BRITONS HERE TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

All set for the fray, the Preston North End Soccer Club of England, and Heidelberg, Western Pennsylvania and National amateur champion, await the referee's call to send them to battle. The game will be staged this afternoon at Duquesne University field and the kick-off is slated for 4 o'clock.

This will be the first time Western Pennsylvania soccer fans have had an opportunity to watch an English club in action, and it will be the first time that Heidelberg, an all-American soccer team, has had an opportunity to do its stuff opposed to a crack professional team.

Of course, fans might argue that this will show Heidelberg's ability, but it is hardly to be expected that Heidelberg can win. Fans are hoping that our National amateur cracks will give the foreign invasion at least a good game, however.

BUFF OUT OF GAME

Heidelberg will go into the game minus its greatest star, Buff Donnelli, America's greatest amateur goal-getter, and fans in the district are anxious to see just how Buff will perform opposed to a real soccer defense.

In Preston, the fans will see the last word in how soccer should be played. Of course, the Bluff is not the kind of grounds that will help the Preston style of soccer, but if the ground is fast, a little bump should not prevent the carpet-weaving act of the visitors from getting a play.

Berky Jones and Dante Villani, the finest defense ever produced in America, will be severely tested. Alex Hair, who leads the forward line, is a goal-getter par excellence, and Heidelberg's defense will have to be in shape to take care of this Scotch boy.

Fred Donnelli will be opposed to Nelson, the crack Preston halfback, and this Preston-born player is a brilliant breaker-up.

Ewart will be in goal, and the veteran, while not having Buff Donnelli to worry over, will be tested by Johnny McCosky and Fred Donnelli.

The game is sure to be fast. The Bluff field is only 50 yards wide and compact, which will test out the short-passing game of the English stars.

It is possible that Ward and Kerr will start in the fullback position. Both were slightly injured in the Hakoah game, but Preston, hearing so much of the Heidelberg attack, does not intend to take any chances today.

STYLES DIFFER

In this battle, the fans will see two distinct styles. Heidelberg plays the typical American type, dashing goalward, with long swinging passes, and shooting at every opportunity.

On the other hand, Preston has a perfect machine, all of the players know every move, and the moves are worked out as in chess.

Can Heidelberg break up this short-passing game before the danger zone is reached? This will have to be done to prevent scoring, because, should the invaders reach that penalty mark, the goalkeeper will have a tough time. However, the bustling, rushing style of soccer Heidelberg excels in may upset the Preston style of play, and it is the only hope of the Western Pennsylvania champions.

It was impossible to try to figure the lineup last evening from the Preston board of directors, but Heidelberg will start as in every cup tie with the exception of Buff Donelli, and Urbanic will come into the lineup to take his place.

The Preston team will not be selected until game time. The English team had two hard fights in New York, and the club was battered. Now Preston wants to get away to a win, so nothing will be done until game-time, and the team fittest will take the field against Heidelberg.

Preston players will wear their famous white jerseys and blue knickers, the same colors that were carried to victory many times in the League and English Cup. Heidelberg will wear its famous green and gold, so there will be no clashing of colors.

Fred Ward Cops Canadidn Run

TORONTO, May 25.—(AP.)—Fred Ward, sturdy distance runner, representing the Millrose A. A., New York, won the first Canadian National marathon championship here yesterday.

Covering the 26 miles, 385 yards in two hours, 46 minutes, 38.4-5 seconds, Ward finished an eighth of a mile ahead of his nearest competitor, G. Rutsalainen, of Montreal, and thus won a leg on the Wrigley Trophy. Ward finished the grind in fine shape and never was seriously threatened.

Rutsalainen's time was 2:47:25.4-5. He finished a half mile ahead of Frank Hughes, Hamilton Olympic Club, with Jack O'Reilly, St. Mary's A. C., Toronto, fourth and Johnny Cuthbert, Guelph, Ont., Y. M. C. A., fifth.

BIG CARNIVAL WINDS UP SEASON

By JESS CARVER.

The high school and college track and field campaign will be slipped back into mothballs as far as this city is concerned today, following the staging of the twenty-second annual Pitt interscholastics in the stadium. The meet is the last of a fine array of scholastic carnivals which have been offered this spring, starting with the Geneva school meet, and following with the Tech, West Virginia State, W. P. I. A. L. and Beaver Valley championships.

Seventy-two schools have entries on hand for the meet today, which was scheduled to open with trials in the field events this morning. Among the gents who will bear considerable watching is the fellow Frazier, from Charleston, W. Va., who runs the hundred in 0:09 4-5 and hasn't been beaten so far this spring. PITT AT WEST POINT

The Pitt Panthers are in the east today for their closing dual meet of the season with West Point. The Cadets haven't been defeated in three years in dual competition, and figure to keep their slate clear against Pitt today.

They've tossed the hammer throw out of this meet, which means that Pitt will be booted out of at least one sure first place. Don Gwinn gets an extra week of rest and time to prepare for the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet.

Pete Bowen will try to score a sweep in the sprints and quarter mile for the fifth meet in succession. Pickard is favored to take the pole vault and Utterback and Knoblock are counted upon for first or seconds in the hurdles and the jumps.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Waynesburg and Bethany are booked for a dual meet at Bethany in the only other track meet on the tristate program. The state championships will be held at Lewisburg in Bucknell University's Stadium today.

Bellefonte Academy's baseball team meets St. Vincents at Beatty, Pa., and Shady Side is in Cleveland to meet the University School nine.

The Duke-Bethany net match, carded for today, has been postponed until Monday. Penn State and the Navy clash at State College.

Schenley High and Westinghouse High have set Tuesday of next week as the day for the playing off of yesterday's postponed City League game, in which the Silver Lakers had an opportunity to deadlock with the Bellefielders for Section I honors. Langley and Carrick High schools which were to have fought it out for the top in Section II, also were idle yesterday, due to the inclement weather, and more than likely will also re-book their battle for Tuesday.

In the main contest of yesterday, Oliver High School nosed out Allegheny, 3 to 2, in a Section II engagement. It marked the fourth straight for Ray Peters' proteges, and placed the team in a tie for second place with Carrick.

Peabody High easily bested Allegheny Vocational, 5 to 2, while the Shady Side Juniors tripped the Kiski Juniors, 5 to 2. Shady Side's first team is in Cleveland today, where it meets the University nine of that city this afternoon in a Tri-State Prep School league game.

HE BANE GREAT SWANSON

WINDSOR GIVES M'TIERNAN HARD BOUT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

"Setup, huh? Well, if he's a setup, keep me away from the good ones!"

Those probably were the sentiments of Jack (Buck) McTiernan, Swissvale's rising young fistic star, at the end of his hard 10-round embroglio with Johnny Windsor, rugged Polish mixer, of Herron Hill, which featured the weekly program of bouts in the Moose Temple last night.

When the match was made, the fans almost to a man figured Windsor would prove another easy knockout victim for Bunny Buntach's protege and they stayed away from the fight in droves, there being many rows of empty seats whereas on the occasions of McTiernan's two previous windups in the Moose Temple the club turned 'em away.

It was just another instance of the wise guys being fooled. For, instead of walking meekly out to be slaughtered, Windsor made it a rushing, punching fight all the way. He was beaten in every round but the ninth, in which he held his own, but McTiernan's margin in some of the rounds was nothing to brag about and there never was a moment in the fight when Buck could let down. Also, McTiernan was hit probably as often in those 10 rounds as he has been in all of his other professional bouts around here put together and had to stand the acid test to come through at the finish with the unanimous decision of the judges and the referee.

CONCEDES NINE POUNDS

McTiernan conceded nine pounds in weight to Windsor, as well as considerable seasoning, for the latter has been meeting the professional punchers for several years, whereas Buck is a comparative newcomer among the tough babies. The weight disadvantage didn't help Buck's chances any, either, being in evidence throughout, and it wasn't long after the bout got under way before the crowd, which scorned Windsor at the start, began to string along with him and to yell encouragement to him and disparaging remarks at McTiernan.

The battle was no tea party at any stage, but both men were equally guilty of violating the ethics, yet it was toward McTiernan almost exclusively that the crowd vented its displeasure. In its enthusiasm over seeing the underdog give such a splendid account of himself in a courageous stand, it overlooked the fact that perhaps 90 percent of Windsor's blows were of the kidney and rabbit variety, both constituting fouls, and, when Buck sought to even up the deal with work at close quarters, the mob was on his neck.

Windsor repeatedly pulled the old trick of leaning back over the ropes or pulling his head far back as McTiernan plugged his fists into it, thus winning the sympathy of the fans for what appeared to be pushing and mugging by McTiernan. It was evident that the fans already have become satiated with McTiernan's string of victories and have reached the point where they want to see him "knocked off." It is ever thus. When a kid first comes along and shows some promise in the ring the crowd starts to pull for him with a loud hoorah, and then, after a few triumphs, the sympathy veers and the demand is insistent that somebody be trotted out to beat him.

CROWD WITH WINDSOR

Although McTiernan didn't knock out his 162-pound opponent last night—and he weighed only 153 pounds himself—he came through with colors flying in the hardest test he has had thus far. Meeting unexpectedly strong opposition in a bout that had been generally laughed off as just another pushover for him, he had to steel himself against the gallant fight of his opponent and beat the crowd as well. That he kept his head as well as he did and outgeneraled and outpunched his opponent in the matter of clean and fair hitting and never flinched in the hottest going is the best answer to those brave, carping critics who all along have been only too prone to sit at ease in their ringside chairs and tell the world that Buck isn't game or "can't take it," and won't get anywhere, and booed last night's decision.

All credit to Windsor for his stout-hearted battle, but, after that is said, the fact remains that, although

EVAR SWANSON

Without a blare of trumpets there has come to the National League from the Pacific Coast a youthful Swede who in a few short weeks has caused a big ripple among his mates of the diamond. The young Scandinavian is Outfielder Evar Swanson of the Cincinnati Reds. In the present series at Forbes Field, the rookie has shown local fans plenty of the stuff that made Mercury and Nurmi famous. Before reaching the Coast League, Evar won no less than 14 athletic letters at Lombard College for his skill and versatility. The Red rookie now leads the National League in stolen bases with nine to his credit.

GIANTS AFTER SOTHERN

BROOKLYN, May 25.—(AP.)—Reports are current here that Dennis Sothern, Philadelphia National League outfielder, might soon change uniforms with Dutch Henry, the southpaw, and Jim Welsh, Giant outfielder.

Welsh was purchased from the Pacific Coast League by the Braves a few years ago for a reported price of $40,000 and traded to the Giants in the Hornsby deal after the close of the 1927 season.

Young Rudy Wins Over Rudy Thomas

SALEM, May 25.—Young Rudy of Pittsburgh won a sensational 10-round decision over Rudy Thomas of Detroit here last night. Giving away seven and one-quarter pounds, Ruby carried the fight throughout, and outpunched Thomas in many rallies.

Bobby Burns of Pittsburgh won the eight-round judges' decision over Jimmy Engel of Cleveland in the semi-final. Steve O'Malley of Youngstown, and Meyer Lichenstien of Cleveland boxed an eight-round draw.

Tad's Immortal Fight Stories

By TAD

(For 30 years Tad (T. A. Dorgan), one of the greatest cartoonists and sports authorities, covered the "fight game." Shortly before his death, recently, he wrote and illustrated a score of stories describing, in his inimitable style, those ring battles which for thrills and sensationalism were stamped indelibly on his mind. These reminiscences deal not only with fights in which titles were at stake, but also with thrilling affairs staged in private and at the smaller clubs. This story is one of the series. Others will follow.)

TOO many thirteens was the answer, and Tom Cowler couldn't win in his fight with Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh, at the Harlem Sporting Club, New York, on Friday, April 13, 1917.

A right-hander to the pit of the stomach in the fourth round made FRANCIS C. MORAN the winner.

TOM COWLER.

That was one jinx. The club was run by JOHN THE BARBER, and there are 13 letters in that monicker. The winner was FRANCIS C. MORAN. There are 13 letters in that, too.

Cowler was managed by JAMES JOHNSTON, and there are 13 letters in that.

With everything but the wind against him Cowler did well to go the four.

It was one of the most thrilling quarrels seen around these parts in many a moon.

Cowler had lost to Moran in six rounds several years before that, in London, but felt improved enough to reverse the decision.

Strange to relate, Jitney Jimmy Johnston wasn't on hand to handle Cowler, having missed a train from the West.

Moran weighed 201, while Cumberland Tommy hit the old coal scales at 215. Kid McPartland, the referee, gave them the usual earful of Queensbury guff and off they went.

Moran, in order to intimidate his man, made a terrific rush, swinging with left and right, missing, but bouncing Cowler away back to the ropes. The latter appeared a bit nervous, but squared off again and popped Francis right on the beak. He popped again and again, then shot a right to the chin, but he might just as well have shot a pop-gun at an armored car—it had the same effect.

Cowler Gets Off to Early Lead

Moran seemed slow but cock-sure. He held the old left out straight and attempted to jab. His arms were too short, for Cowler did the same thing and landed. Gaining confidence, the man from Cumberland let go everything he had and Mr. Moran's head bobbed from side to side, but his legs were good and husky. Then, there was a mix and Cowler stopped a left with his right eye, which, of course, immediately assumed the color of a doughnut. The round ended and Cowler simply grabbed all the honors, and Jitney Jimmy three hundred miles away.

Cowler came out for the second smiling and met Moran's rush with a left flush on the mouth. He jabbed twice again in the same place and danced away as Francis tossed a terrific right in the direction of his tower.

Moran was wilder than a U-boat shooting in a rough sea. Cowler was galloping in on the chin strap. He jabbed again to the mouth and crossed a right to the chin, but still Moran came. It was disheartening to see the red-headed Pittsburgher coming toward him after he had dealt the deadly left and right, but come he did.

Cowler dug his left to the body, ducked Moran's deadly right, and the crowd stood up to cheer. He belted Moran on the ear with a right and up went the cheer again. The ball clanged as Cowler walked to his corner with all the honors—and Jitney Jimmy two hundred miles away.

The bell had hardly started before Moran swung one to Cowler's ear, and Tom reeled away. Moran rushed to finish it, but stopped a right with his eye and both were in a bad fix. Reeling towards one another they missed right hand swings, as every man in the house got up to yell as hard as he could. Cowler sent Moran's head back then with a left and busted him on the ear with a right. Moran was unsteady on his feet and sent over a last chance right for luck. It landed on Tom's neck and they mixed like two wild men as the mob howled advice to both.

FRANK MORAN.

Moran, with his head down, shot another right to the chin, and Cowler fell to the ropes in a neutral corner. There was a terrible mix-up then, and the bell clanged during the excitement. Neither hearing it, they continued to fight, but the referee broke them apart. As Moran dropped his hands to walk away Cowler poked out a left and then let fly a terrific right, which hit Moran's chin and sent him reeling clear across the ring. He fell against the ropes in Cowler's corner as the seconds of each jumped into the ring.

Moran was out standing up. Seconds fought; the crowd howled, hooted and fought, and the referee waved his hands in the mob scene. Willie Lewis led Moran back to his corner. The referee had ordered the battle to go on—and Jitney Jimmy 100 miles away.

Old 'Mary Ann' Finally Lands

What a scene there was during that minute's rest! Everyone was talking at once. Cowler sat, wild eyed, in his corner. Moran sat with his head down while his seconds rubbed his ears and gave him smelling salts. The gong clanged again for the fourth as the crowd was still howling.

Moran rushed like a wild goat at Cowler and stung him with a left to the ear. Cowler fought back hard, dealing them out with both hands to the face and body. Then, suddenly, Moran swung a right to the ear—Cowler reeled. The crowd went wild. Moran held out the left and drew back the old "Mary Ann"—PANG! It landed on Tom's jaw and down he went. He took the count of nine as he knelt in Moran's corner.

The latter walked around the Cumberland lad, and as he rose dug a right hander to the pit of the stomach. Cowler started to crumple, and fell the way a tall chimney does. He bent in the middle, and as he did a left hand crashed against his chin and he fell to the boards defeated, but by no means disgraced—Jitney Jimmy 20 miles away.

STATE TITLE MEET TODAY

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 25.—(AP.)—The cream of the younger athletes of the state, representing more than 50 high schools and the winners of district meets in which from 100 to 150 schools competed, will meet at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, today, in the annual state championship events of the P. I. A. A.

The competition will mark the climax of the spring athletic season for the school boy athletes of the state and, given fair weather and good track conditions, the probability of new records being placed on the books looms large.

In a game against Pittsfield recently, Kimmick made five hits in six trips to the plate, including a homer and double, drove in four runs and scored five times himself.

TENNIS LEAGUE OPENS TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

If weather permits—and after the fashion in which these uncertain spring days have been deporting themselves of late, that's an exceedingly large "if"—the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Interclub League will break into action this afternoon with full card of contests in both divisions. All of which means that no less than a dozen outfits, involving players to the number of four score or more, stand ready for the cry of "Play!"

P. A. A. VS. WESTINGHOUSE

In Section I, Dave O'Loughlin's champion P. A. A. aggregation will entertain Sawin's Westinghouse host on the Winged Head lot, while Frank Smith will lead Edgewood against the stronghold of Marion Rinehart and his powerful Stanton Heights array, and Don Mattern's University Club cohorts will ascend Mount Washington to face the fire of Karl Wolfe's South Hillsmen, latest entrants into the select upper group. Howdy Campbell's College Hill stars will remain idle.

The lower loop slate brings Mt. Lebanon and Westinghouse together on the latter's turf, with College Avenue invading Wilkinsburg and Philadelphia Company journeying up the Allegheny to battle Minnetonka at Verona. The jousting will mark the debut of Wilkinsburg in P. T. A. competition, and on the advance dope the Holy City lads, cavorting under the direction of Dr. Tom Stephens, veteran local ace and coach of the Pitt racquet squad, should provide interesting opposition for sectional rivals.

PHILADELPHIA CO. "IN"

Prior to yesterday it was not known definitely whether Philadelphia Company would return to the fold or remain aloof. Manager K. F. McNutt, however, eased his followers under the wire at the final moment and official pronouncement from P. T. A. authorities has it that the utilities crew will be in line as usual, Jack Hilles, former Mercersburg Academy athlete, having been designated captain pro tem.

Soggy courts have retarded the conditioning processes of Steel City net luminaries rather sadly to date, so that it is probable that today's encounters will fail to prove productive of midseason brilliance. What may be lacked in form, though, should be made up in vigorous mixing, at least as far as Section I is concerned, the top-fighters, with schedule of last year cut in half, being forced to fight with added determination lest bad start prove disastrous to titular aspirations.

PURDUE LOSES

LAFEYETTE Ind., May 25.—(AP.)—Purdue closed its baseball season here yesterday by dropping a hard fought 10-inning battle to Indiana, 5 to 1. Paugh and McReynolds tangled in a spectacular pitching duel and not a run crossed the pan in the first nine innings.

LEHIGH GETS HEARST RIFLE PLAQUE

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 25.—While Lehigh University has gained the top notch distinction in intercollegiate competition in wrestling and tennis within the past year, the college now comes to the fore in still another branch of sport, that of superior rifle marksmanship.

The sharpshooters of the Brown and White Reserve Officers Training Corps team climaxed its activities for the year in capturing first place in the Eastern division of senior R. O. T. C. units in the William Randolph Hearst tournament held this spring. While winning first place in its division, the team placed second in the national competition, although the awards were made by districts or divisions.

BOYLE PRESENTS TROPHY

The presentation was made by Havey Boyle, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the representative Hearst paper for the district, to Maj. E. E. McCammon, who in turn presented it to Dr. Charles Russ Richards, president of Lehigh, in the presence of the entire staff of the department of military science and tactics, the board of control of athletics and the members of the winning rifle team.

Boyle gave a short history and explanation of the competition in making the presentation. Dr. Richards responded by commending the team on its splendid showing.

The five undergraduate members of the winning team received individual medals in replica of the large plaque.

The members of this team are: J. K. Dicerson and G. C. Vaughn, of Washington, D. C.; J. S. Price, Baltimore; L. B. Mason, Tyrone, and G. H. Cross, Swarthmore. The team was coached by Capt. R. Taber, an assistant professor in the department of military science and tactics. Dicerson made the highest team score with 185.

SECOND IN NATIONAL

There were 34 colleges in the Eastern division represented in the competition, including New England and the Middle Atlantic states as far west as Pittsburgh.

The district in which Lehigh won first place is one of the four throughout the nation. The University of Arkansas, champions in the Southern division, were national champions with a score of 891. Lehigh placed second nationally with a score of 891.

The University of Washington, in Seattle, winner in the Western division, was third natonally with a score of one point below Lehigh's.

Colorado College won the Mid-Western division championship, placing fourth nationally with a score of 884.

Lehigh's second team made a score of 823. There were approximately 140 colleges and universities in the national senior competition.

The plaque is about two feet in height and weighs about 75 pounds. The inscription reads: "William Randolph Hearst trophy. National R. A. T. C. rifle match, won by Lehigh University first team, Bethlehem, Pa., 1929. Eastern championship universities and colleges."

The Pleasant Valley Smilers took a 6-3 beating in the City League last evening at the hands of the North Side Civics. Kidwell's homer and Caye's hitting were features of the tilt.

Duquesne Light was nosed out by Philadelphia, 1 to 0, in a pitching duel won by Wago Anthony, in the Philadelphia League.

Reick-McJunkin came through to down Kaufmanns, 14 to 2, in a very one-sided C. & I. League contest. Mr. Reick tossed the opening ball. Klocke starred on the mound.

Baltimore and Ohio lost to the Whitaker Club, 3 to 2, in a close Greater Pittsburgh League battle.

In a lop-sided independent game, the Homestead Grays, of the American Negro League, bumped the Allegheny Valley stars, 8 to 3. The City League score:

M'TIERNAN VICTOR

Johnny gave his best, McTiernan spotted him nine pounds and still beat him under the most exciting conditions. Windsor was no part of a setup, as he speedily convinced everybody present, including McTiernan, and the hard, rough fight ought to do the winner a lot of good from the standpoint of preparing him for the even tougher foes to come.

BELMONT STOPS M'CARTHY

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, McTiernan's stablemate, returned to the ring after an absence of eight months and knocked out Jack McCarthy, of the North Side, in the third round of the scheduled six-round semi-final. The first two rounds were fairly tame, with Belmont stalking McCarthy about the ring. In the third, Jimmy uncorked a series of looping overhand rights to the head and jaw. The third of these floored McCarthy for a count of nine and when he arose another dropped him and he was counted out holding his head. The final punch partly blinded him and he had to be led to his corner. Belmont weighed 149 pounds and McCarthy 148.

For three rounds of the second bout Frankie Buff, of New Kensington, 131, stabbed and crossed Frankie Rio, of Cleveland, 129¼, all around the ring with the aid of his big edge in height and reach. Then he tired and Rio came on to win. Buff did well to finish on his feet after taking a count of nine in a sitting position following a left swing to the jaw in the fourth round.

George Peck, of the North Side, 156, substituting on about eight hours' notice for Hugh Fetzer, also of the North Side, lost a hard-fought battle to Bob Concrete, of the East End, 164½, in the six-round opener.

Jim McLaughlin and Frank Ferris were the judges and Joe Keally refereed all of the bouts, with Ray Eberle doing the announcing and Chappy Couch the timing.

ORCUTT IN FINAL

GREENWICH, Conn., May 25.—(INS.)—Miss Maureen Orcutt, women's metropolitan golf champion for the past three years, will defend her title against Helen (Billie) Hicks, 18-year-old Long Island star, in the 36-hole final today.

UHLE VICTOR IN 21-INNING MOUND DUEL

CHICAGO, May 25.—(AP.)—It took George Uhle 21 innings to achieve his eighth victory of the season yesterday. The Tiger ace defeated Ted Lyons, 6 to 5, after three hours and 31 minutes of hard work. The game was the longest of the season and was three innings short of the record, which is 24 in the American League.

Lyons was hit freely, but a stout heart and spectacular support brought him through. The Tigers found him for 24 hits. The Sox came from behind twice to remain in the game. Uhle gave up 17 hits. He was credited with victory though he did not pitch the last inning.

The Tigers tied the score in the seventh to prolong the contest into the marathon game of the season.

The Sox showed little respect for Uhle's record, scoring two runs in the first inning on Metzler's triple, Hunnefield's single and another triple by Bill Kamm.

TIGERS TAKE LEAD

Detroit came right back in the third and took a one-run lead. Alexander singled and after McManus fanned, Phillips laced out a single, sending Alexander to third. Alex scored on Schuble's sacrifice fly. With two out Uhle and Johnson singled, the latter's blow sending Phillips over. Uhle counted on Rice's double.

Detroit added another in the third on Alexander's triple and Phillips' second single. The Sox remained quiet until the fifth, when they took the lead. The maneuver was accomplished by five singles which rattled from the bats of Kamm, Clancy, Reynolds, Hoffman and Crouse.

Lyons sailed along until the seventh, when two singles and a sacrifice fly started the athletes on the long journey. Gehringer opened with a single and Heilmann sent him to third with a one base swat. Alexander shoved the tying run over by lifting a fly to deep center.

Chicago made a mild threat in the eleventh when Cissell singled and was moved to second on a sacrifice, but the attempt faded when the next three men were easy outs.

WINS OWN GAME

Uhle also started the works that led to the winning run. He singled off Hunnefield's glove, but retired when Yde was sent in to run for him.

Johnson singled to center, Yde going to third. Rice hit to Hunnefield, who tossed to Kamm at third and Yde was run down between third and the plate. Johnson went to third and Rice to second on the play. Gehringer then drove a fly to deep center and Johnson scored after Hoffman made the catch. The score:

STOCK MARKET PRICES MIXED AT OPENING

Prospect of Call Money Flurry Creates Pessimistic Feeling Among Speculators

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP.)—Mixed price movements took place at the opening of today's market. Public utilities were again in good demand, Commonwealth Power and American and Foreign Power each opening a point higher. McCall Corporation crossed 80 to a new high, and initial gains of a point or so were recorded by General Electric, United Fruit and Commercial Investment Trust. Auburn Auto dropped 2 points and Murray Corporation, Electric Auto Lite and Montgomery Ward yielded a point or more.

The prospect of another flurry in call money rates next week because of the heavy month-end and holiday demand for funds and the renewed agitation for a congressional investigation of the Federal Reserve credit policy created a pessimistic feeling in speculative circles, and the market headed downward before the end of the first hour.

Radio Corporation common broke below 90, its previous resistance point, and Lehigh Valley, Hupp Motors and Greene Cananea Copper sank into new low ground for the year.

International Telephone, which sold as high as 281½ several weeks ago, dropped 4¼ points to 242¾. Case Threshing dropped 3½, A. M. Byers 3, and Electric Auto Lite, Crosley Radio and Westinghouse Electric extended their losses to 2½ points or more.

Declines of a point or more were quickly registered by a long list of leading industrials and rails, including U. S. Steel common, American Can, Wright Aeronautical, Timken Roller Bearing, Chesapeake and Ohio and Norfolk and Western.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables unchanged at $4.84 15-16.

Simmons On Settlements.

Present method of making daily settlements against stock market transactions is favored by E. H. H. Simmons, president of the stock exchange as against a shift to term settlements, that is a chance to periodical adjustments, such as utilized in London stock trading. Mr. Simmons took this stand in an address, made last night in the course of which he defended the exchange against charges of gambling, asserting that there is a vast difference between gambling and speculation. He based his support of the present method of making daily settlements, on the theory that a chance to fortnightly or other term adjustments might be conducive to an increase in speculation.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 25.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 5 points and sold about 6 to 13 points net lower during the early trading under further liquidation, together with some local selling. Offerings were comparatively light, however, and the market steadied after posting of the weather map, which showed showers in western and central belts, with barometric conditions suggesting a possibility that they would work eastward over Sunday. July rallied to 18.51c, while December sold up from 18.47c to 18.53c, with the market ruling about 2 to 5 points net lower at the end of the first half hour.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 93,000 bales, against 100,000 last year and 118,000 two years ago.

Young Busier Than Morgan; Money, Reserve Board Talk.

By B. C. FORBES

BOTH J. P. Morgan and his principal partner, Thomas W. Lamont, have figured very lightly in the Paris reparations conference publicity. The three members who have been most in the limelight are Owen D. Young, Sir Josiah Stamp and Dr. Schacht. Curiously, all three are old friends.

Mr. Young and Sir Josiah, it is now no secret, were the mainsprings of the original Dawes commission. This brainy Briton regards Owen Young as among the very foremost minds of the world today. And he freely conceded first honors to him for his Dawes Commission achievement. Mr. Young, similarly, has an extremely high regard for Stamp's ability. Dr. Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, is considered a diehard German, consumingly eager to drive the hardest of hard bargains on behalf of his country. Only the infinite patience of Young saved the present conference from deadlocking weeks ago.

Young and Stamp and Schacht all are gluttons for work. Mr. Morgan isn't. He has reached a time of life when he considers himself entitled to have his capable associates bear the brunt of the Morgan firm's colossal responsibilities. He keeps fully informed and does not hesitate to express his judgment when occasion arises, but, unlike his father, he derives no tremendous thrill from personally engineering great financial operations.

That this plan has worked admirably is proved by the fact that the Morgan firm is today far more influential and powerful—and, incidentally, wealthy—than ever in the heyday of its founder. It throbs with choice young blood, including a generous sprinkling of partners who are the sons of partners.

There probably will be a great reunion of Dawes Commission members when Ambassador Charles G. Dawes takes up his abode in London. He is most popular with these cronies.

MOST of our railway managers are old enough to remember terribly vividly how unpopular the railroads were 20 years ago. They are little likely to start anything calculated again to arouse the public ire. While the Supreme Court's O'Fallon decision theoretically opens the way to higher freight rates, it is wholly improbable that precipitate or drastic action will be attempted. Most railway managers have no desire to re-awaken government ownership clamor, now dormant. Moreover, stiff rates would foster competition on the oceans, on navigable rivers and on highways.

Had Wall street been in exuberant mood when this long-awaited decision came, you would have witnessed dazzling fireworks. But Wall street happened to be bearish; consequently, little happened.

The next big railway event now awaited is the attitude of the Interstate Commerce Commission toward huge consolidations. President Hoover's well-known championship of everything calculated to eliminate waste will have a potent influence, the financial world hopes, on the commission. If an epochal favorable decision were to come while the stock market was gay, there doubtless would be a spectacular demonstration. If not, not.

Wall street for quite some time has been swayed from day to day by sentimental and momentary influence rather than by profound, basic facts. When Wall street chooses to don blue glasses everything looks blue; when it puts on rose-colored glasses, it sees everything rosy. The rose-colored glasses seem to have been laid aside.

THROUGHOUT the country the Federal Reserve Board is a live topic of conversation. W. B. Foshay, utility leader of Minneapolis, who has been making a very extensive tour throughout the country, tells me:

"Some banks complained bitterly that they had been loaded up with government securities at the request of the Treasury Department, and the action of the Federal Reserve Board reduced the value of these securities. Then, the Federal Reserve Board objected to their putting their money on call to recuperate their losses.

"It seemed to be the consensus of opinion in every place I visited that if the Federal Reserve Board would repurchase some of those securities at what they were worth when they were sold to the banks, thus releasing the banks' funds for commercial purposes, the all commercial needs could be met and this additional available money would reduce the call money rate, thus sending money in New York back home, where it belonged."

Money and the Federal Reserve Board promise to become more than ever subjects for discussion and controversy.

Cotton Mills Face Crisis Owners Told

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 25.—(AP.)—Warning that the cotton mills were again on the road to disastrous overproduction was made here last night at the convention of representatives of the cotton industry by Lincoln Baylies, president of the American Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

The sessions, which are being held jointly by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and the American Manufacturers' Association, will continue tomorrow.

Nelson B. Gaskill, former member of the Federal Reserve Board, urged the representatives to reform their sales policy as a means of combatting the present "war for price."

Crops and Business Outlook.

There is considerable discussion of the business situation and the prospects for later in the year. Economists point out that much depends upon the crops harvested and the prices received by the farmer. Hence, the crop situation will probably be more closely watched from now on especially as to forecasts of results and prices than at any time in the past few months.

Sloss-Sheffield Steel.

Although Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company does not issue quarterly reports, it is understood that earnings in the first quarter did not equal common dividend of $1.50 for that period. This, coupled with the unfavorable outlook for southern pig iron, which is now selling at $15.50 a ton or around lowest level since 1915 and with operating costs at highest point on record, it is believed, prompted directors to omit the common dividend of $1.50 a share due to this time.

First sale of Sloss-Sheffield Steel common today was made at 60¼ shortly before 11:30 a. m. The previous sale was at 103, on May 3.

World Lead Output Gains.

World output of pig iron in April aggregated 161,736 short tons against 160,450 tons in March and 145,738 tons in April, 1928, according to the Bureau of Metal Statistics.

California Oil Situation.

An analysis of the current position of the oil industry indicates that satisfactory prices during the next few months will depend almost entirely upon the extent to which operators in California control production. For several months production in California has been at record levels and during april approximately 3,350,000 barrels were added to storage, bringing total stocks there to a new peak of 155,381,291 barrels. These stocks represent approximately one fourth of the total stored oil supplies in the entire United States.

ELECTION ENDS AUTO MEETING

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 25.—Allentown, a dark horse entry, was awarded the 1930 convention of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation at the closing session of the 1929 meeting here yesterday.

S. Edward Gable, of Lancaster, was re-elected president. Past presidents of the Federation are: Robert P. Hooper, Philadelphia, and Richard C. Haldeman, Harrisburg. Gable and Haldeman were elected Pennsylvania directors of the American Automobile Association with John A. Rupp, of Allentown, recommended as the third, the state being entitled to another due to increased membership.

One change was made in the vice-presidents, W. A. Kemerrer, of Scranton, being chosen to succeed Daniel R. Reese, also of Scranton. Other vice-presidents re-elected were: R. C. Richardson, Erie; Mr. Rupp, Allentown; W. W. Keck, Reading; Wills Fox, Pottsville; J. H. Dunn, Uniontown, and W. A. Leech, Chambersburg. Clinton R. Ellenberger, Stroudsburg, was re-elected treasurer.

Presenting facts to show the enormous increase in the number of motor vehicles in the state and nation and the resultant demand for improved roads, Gen. Edward Martin, of this city, state treasurer and chairman of the Republican State Committee, told delegates that the administration was doing its utmost to meet this situation.

Referring to the large sums collected through its gasoline tax, Gen. Martin said:

"It is true that Pennsylvania in 1928 collected a greater amount of motor vehicle revenues, including gasoline tax, than any other state, but Pennsylvanians who have travelled in other states will agree that they are as relatively far behind us in road improvement as we are ahead of them in the amount collected.

1 Killed, 2 Injured As Plane Crashes

JACKSON, Mich., May 25.—(AP.)—One man was injured fatally and two others critically here late yesterday in the crash of an open cockpit biplane from a height of approximately 300 feet.

Arthur I. Cohen, 50, a motor car salesman, died two hours after the accident. The pilot and owner of the plane, John Miller, 27, suffered a fractured skull and both legs of the other passenger, Howard Steere, 28, were fractured. Miller said he could not explain the accident.

Murder Trial Juror Convicted in Bribery

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 25.—(AP.)—A verdict of guilty, with recommendation of five years' imprisonment, was returned last night against B. P. Osburn, juror in the mistrial of Walter Liggett on a charge of murder. Osburn was charged with accepting a bribe. The jury deliberated 20 minutes.

Trays of Diamonds Taken by Robbers

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP.)—Several trays of diamonds valued by their owner at thousands of dollars were taken from a jewelry store in the Columbia University section of Manhattan yesterday by three robbers who had locked the owner, Sidney Singer, and a clerk in a rear room.

Window Glass Machine Change Discounted

Stocks held to a comparatively narrow range, with a steady price tone in the short week-end session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange.

Announcement of the capital change by the American Window Glass Company, involving the dissolution of American Window Glass Machine Company and distribution of American Window Glass common to the Machine stockholders was discounted last week when the stocks of the latter company shot up about 10 points. Neither Machine common nor the preferred showed any important change today. The preferred came into the market at 50, unchanged from the last previous sale recorded Thursday. There was no trading in the issue yesterday. The high on the anticipatory bulge was 52 last Monday, comparing with the price of 42 from which the advance started last week.

Announcement of dividends at the rate of $1.25 a year on the D. L. Clark shares brought no activity into that issue. The stock opened unchanged today at 17¾ and lost a small fraction later, apparently disregarding the rather favorable official comment as to April earnings.

There were no changes in the fuel group. Lone Star Gas ranged around 80, the present resting price, following the split-up announcement, and Western Public Service continued to change hands near $30 a share. The Arkansas issues were firm, but held close to the recently prevailing levels. It was stated officially that the company has purchased the franchises and distribution and pipe line systems of the Moran Corporation, operating in several parishes in Lousiana and in Union County, Arkansas.

Manufacturing issues were steady and generally quiet. A block of 425 National Fireproofing preferred came out at 34, unchanged, but the stock turned dull after the trade. The company received a tax refund of $84,000, according to Washington reports. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was practically unchanged.

GRIFFITH BEATS AL FRIEDMAN

CHICAGO, May 25.—(AP.)—Jerry (Tuffy) Griffith, Sioux City, Ia., making his debut as a heavyweight, decisively defeated Al Friedman, of Boston, in their 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium last night, knocking him down in the first and fourth rounds.

Griffith spotted Friedman five pounds in weight. He scaled 178 pounds, with Friedman tipping the beam at 183.

Luis Vicentini, veteran Chilean lightweight, scored a surprising upset when he won the verdict over Armando Santiago, knockout conquerer of Joey Sangor and Dick (Honey Boy) Finnegan, at the end of 10 close rounds. Vicentini, showing no fear of the Cuban's vaunted righthand, kept piling in, displaying a smart left hand which he continually popped into Santiago's face, keeping him off balance. They both weighed 133¾ pounds.

In the third 10-rounder, Jackie Fields, of Los Angeles, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the world welterweight champion, won a rather lopsided victory from Clyde Chastian, of Dallas, Tex. Chastian, who entered the ring with a record of 35 knockouts in 43 starts, failed to live up to his reputation as the walloping cowboy. They fought over the welterweight limit, Fields scaling 148¾ and Chastain 148¼.

The battles drew 17,300 spectators, with the gross receipts estimated at $62,000.

RACER UNHURT IN CRASH

INDIANAPOLIS, May 25.—(AP.)—Oil spots on the Indianapolis motor speedway track were ordered removed late yesterday after Carl Marchese, Milwaukee driver, skidded badly and narrowly escaped serious injury while practicing for the annual 500-mile race to be run Thursday.

Marchese lost control on the southwest turn, slid down against the inner retaining wall, bounded back, whirled around three times and finally stopped against the upper wall. He was going 100 miles an hour. Aside from a shaking up, he was uninjured. The axle and frame of the car, however, were badly bent. Some of the worst accidents at the local speedway have occurred in the southwest turn.

Drivers and Mechanics busied themselves making final arrangements for the qualifying trials which will begin today. The trials will continue through tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday. Marchese said he hoped to have his damaged car repaired in time to take his test Monday.

Interest Is High In Kennel Club Show

The great interest which is being taken in the West Penn Kennel Club's second annual dog show, to be held in Olympic Park, McKeesport on Saturday, June 22, is general all through Western Pennsylvania, especially throughout the upriver towns.

Indications point to a record breaking entry of the canine aristocrats throughout the district. Pittsburgh dogs which have made a record on the show circuit during the past year will be included in the big array of blooded dogs which will compete for the class, breed and group supremacy.

However, the novice and local exhibitor will be safeguarded against champion competition, many classes being set apart for the beginners and locals.

GIANTS EAGER TO REGAIN STRIDE

By LES CONKLIN.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Whether the New York Giants will be a threat in the National League race this year may be determined within the next few days when the McGrawmen play six games with Boston and Brooklyn before beginning their first Western trip of the year late next week.

On the verge of flopping into the cellar a few days ago, the Giants now have captured three games in a row, their longest winning streak of the season. A typical Giant spurt in the next few days would enable them to make up some lost ground and start against the Western clubs with increased momentum. But a slump now would send them back into the doldrums and ruin their morale for the coming invasion of the West.

DEFEAT BRAVES

Homers by Jackson and Roush featured New York's 7-to-3 win over Boston yesterday. The team's playing has improved 50 per cent since Manager John McGraw returned to active duty.

The Cubs knocked out Willie Sherdel in the eighth inning and nosed out the Cardinals, 5 to 4, regaining first place. Pat Malone, Chicago's strikeout artist, was effective except against Sunny Jim Bottomley, who did his best to win the game single-handed by clouting two home runs and a double.

The two teams clash again today in the rubber game of the series.

Gink Hendrick hit safely in his twentieth consecutive game as Brooklyn eked a 3-to-2 win over the Phillies. Bancroft stole home with the winning run while Friberg tried to run down another base runner.

MACKS WIN NINTH

The Athletics set a mark for their rivals to shoot at by chalking up their ninth straight victory, beating Washington, 10 to 3. Foxx, Simmons and Cochrane hit for the circuit.

It was Poppy Day in Boston and the Yankees popped up obligingly at the offerings of Danny MacFayden. The bespectacled twirler held the champions to four hits and blanked them 5 to 0, becoming the first hurler to whitewash them this year.

Jimmy Zinn, former American Association pitcher making his debut with Cleveland, had the misfortune to run up against Sam Gray on one of the veteran's good days and was beaten by the Browns, 5 to 0.

TILDEN TO QUIT CUP TENNIS

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP.)—The familiar figure of Big Bill Tilden will be seen no more in international tennis competition after the close of the present year.

In an article written by himself for a June issue of a magazine, the man who was six times champion of the United States and since 1920 has been recognized as the country's greatest player says:

"The year 1929 sees the end of my international tennis. I have had a grand time, but I must hereafter write and speak of my triumphs and failures in world tennis in the past tense, for I am through. Not through with the game, but through with international competition. My future status will continue to be amateur. I have no though or intention of turning professional."

He will continue to play, but as an individual, not as a member of any American team.

YANKEES LEAD IN CUP PLAY

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(INS.)—American success in the second round Davis Cup matches against Japan depends today upon two singles matches, which are to be fought out this afternoon between John Hennessy and Yoshira Ohta and John Van Ryn and Tamio Abe.

One victory would bring victory for the United States, as in the three matches already played the Americans have won two. Hennessy won his match against Abe Thursday, but Van Ryn went down to defeat again Ohta. The Americans yesterday captured the doubles, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

A distinguished gallery closely follows the matches. Nearly the entire diplomatic corps has attended one or more of the matches, which are being played at the Chevy Chase courts.

Bobby Jones Drills At Scene of Open

NEW YORK, May 25.—(INS.)—Golfers who will compete for the United States open championship at Winged Foot next month already are trying out the course. Bobby Jones took his first practice there yesterday and showed all of his old-time skill in scoring at 75.

Four American professionals—Leo Diegel, Al Watrous, Long Jim Barnes and John Golden—returned on the Aquitania yesterday from their invasion of England. Watrous went on to his home in Detroit.

Shires Apologizes, Gets Reinstated

CHICAGO, May 25.—(AP.)—Art Shires, White Sox bad boy, who was suspended for insubordination more than a week ago, apologized yesterday to Manager Lena Blackburn for his actions and was reinstated.

LEVIS FOILS CHAMP

NEW YORK, May 25.—(INS.)—Joseph Levis, of New York, who represented the United States in the last Olympics, today holds the national foils championship. In the tournament concluded here last night he scored three victories in as many matches. Lieut. George Calnan, of Annapolis, champion for the past four years, was second with two victories and one defeat. Frank S. Righeimer, of Chicago, Yale star, won the national epee title and Leo Nunes, of the New York A. C., captured the saber crown.

WINDOW GLASS FIRMS MERGE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE merging of the American Window Glass Machine Company and the American Window Glass Company into an organization having a single corporate identity will result in changes in accounting methods which will give the stockholders a truer picture of the actual earnings and worth of their property.

In the past the machine company operated as a holding company and the American Window Glass Company as a purely operating organization. The machine company owned all of the common stock of the window glass company and it also held the patents under which the subsidiary operated. The machine company derived its entire income from royalties on these patents in recent years.

THE American Window Glass Company, which actually produces the glass, has $4,000,000 in 7 percent preferred stock outstanding. Under the provisions of its agreement with the machine company this stock was entitled to receive dividends before any royalties could be paid. For some reason, however, the income accounts always deducted these royalties before reporting net earnings applicable for dividends. Thus, in one year a loss was reported, when, so far as the equity of the preferred stockholders were concerned, there was a profit in excess of the dividend requirements. The recapitalization plan will automatically make the future statements correctly show the earnings applicable to this preferred stock.

UNDER the plan the common stock of the American Window Glass Company will be split into 7 per cent class "A" stock and new common stock. The class "A" will be given share for share to the holders of the $6,999,600 of American Window Glass Machine 7 per cent preferred. The new common will be exchanged share for share for the 129,986 shares of old common of the machine company. The preferred stock og the American Window Glass Company will remain unchanged with a prior claim on earnings. The original relationship of all three classes of stock will be retained. The class "A" will carry with it the claim for unpaid cumulative dividends on the old machine company preferred. These have been in arrears since October, 1927.

The consolidation will also eliminate the misleading features of the statements of the machine company. The statement for the year ended August 31, 1927, as an instance, showed a substantial profit from royalties, when actually only a part of this had been earned since the operating company reported a loss.

THE machine company's balance sheet showed patents carried at $2,236,530 on August 31, 1928. No depreciation had been charged against these for years. Actually they were practically worthless. The last of them expired in March of this year. The statement of the reorganized company will not show any such fictitious asset.

The last balance sheet of the American Window Glass Company showed unpaid royalties due of $1,092,699 as a current liability. This item will be eliminated by the reorganization.

THE management has been aware of the misleading character of these statements for some time. Last October, W. L. Munro, president of both organizations, said that attempts were being made to consolidate the companies, but that the legal problems were causing difficulty.

Many stockholders now hope that the management will put into effect some accounting reforms in addition to those which will naturally result from elimination of the machine company. The balance sheets show plants, real estate and good will as a single item, so that there is no way to tell how much of the figure represents intangible values. Cash, notes and accounts receivable are also lumped together, so that no detailed analysis of the current financial position can be made.

SPLITUP VOTED BY UNITED GAS

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP.)—Directors of the United Gas Improvement Company yesterday voted a 5-for-1 split-up and issuance of valuable stock purchase rights to shareholders, subject to the latter's approval at a meeting August 21.

United Gas Improvement directors voted to convert the company's 6,000,000 $50-par stock into 40,000,000 no-par shares, divided into 35,000,000 common and 5,000,000 preferred. The company has no funded debt.

The present outstanding shares will be converted into no-par common and preferred on a basis of one-eighth of a no-par preferred share and five no-par common shares for each share of stock now held.

A stock allotment of 10 per cent of new common at $20 a share to common shareholders of record October 31 was proposed. The new common will be placed on a $1 annual basis, and the preferred stockholders will receive on the new preferred and common annual dividends equivalent to $5.62½ a share on the present stock, which now pays $4.50 annually.

Allison Engineering Acquired by G. M. C.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP.)—The Allison Engineering Company of Indianapolis has been acquired by General Motors Corporation, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, has announced.

The Allison company has been engaged in various mechanical developments, particularly in connection with aviation engines, including the Diesel type, and General Motors, Mr. Sloan said, will intensify and expand the company's operations along those lines.

WEATHER HOLDS TRADE BACK

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP.)—Dun's Review says:

Further evidence of monetary tension, with its decisive effect upon speculative operations, has eclipsed all other events of the week. Action apparently foreshadowing increased rediscount rates, and expectation of a rise at New York, precipitated a severe decline on the stock market, with liquidation of margined accounts intensifying the unsettlement. A natural recovery succeeded the period of rapidly falling prices, but the preceding losses were only partially regained. As usually happens during a time of financial disturbance, strictly commercial movements were largely disregarded, yet in the present case, various constructive phases are readily discernible. Conditions in certain of the major industries retain unusual strength, with the buoyancy of the steel trade altogether without parallel for this season, and the weather has remained the chief obstacle to a full growth of retail distribution. Even with that continuing handicap, the railroads are transporting goods in a volume not heretofore equaled in May, and labor troubles, although more numerous, apparently have not seriously curtailed the public buying power. Foreward ordering to cover summer needs has been retarded by the low temperatures over a wide area, but there is a distinction between this restraining influence and an inability of consumers to purchase freely.

Weekly bank clearings, $11,542,573,000, a decrease of 2.6 per cent from last year.

P.R.R. Asks Approval Of Bus Agreement

HARRISBURG, May 25.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania General Transit Company, the bus subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has asked the Public Service Commission to approve an agreement for the operation of the bus company's four trans-state routes by the Greyhound Lines, Inc.

The routes center on the Lincoln and William Penn highways and extend from New Jersey to Ohio, operation of intra-state service over which was recently granted by the commission. Under the terms of the agreement the Greyhound Lines would retain 48 cents per gross mile of revenue and everything above that amount would split on a 50-50 basis with the owner of the franchise.

At the same time the commission was requested to transfer the certificates for one of the routes held in the name of R. K. Stackhouse, head of the Railroad Bus Company, to the company.

HIGHWAY WORK TOPS RECORD

HARRISBURG, May 25.—(AP.)—Establishing a new record, road construction contracts awarded thus far in May and those to be signed before the end of the month will cost the state $20,562,833, the Department of Highways announced.

The projects to be contracted for during the month will cover slightly in excess of 500 miles. There is a balance of $28,918,358 in the motor fund to meet that and smaller obligations, exclusive of the $2,350,000 which is to be transferred from the general fund to the credit of highways to reimburse the department for the money it spent in constructing the new North office building in Capitol Park.

Unfavorable weather conditions of last fall and this spring have been primarily responsible for the large amount of May construction. The lettings, one of which was for 93 miles of new roads, and several bridges, were made especially large this month in order to catch up with the program mapped out last year by the department.

Hoover America's Mussolini, Says Cole Blease

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP.)—"Mussolini Hoover" was the title bestowed upon the President in the Senate yesterday by Senator Blease (Dem.), South Carolina.

"He wants to be president and he wants to be the House and Senate," Blease declared. "He appointed a cabinet most of whose members nobody ever heard of. He wanted them to come to the White House and get their orders and not have any opinions of their own."

"Hoover is to this country what Mussolini is to Italy," Blease shouted. "'Mussolini Hoover' is what he is."

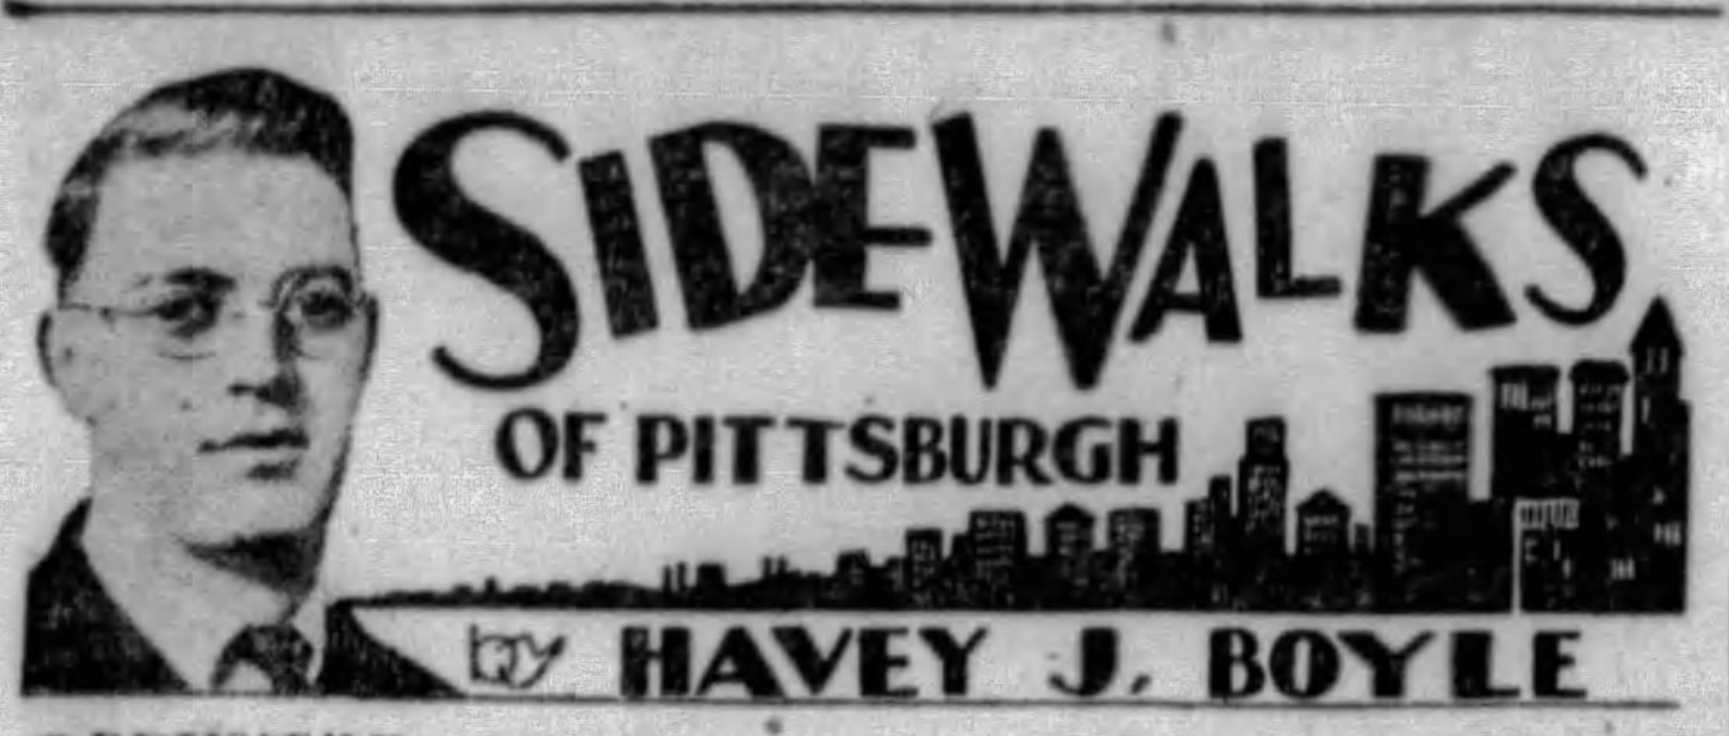
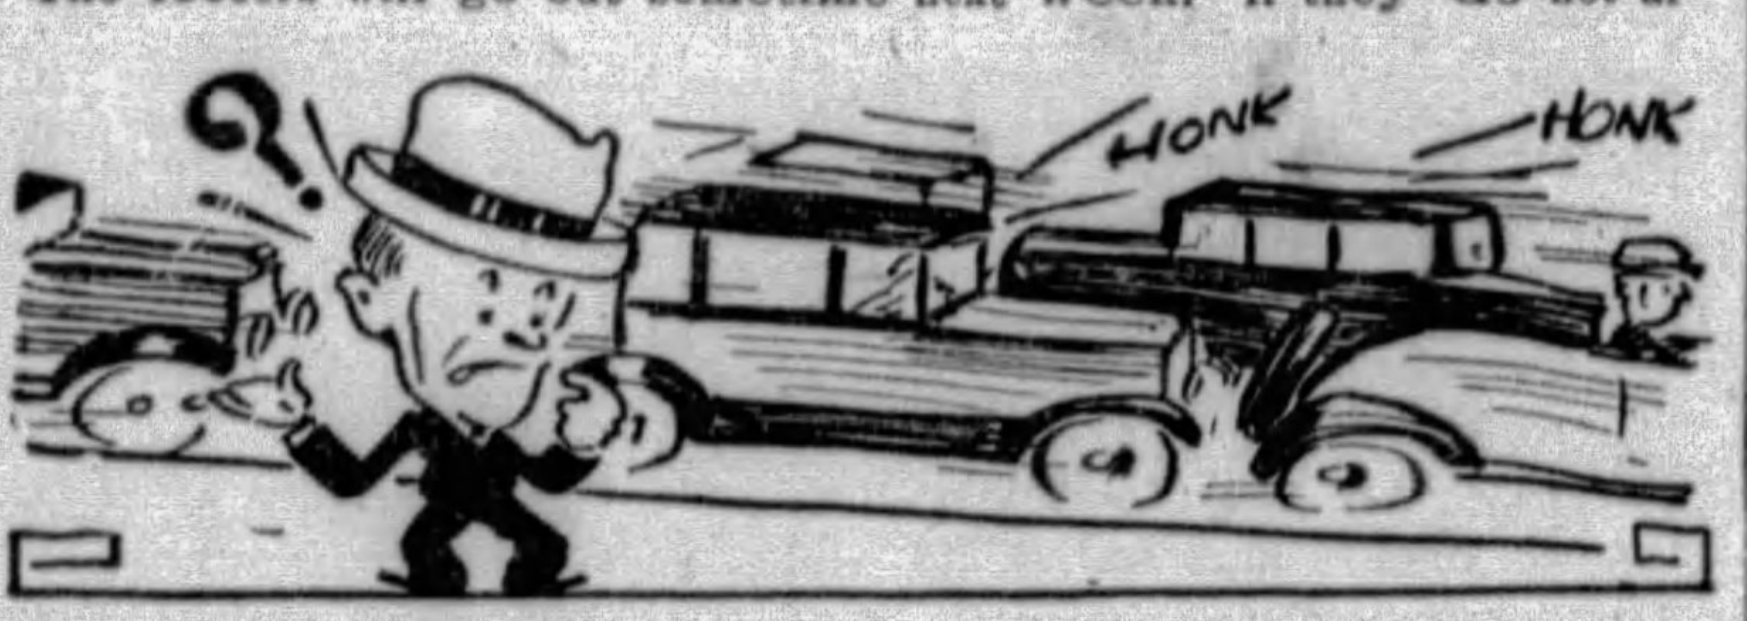
EAST END TO HOLD JOINT MEMORIAL



ORDINARILY, chain letters are a bother and usually aim at something not very sensible. There are such things, too, as chain-prayers, which, it seems here, are more ridiculous than chain letters. But comes to this desk a chain letter with a purpose that is laudable and the idea behind it is not bad because it will serve to impress upon every receiver the necessity of taking precautions in traffic.

"Cross Crossings Cautiously," is the heading over the letter. Then it says: "Avoidable accidents take a yearly toll in this country of ours which exceeds or equals the casualties of the war. I have resolved that from now on I will do everything in my power to save life, to prevent accidents to my fellow-men."

The letter is to be passed along to nine other men. A. Boyd Hamilton, secretary of the State Senate, sends the letter here. The letters will go out sometime next week. If they do not arrive the following gentlemen may call for them at this office: Mayor Charles H. Kline, James F. Malone, president of City Council; Councilmen Peter McArdle, John Herron, Robert Garland, Harry Little, Robert Alderdice, W. Y. English, Charles Anderson, Daniel Winters.



I don't suppose there is any harm in sending an extra one. Any others desiring the chain may apply to the Chain Letter Editor, Chain Letter Department, Chain Letter, Pa.

A pet hero, Honus Wagner, staged a blowout last night, observing his re-entry into trade. His feet, while possibly a little large, have never here been deemed to be of clay. His attention to the mascot, his attention to young players when he was in his prime, aside from his great native baseball ability, stamped him as the real goods.

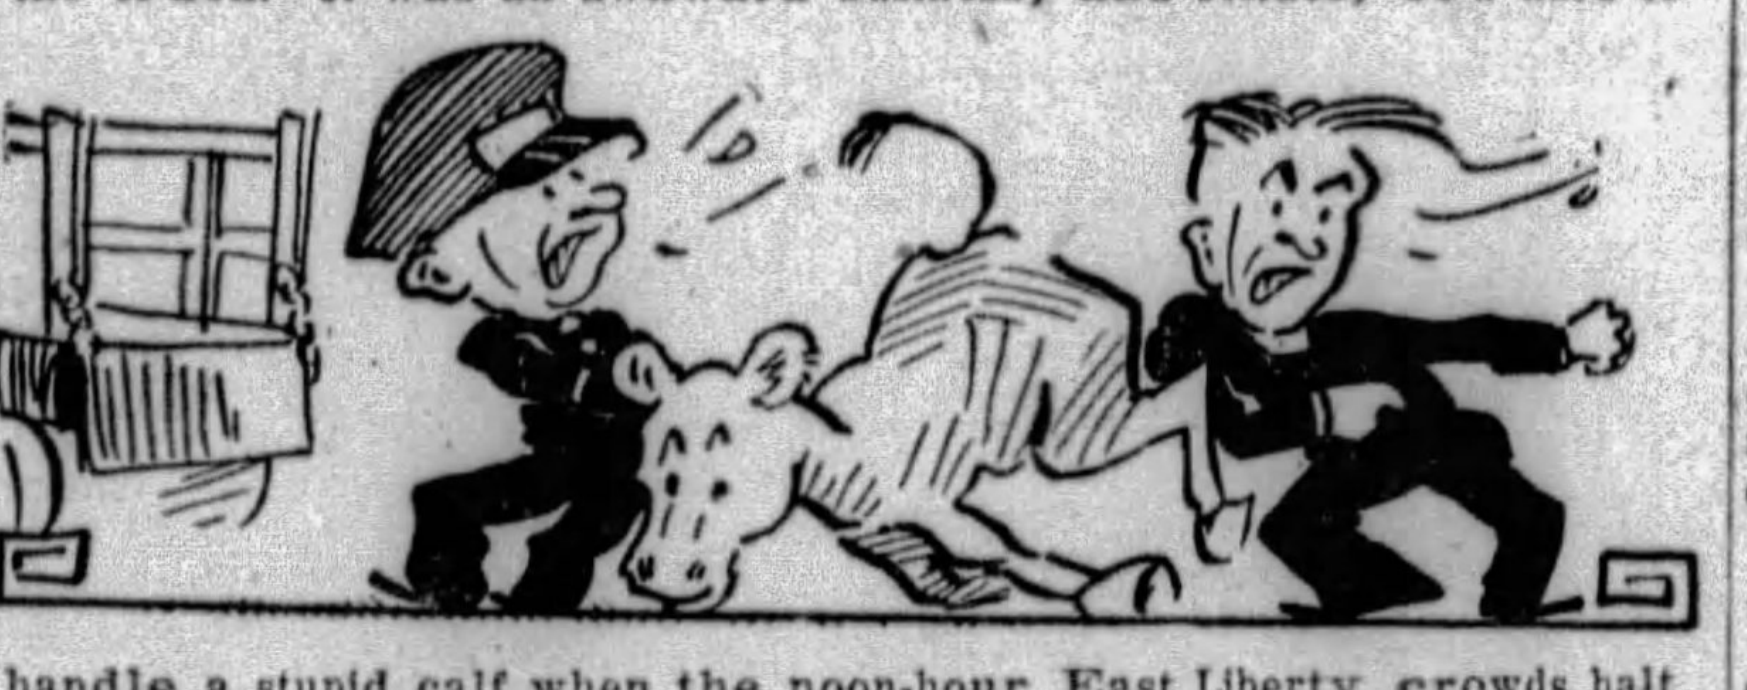
OFFICER JOHN MALONEY, at the corner of Frankstown and Penn avenues, was observing to Officer Harry Sweitzer that when the time came for his retirement from the force he thought he'd try to get himself a little acreage out in the country where men are men. Away from the city noises and in the midst of pastoral beauty, back to nature, as it were, ran the lyrics of the theme song.

About in the middle of such laudable musings a truck hove into view, carrying three calves to their doom. They were tied to the back of the drivers' seat. As the driver made a hasty swerve, one of the calves got loose and fell out of the truck. Officer Maloney and Sweitzer volunteered a hand to put the calf back on the truck. It was an awkward business, and besides, it's hard to handle a stupid calf when the noon-hour East Liberty crowds halt in their lunch hour walk, to observe the proceedings. Maloney and Sweitzer first took a half-Nelson on the calf, but without results. Next the scissors hold was tried, and then a head lock, followed by a full-Nelson. But the calf somehow managed to stay out of the truck.



At last Officer Maloney was struck by one of those rare inspirations which come to a man but once in a lifetime. While his fellow-officer and the driver held the calf, Officer Maloney climbed onto the truck, asked that the calf be backed up to him, and then he grabbed the calf's tail and by such reverse direction caused the calf to understand that the main point in the game was to get onto the truck. Until then, the calf had been playing under the impression that your score went up to 100 only by managing to stay out of the truck.

Once it was suggested to the calf by discreet tugs at its tail that the officers and the calf had been until then working at cross purposes the calf obligingly allowed himself to be hauled onto the truck.

End of Reel One.

Flag Contest Victors To Visit West Point

West Point is one of the famous historic spots on the itinerary laid out for the Regional Flag Champions during their Patriotic Pilgrimage through the East early in June.

At the United States Military Academy, the travelers will have an opportunity to watch one of the most inspiring sights available to Americans today—the Cadets in their daily drills.

The entire world is acquainted with the beauty and splendor of West Point and with the morale and discipline which make the Academy one of the finest of military schools.

Before reaching this training school of American army officers, the Regional Flag Champions will have had an opportunity to inspect the famous battlefields of Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill.

Staying at one of the nation's finest and newest hotels, the youthful patriots will see Boston and old New England at first hand, an invaluable part of any child's education today.

Meanwhile, however, the local judges are reviewing the papers which will decide who the regional winners representing the Pittsburgh District will be. Announcement of their names should be made in a very few days, and the date of departure has been set for May 31.

NEW ZONE LAW APPROVED BY BRENTWOOD

Ordinance Provides Five Districts for Control Of Structural Work

Disputes similar to that now in the courts, in which a property owner in Brentwood procured an order in mandamus, calling on the council to show cause why a permit was not issued for the erection of a duplex in that borough, will be obviated by action of the borough in accepting the report of the zoning commission.

The report definitely fixes conditions under which buildings may be erected and the conclusions reached were the result of close study and application by the commission.

The commission, appointed by Council several months ago, are: Walter J. Welden, chairman; F. L. Stein, secretary; J. J. Miller, Charles R. Stevens and Harry Viehman.

An attempt was made two years ago for the zoning of the borough, but was defeated by Council.

Mr. Welden stated that the ordinance follows closely along the lines of Pittsburgh's ordinance, with the exception of the zoning in heights. It includes use of land, area of yards, courts and other open spaces. It provides for five zones, namely. Light industrial, commercial and three classifications of residences. The latter is grouped A, B and C.

A—Includes one and two-family dwellings, double and multiple dwellings. B—One and two-family dwellings, double houses and duplexes. C—Is restricted to single family dwellings only.

The area zoning is divided into four districts.

PEABODY HIGH STAGES PLAY

Peabody High School students, under the direction of Mrs. Virginia Yeamans, gave their annual dramatic production last night in the Nixon Theater. Clare Kummer's cleverly dialogued "A Successful Calamity" was the happily chosen vehicle in which the young actors and actresses acquitted themselves commendably.

Sherrard Van Trump, in the role created more than a decade ago by William Gillette, showed especial naturalness and histrionic ability. Others in the cast were Rebecca Loeffler, Bertha Pearl O'Neal, Ralph Whithead, Richard Frey, Eugene Kelly, Ruth Ludebuehl, Melvin Evans, Harry Davidson, John Coll, Robert Scott and Ruth Nirella. Commendation is due also to Jack Strayer as stage manager, Alfred Eichenlaub, property man, and Elizabeth Ackerman, property woman. The school orchestra played several entre'acte selections with excellent musicianship under the baton of Wallace Frost.

TREE PROMPTS LAW SUIT

A tree or not a tree, that is the question Common Pleas Court will have to decide as the result of an equity action started by Thomas Jenkins, Dr. W. H. Grimm and his wife, Elsie Grimm, of 2144 Wightman street, against their neighbors, J. M. Woolson and Jewell Woolson, his wife, 2140 Wightman street.

The tree in question is an ordinary locust tree. To the Woolsons, it is a thing of beauty, and to many children in the neighborhood a welcome refuge from burning summer sunshine. But, to Jenkins and the Grimms, the tree is nothing more than a big nuisance and a heavy expense because, they contend, its branches spread several feet over their house, rub against their spouts and gutters in winter, necessitating repairs and replacements in the spring.

For these reasons, they have asked the court for an injunction against the maintenance of the tree and an order for the cutting of the offending branches, stating that the Woolsons refused to abate the nuisance.

Woolson says he instructed his gardner to cut the branches.

Mrs. Grimm said that she, her husband and father had been put to a big expense in repairing the spouts damaged by the branches and for cleaning them.

PRESENTS TALK ON TRAFFIC

Traffic problems date back to the old Roman Empire and as early as 1812 and 1820 laws were passed with a view to curbing what was looked upon as speeding and "unauthorized obstruction of roadways," J. V. Long, director of education promotion, Better Traffic Committee, told members of the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce at their weekly meeting.

"These problems of traffic confronting us now are not of recent creation, but their growth as the automobile industry has increased in size, has made the situation decidedly acute," he said in part. "Concentration of vehicles in cities has created traffic congestion which faces every municipality."

Installation of electric and traffic control signal systems were given as means of providing a freer flow of traffic through business areas. Success of the system in use in East Liberty has proven the value of traffic control devices, he said.

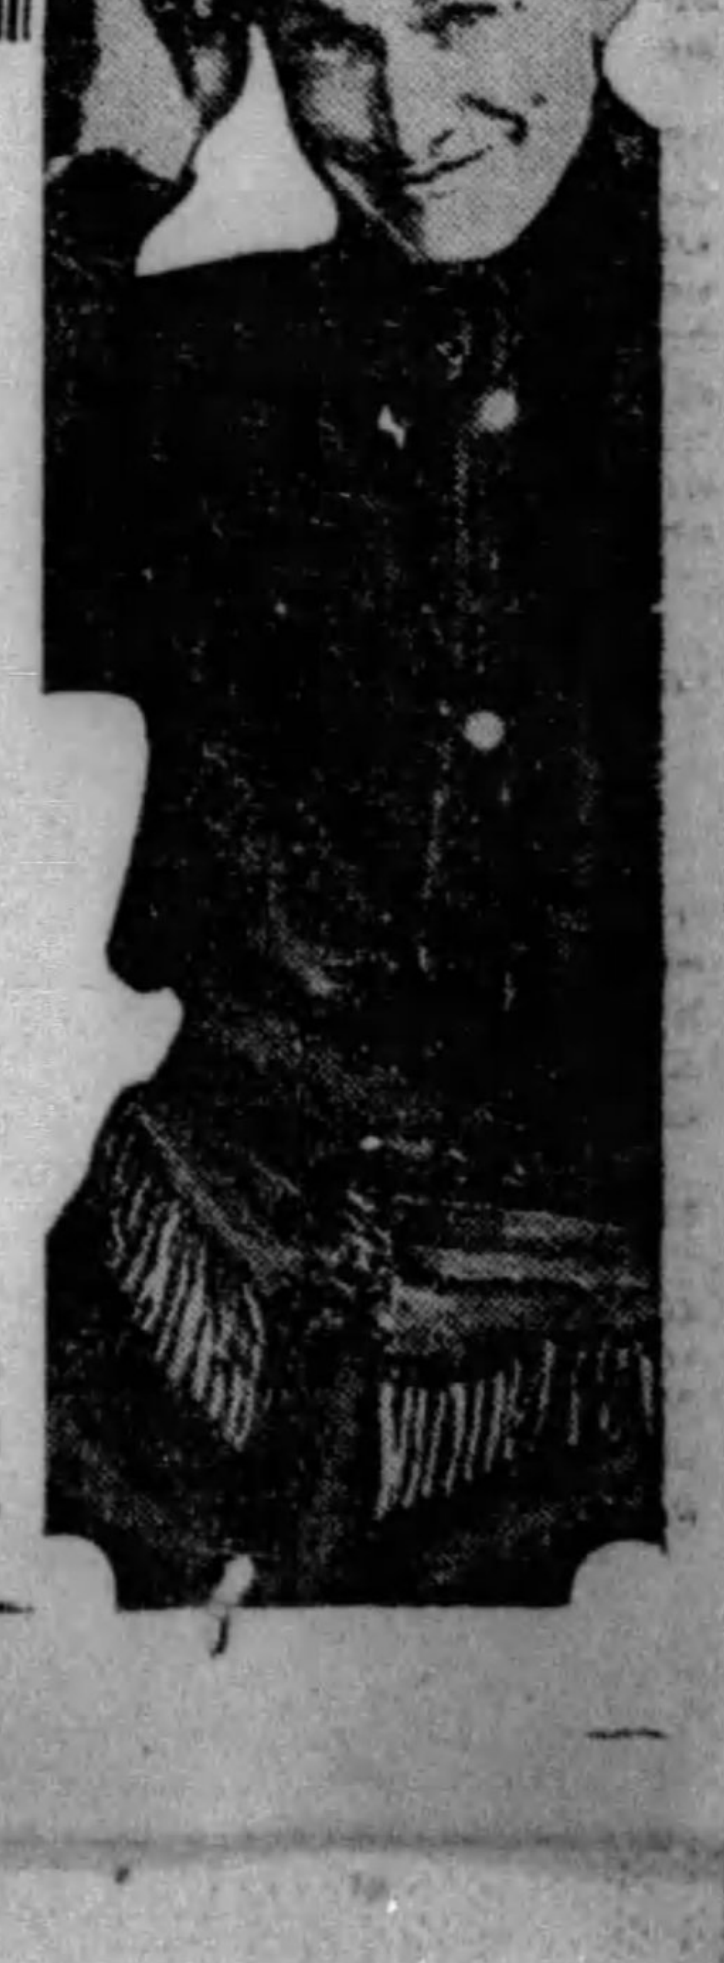
Will Rogers Says



DETROIT, May 25.

Did you know that the only bill that has really passed the House and Senate and been signed by the President is the bill appropriating the salary of the members of this extra session?

The farmers can grow whiskers, the orphans can grow up, the tariff can tear out the vitals of the consumer's purse, but the boys there want theirs in advance, whether they deliver any relief to anybody else or not.

Yours, WILL.

P. S.—Ford's city of Detroit is going great. Don't let 'em tell you any different. As Ford goes, so goes Detroit.

Quake Recorders Broken; Blame Superstition

FLORENCE, Italy, May 25.—(AP.)—Superstition is believed to lie behind the wanton destruction of valuable seismographical instruments in the observatory here presided over by the celebrated seismologist, Father Alfani.

Father Alfani returned from a trip to Bologna province, which recently was stricken by a series of earth shocks, and found that vandals had broken his precious instruments. Some of the apparatus destroyed had been invented and constructed by the priest himself and cannot be replaced without vast labor.

Police think that the long continued series of earth shocks may have aroused a belief in the minds of the vandals that the seismographical instruments had something to do with causing them. Two young men have been arrested.

Trade Tourists Aid Drive For Cut in Wage Tax

Members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce good will tour through Western Pennsylvania cities, returning home last night, scored a success in preaching the gospel for a lower tax on earned incomes, as well as in promoting friendly relations for Pittsburgh.

Representatives of 100 of Pittsburgh's leading business concerns on the trip signed Sun-Telegraph petitions to Congress asking a downward revision of the tax on the earnings of professional people and wage workers. The first to sign was President James Rae, who re-affirmed the action taken by the chamber some weeks ago when its 6,000 members were placed on record indorsing the movement for the reduction of the income tax.

The action of Chamber of Commerce tourists this week was followed by citizens in the cities and towns on the itinerary, many bankers, merchants and manufacturers as well as professional men joining in assisting the cause. As a result Western Pennsylvania has a representative support to offer Congress in urging tax revision.

The business men of Jeannette yesterday signed petitions in large numbers, practically every important banker, merchant and manufacturer in the town giving his indorsement. In addition many industrial and mercantile employes signed petitions.

In Beaver County the campaign is making headway. The Beaver Valley Manufacturers' Association at a board meeting next week will take up the question of indorsing a reduction of the tax on earned incomes. In McKeesport many business houses have recorded 100 per cent in the signatures of all who are eligible to protest the present tax on earned incomes.

AND THE

DUQUESNE LIGHT COMPANY, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (hereinafter called "Company"), party of the second part.

WHEREAS, the City of Pittsburgh has installed for the control of traffic an electric signal system at or near approximately one hundred street intersections in the territory of the City commonly known as the Downtown Triangle, bounded by the Allegheny River on the north, the Monongahela River on the south, and a line running approximately north and south in the general vicinity of Eleventh street and Washington place; and,

WHEREAS, the City desires that the Company shall furnish electric service for said electric signal system; and,

WHEREAS, the City may desire the Company to do certain other work necessary in conjunction with the said electric signal system, such as the moving of poles, installation of new poles, installation of new conduits, etc., after the Company's original construction work in connection with the said electric signal system has been accepted by the Director;

NOW, THEREFORE, KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS:

That for and in consideration of the premises and the mutual covenants contained herein, it is agreed by the parties hereto as follows:

1. Maintenance of Cables and Conduits.

The Company shall maintain all cables and conduits installed by the Company for the use of the City in connection with the said electric signal system, and the City shall pay the Company for such maintenance, in addition to the cost of furnishing energy, as hereinafter provided, an amount equal to the cost of such maintenance, which cost shall be limited to materials and labor plus fifteen per cent. (15%), which cost, however, shall not include any supervision or overhead charges. It is understood and agreed that the said maintenance shall include any such extensions, renewals or replacements as are necessary, authorized and approved by the Director, in writing, for the efficient operation of the said electric signal system or any additions thereto, as authorized by the City of Pittsburgh.

2. Furnishing of Energy.

The Company shall furnish service to the City for the said electric signal system under its regular filed Tariff "E," or any revised tariff in place thereof and applying thereto, or at the choice of the City under any tariff applying thereto but not in place thereof, the service agreement therefor to be for a period of ten (10) years from the date of connection. During the period of adjustment of the system, which shall not exceed thirty (30) days after date of connection, an accurate record of the number of hours during which the system is in operation shall be kept by the Traffic Engineer of the Bureau of Traffic Planning of the City of Pittsburgh, who shall each time notify the Company when the system is to be placed in trial operation and when said trial operation has been terminated.

Payment for energy used shall be on the basis of the total estimated kilowatt hours per month.

In case of shutdowns of the electric signal system or any part thereof for periods longer than one hour subsequent to the time when the system is placed in regular operation, the Traffic Engineer shall notify the Company at the beginning and end of the shutdown period and the Company shall make a pro rata reduction in the next bill for energy.

3. Relocating of Poles.

If any pole having a traffic signal, sign or control box thereon is relocated for any reason, except to improve the effectiveness of the signal as installed, after the Company's original construction work in connection with such electric signal system has been accepted by the Director of the Department of Public Safety of the City of Pittsburgh, or if any other pole is to be relocated in connection with or for the benefit of the said electric signal system, except at the request of the Duquesne Light Company, in which case the Company shall pay the entire cost of said relocation, the Company shall make the necessary rearrangement of underground cables and conduits, and shall relocate such poles if requested by the Director of the Department of Public Safety. The City shall pay the Company for the actual cost of the work done by the Company, except for service connection or other work properly to be done by the Company, on the basis of the cost of labor and material actually furnished plus fifteen (15%) per cent, which 15% shall be in lieu of all supervision and overhead charges; and provided, further, that in case of the relocating of a pole solely for the purpose of improving the effectiveness of a signal as installed, then and in that event the Company shall relocate the pole or poles as ordered by the Director of the Department of Public Safety of the City of Pittsburgh, and the City shall pay the cost of the labor and material actually furnished in relocating of said poles plus fifteen (15%) per cent, which 15% shall be in lieu of all supervision and overhead charges, and in addition thereto shall pay the cost of the service connection. It is further provided that if the relocation of any pole is made for the benefit of or at the request of the Duquesne Light Company, then and in that event the Company shall pay the entire cost of said improval and/or relocation.

4. Additions and Changes.

The Company agrees to do such additional work in connection with the said electric signal system as may from time to time be authorized by the City, orders for such work to be given by the Director in writing. The City shall pay the Company for such work on the basis of cost of labor and materials, plus fifteen (15%) per cent., except for service connection and other work properly to be done by the Company.

5. Rendering of Bills.

All bills for maintenance and energy shall be billed and payable monthly.

6. Right of City Employes.

BUGS BAER Says

ONE HAT YOU CANNOT CHECK

SCIENCE has figured out everything about straw hats. Except how to wear them.

Straw hats are man's contribution to sartorial chaos. Nobody knows whether the weight of the hat should be borne by the eyebrows or the ears.

"Bugs" Baer

When we go into a fashion garage to purchase the light summer tureen we never look into a mirror. That would be compounding a facial felony.

You cannot put a round hat on a square peg.

The result is that every alfalfa platter we purchase looks like a berry box during a continued drought.

A soft hat will fit the skull because you can bend the hat. But straw skimmers do not fit because you cannot bend bone.

You will notice that great men like Napoleon and Washington never had their pictures snapped while wearing grass turbans.

But the dome must be protected from the enthusiastic sun in summer. If you wear a derby in July the neighbors say you are stingy. If you wear no hat at all, you are crazy. If you wear a sunbonnet, you are effeminate. And if you wear one of those flat straw discs, you look like an ex-robot dodging jury duty.

They keep the air out and the heat in. Orville Wright got the idea for his glider while chasing his brother Wilbur's hay kelly in a 10 per cent breeze.

Did you ever notice that no man ever chases his own straw helmet when it blows off? He just stands there with his feet in escrow while kind strangers organize a posse of perplexed deputies and pursue the elusive headgear hither and thither and yon. Three places which are not on the map.

After it plays tiddly-winks with traffic for 10 minutes you get your weed sombrero back again with the rim and the band missing and the rest of the hat looking like the egg-in-the-bag trick.

Another selling point about split sennit and leghorn is the ease with which these fragile materials dissolve in a rainstorm. Some manufacturers consolidate their goods with glue and there is no finer sensation in the world than to feel a rivulet of mucilage running down your spinal detours.

Five minutes of steady rain on a straw hat and you are an uncrowned king. Some men sacrifice their reputation for bravery under fire and hide their hats under their coats.

This action saves the hat but you are liable to lose your citizenship papers.

We also protest against the laws of a negligent republic which permit the average pedestrian to select his own colored hat band.

You cannot visualize anything more moronic than a pink, green, red and yellow hat band entwined in futuristic agony above anyone's face.

It is just as astonishing as baby talk coming out of a full beard.

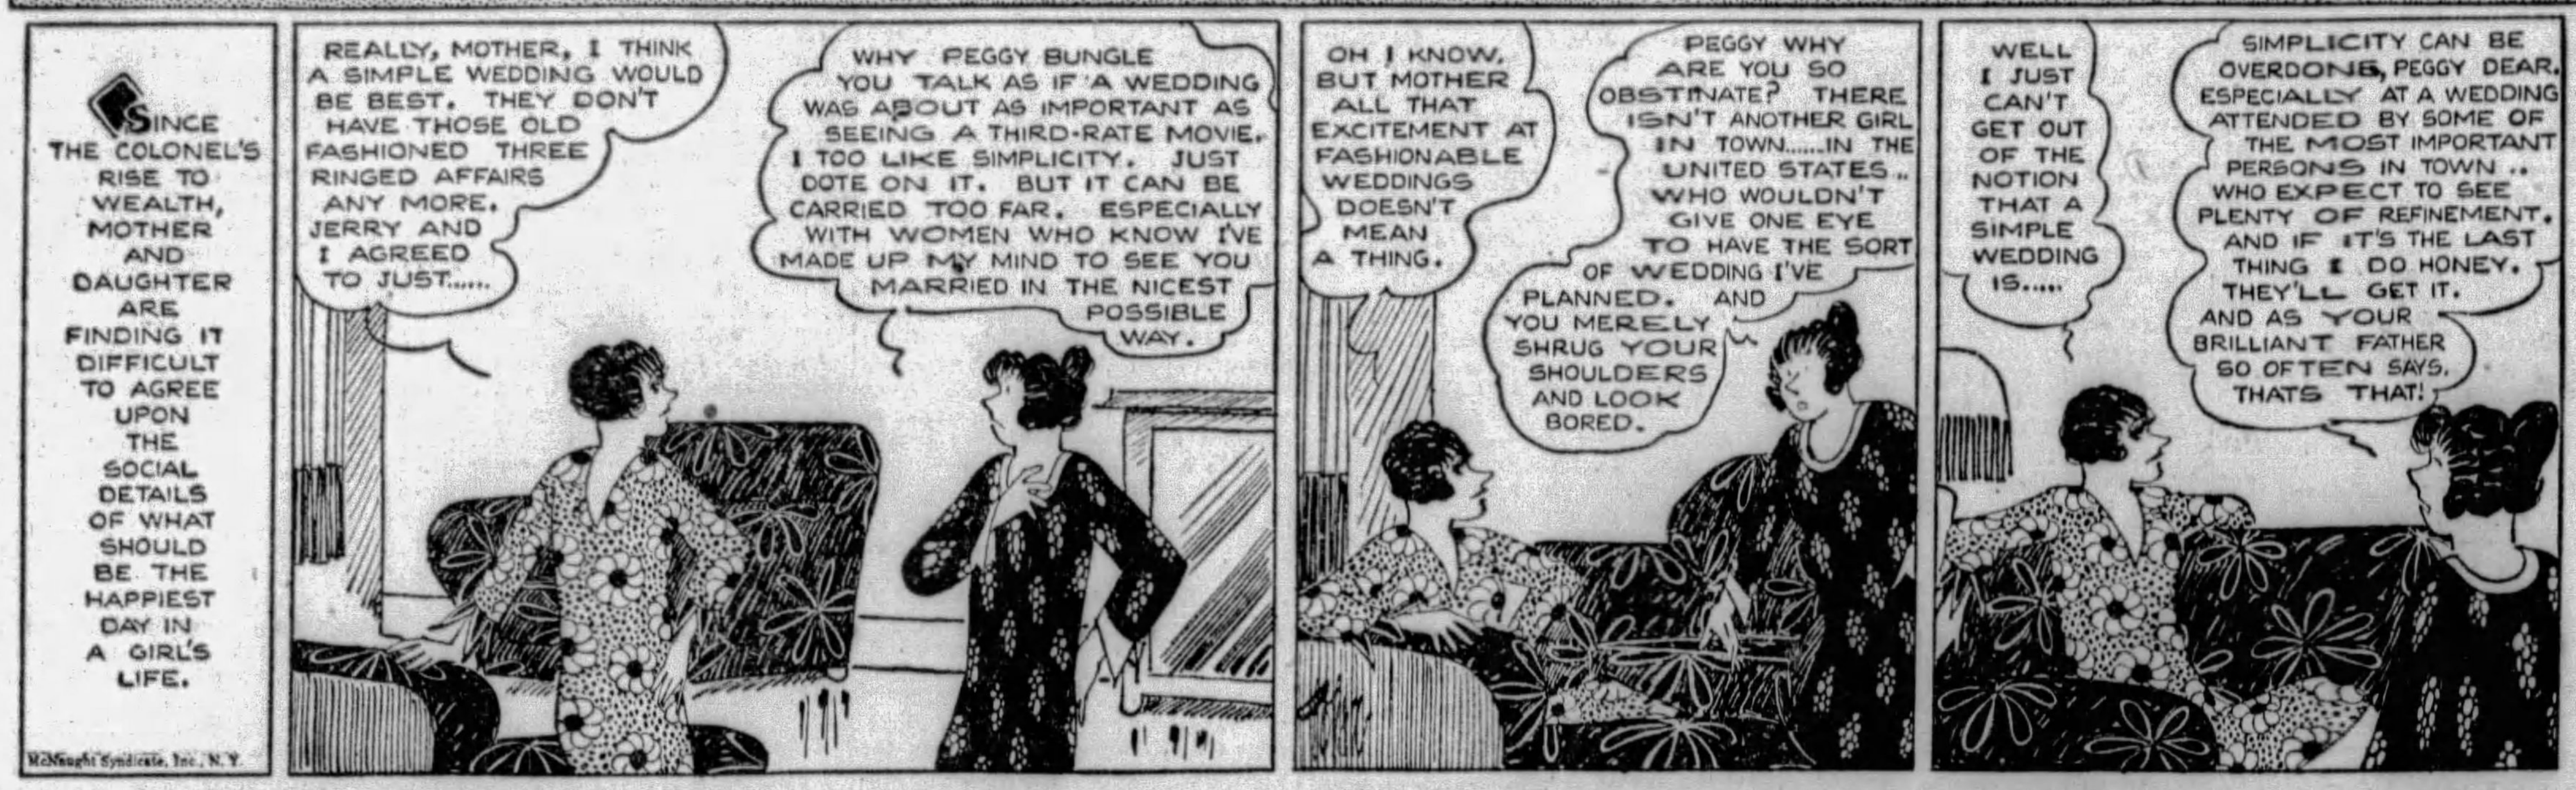
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Get Ready, Folks



SINCE THE COLONEL'S RISE TO WEALTH, MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE FINDING IT DIFFICULT TO AGREE UPON THE SOCIAL DETAILS OF WHAT SHOULD BE THE HAPPIEST DAY IN A GIRL'S LIFE.
REALLY, MOTHER, I THINK A SIMPLE WEDDING WOULD BE BEST. THEY DON'T HAVE THOSE OLD FASHIONED THREE RINGED AFFAIRS ANY MORE. JERRY AND I AGREED TO JUST.....
WHY PEGGY BUNGLE YOU TALK AS IF A WEDDING WAS ABOUT AS IMPORTANT AS SEEING A THIRD-RATE MOVIE. I TOO LIKE SIMPLICITY. JUST DOTE ON IT. BUT IT CAN BE CARRIED TOO FAR. ESPECIALLY WITH WOMEN WHO KNOW I'VE MADE UP MY MIND TO SEE YOU MARRIED IN THE NICEST POSSIBLE WAY.
OH I KNOW, BUT MOTHER ALL THAT EXCITEMENT AT FASHIONABLE WEDDINGS DOESN'T MEAN A THING.
PEGGY WHY ARE YOU SO OBSTINATE? THERE ISN'T ANOTHER GIRL IN TOWN......IN THE UNITED STATES.. WHO WOULDN'T GIVE ONE EYE TO HAVE THE SORT OF WEDDING I'VE PLANNED. AND YOU MERELY SHRUG YOUR SHOULDERS AND LOOK BORED.
WELL I JUST CAN'T GET OUT OF THE NOTION THAT A SIMPLE WEDDING IS.....
SIMPLICITY CAN BE OVERDONE, PEGGY DEAR, ESPECIALLY AT A WEDDING ATTENDED BY SOME OF THE MOST IMPORTANT PERSONS IN TOWN .. WHO EXPECT TO SEE PLENTY OF REFINEMENT. AND IF IT'S THE LAST THING I DO HONEY. THEY'LL GET IT. AND AS YOUR BRILLIANT FATHER SO OFTEN SAYS. THATS THAT!

Jim and Ella have had their first quarrel since they became engaged —
I FEEL ORNERY AS A PUP FOR TALKING TO ELLA THE WAY I DID! I'LL ASK HER TO FORGIVE ME, AND IF SHE DOESN'T, I'LL PUNCH MYSELF IN THE JAW!
I'VE JUST GOT TO TELL POOR JIM I'M SORRY FOR BEING SO SHARP TO HIM! IT'S A WONDER I DIDN'T CUT MYSELF WITH MY TONGUE! HELLO—WHAT? OH—LINE'S BUSY!
I CAN'T GET HER ON THE PHONE— I'LL RUN OVER AND PRESENT MY APOLOGIES IN PERSON—WITH FLOWERS!
I'LL SURPRISE JIM BY CALLING ON HIM AND MAKING UP OUR QUARREL— YOU CAN'T MAKE UP AS SWEETHEARTS SHOULD OVER A TELEPHONE WIRE!

So of course they missed one another! But they'll make up all right—at first it looked as though they mightn't!

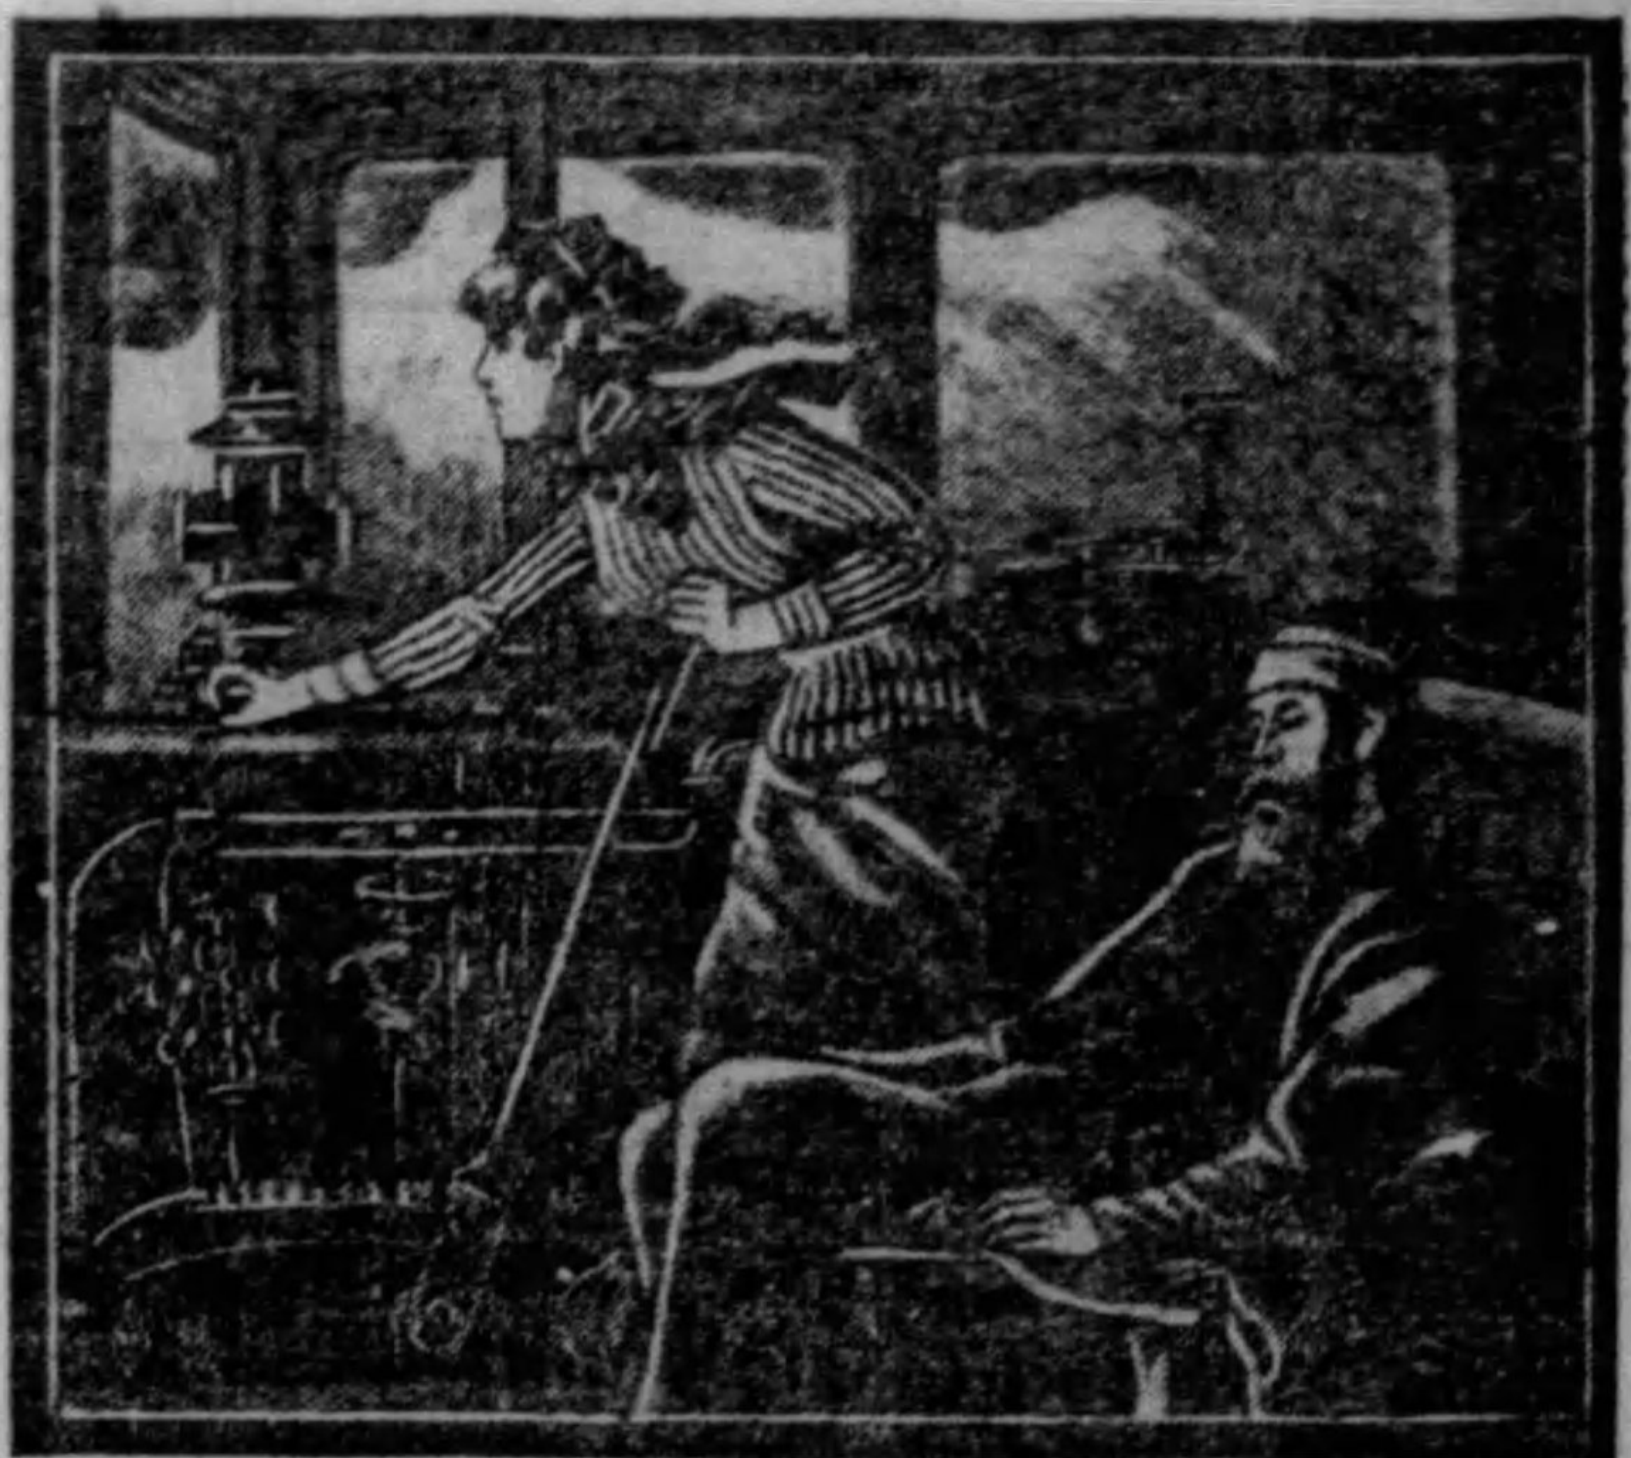
A FRIEND INDEED IS A FRIEND IN NEED



STRANGE thing happen in the radio broadcasting stations—little deeds of heroism that you little realize as you sit toying with the dial. Above you see a young and pretty girl, leaping to the microphone to carry on, when Mr. McNamee, the announcer, suddenly suffered sunstroke and exhaustion from overtalking. It must have been something he ate.

We gladly pay little or nothing for authentic snapshots like the above. If you happen to see a murder—or anything startling—send it in to our Hot Stuff editor.

Woman seeks $31,000 damages for injuries sustained while trying on a fur coat, when the clerk jerked away a chair on which she intended to sit.

Some high-pressure salesmen will go to any lengths to make an impression.

Well, it breaks the ice.

The customer, had she been a good sport, would have gotten up and playfully kicked the salesman's shins. After a hearty laugh she could have asked for a discount.

* * *

Mebbe the clerk felt sorry for the customer and was merely trying to bring her to her senses.

There is beauty everywhere—
In an old and easy chair,
In the arms and in the legs,
In the faded fabric—dregs...
Dregs of beauty in that chair,
Shades of ladies with their hair
Done in netting...shoulders bare,
Cool as porcelain...a look
Like a thing from Godley's book
We're not paid for thoughts like these.
Just a slip. Excuse it, please.

In regard to the rise of women it still holds good, of course, that what goes up must come down. Nor is there very much doubt upon who's neck.

Buy and Wear a Poppy In Honor of 'Our Boys'

Poppy Day!

Buy a buddy poppy today and help our able veterans to help their former comrades in arms who are in need of assistance. Buy one and wear it on Decoration Day in memory of our soldier and sailor dead and in honor of the veterans of '61, '98 and '18.

Until a few years ago, when men with cannon and muskets and bayonets made the fields of Flanders a vast waste land, the poppy had no special significance for us. In our gardens the cultivated varieties bloomed and gave us pleasure, but most of us were not even aware that a small wild poppy, sturdy as our own field daisy, was wont to take root and thrive in fallow grounds of Europe.

The European poppy came to our notice especially through a poem having the immortal lines:

> “In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
> Between the crosses, row on row.”

So when you buy a poppy today remember that it has two meanings. One lies in its symbolism of the sward between the crosses beneath which are some of our own boys, lying in eternal rest. Its practical significance is the help purchase of it affords to many unable, except in spirit, to hold aloft the torch flung to them by hands of those now silent beneath the crosses of France.

Safety Record Made Here; 'No-Accident Year' Plan

As a result of especial efforts to be careful, employes of the Duquesne Light Company reduced accidents more than half in the 1928-29 period, as compared with the 1927-28 period. This worthy record was revealed at a meeting of foremen, supervisors and executives of the company held in preparation for the company's “June-No-Accident-Month” campaign. There also will be an effort to make the coming 12 months a “No-Accident Year.”

The Duquesne Light Company was a safer place to work during the past year than the average industry of the same type throughout the United States. Its accident rate was below the national average by 54 per cent.

It is with pleasure and pride that we record such achievements. Nothing is more precious than life, and every accident avoided or prevented controls a potential taker of life.

World Court First Step Into League of Nations

Q. Why do they call the World Court a League Court? I thought its name was the permanent Court of International Justice.

A. So it is, but it is the League's Court by every test that defines ownership.

Q. What do you mean?

A. Well, the League of Nations assembly adopted the Constitution of the Court and changes the constitution at its will.

Q. Is that all?

A. No, the league members elect and pay the judges.

Q. What else?

A. The main business of the Court is to interpret and help enforce the covenant of the League, which we refused to join.

Q. Anything more?

A. Nobody can join the Court but League members and nations “mentioned in the annex” of the covenant of the League of Nations.

Q. Then how can the United States get in?

A. It is “mentioned in the annex.”

Q. What is the “annex”?

A. It is a brief list of those for whom the League's door is still held ajar. By the way, did you ever read the protocol we shall sign on joining the World Court?

Q. No.

A. It reads:

“The members of the League of Nations, through the undersigned, duly authorized, declare their acceptance of the adjoined statute of the permanent Court of International Justice, which was approved by unanimous vote of the assembly of the League of Nations on the 13th of December, 1920, at Geneva.”

Q. So that is the Court Elihu Root proposes to take us into. Doesn't he know it is a part of the League?

A. Certainly. Mr. Root was one of the body of distinguished international lawyers who framed the constitution of the Court for adoption by the League. Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the League, told the committee when it went to work:

“The Court is to be the most essential part of the League of Nations.”

Q. That doesn't prove that Elihu Root thought the Court was necessarily tied up with the League.

A. Mr. Root in the discussions of the committee framing the Court, said:

“We must first consider that this new Court must be provided for as a part of the system of which the League of Nations is a part. We cannot accept the invitation of the council and recommend a plan for a Court which is not going to form a part of the system of the League of Nations.”

Q. Goodness, do you think Mr. Root will get us into the League of Nations if he gets us into this Court?

A. That has always been the opinion in Europe. Mr. Hagerup, of Norway, when he reported the constitution of the World Court to the League of Nations for adoption in December, 1920, said:

“You know that a representative of the United States in America, a man of the highest authority, Mr. Elihu Root, took part in the preparation of this constitution. The political party to which he belongs in the United States will soon come into power and though this party has not yet decided to go into the League of Nations, it has proclaimed in a resolution that it is quite prepared to accept the Court. I think I shall be voicing the general sentiments of the assembly when I say this resolution has within it important results. It is the first step leading to the entrance of the United States into the League.”

Q. Great heavens, what can Mr. Root be thinking of?

A. Probably the same thing that Mr. Hagerup was thinking of.

Tales That Are Told

Strictly Private

HE was a newcomer to the bank and, consequently, found his duties rather hard to remember; but all this was forgotten when he received his first pay envelope.

In a businesslike manner he quickly checked the contents before signing the receipt. Then his eyes caught the words underlined in black:

“Your salary is your personal business and a confidential matter. It should not be disclosed to anyone.”

The new clerk grinned as he picked up a pen and signed his name. Below he added briefly:

“I won't mention it to anybody. I am as much ashamed of it as you are.”

The Last Straw

PERCIVAL PENPUSHER had heard the call of the open spaces and answered it. He threw up an easy job and set out for the West.

Arrived in the country of he-men, he found himself comfortable quarters on a farm and prepared to enjoy the simple life.

Percival's first task was given him a day or two later. He was assigned to one end of a cross-saw, the other end being in charge of an old and experienced lumberman.

At the end of an hour the veteran stopped sawing and looked at his exhausted partner.

“Sonny,” he said, “I don't mind your riding on this saw, but if it's just the same to you, I wish you'd quit scrapin' your feet along the ground.”

Safety First

BOBBIE had been a bad boy and consequently his despairing mother had reported things to his father.

The father was very stern when he interviewed Robert.

“Oh, don't whip me,” wailed the small boy. “Please don't whip me, father.”

“But, Bobbie dear,” the father said, as he took up a leather slipper, “remember the words of that very wise man, King Solomon: 'Spare the rod and spoil the child.'”

“Boo-hoo!” wept the small boy. “I notice that Solomon didn't say those words until he was grown up!”

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THEY were having a tea party and it seems like a little gossip got started around somehow. There was this story and that story, and pretty soon Mrs. Gos says to Mrs. Sip, “My dear, I've got a story that you'll absolutely love! It's true, too, and nobody knows about it yet!”

Now, it's a matter of pride at some tea parties to not admit that you're hearing the scandal for the first time. You must always let on that it's been the talk of your set for days and days. So Mrs. Sip didn't look very pleased when Mrs. Gos said she was going to spring a new one on her.

“It's about that tall Mr. Sloakes with the black mustache, and my dear, the way's he's been carrying on while his family has been in the mountains ain't even funny!” says Mrs. Gos. Then she whispered a while, and Mrs. Sip says, “Yes, but really, you know, I've heard that story a lot. In fact, I started it myself.”

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I AM working in the mountains these days.

I am driving ahead on a big job so I spend most of my time locked in a small room, away from all distractions. The room is crammed with the paraphernalia of my work. There are even notes pinned to the walls—wherever I look I see part of my job.

And I like it. There's nothing more exciting than a big chore, if it's after your heart.

But once in a while it gets me. Suddenly I'll grow edgey, irritable, sick of the pestering details, the personal atmosphere. Then I'll be overcome by self-pity, resentment and rebellion. I'll think how jolly it would be to be free—how hard-worked I am—how everyone picks on me—etc, etc.

Formerly, when this mood came upon me, it would have me down for days. Now I've learned a way to cure it.

I go out from the little room in which I work. I go out beyond the familiar fences and yards and houses which have all become identified with my work and my discontent—

Out until suddenly, at a turn in the trail, the earth seems to drop away, and I stand, suspended, above a void.

Half a mile below the river winds through a tremendous gorge. Above—the endless sky. Midway—the tumbled range.

To the east, to the south, to the west, to the north the mountains heave, sun drenched, star cooled.

Turquoise and emerald they are, cobalt, aquamarine, and with the passing of the day the violet shadows flood their gullies like spilled wine.

Far up, so far they are but drifting, circling specks, the eagles watch at noon.

Far off, so far they are but ghostly, circling sounds, coyotes call at night.

I look—and look—and let my spirit go.

Till gradually I lose my pestering sense of self and am as one with that vast, timeless void—

One with the sweep of river and the swoop of wing—the patient ranges and the evening star.

And for a moment glimpse infinity! And then go back to work with eyes that, for a little, see beyond my walls.

TELESCOPES

By Garrett P. Serviss

“With reference to a telescope may I ask you the difference between an object-glass 3 inches in diameter, price around $50, and an ordinary lens 1.5 inches in diameter, price $3 or $4, of equal focal length? Also between the same object-glass and a lens 3 inches in diameter? Could you advise me as to two favorable focal lengths of two lenses for a telescope—would 40 inches and 2 inches, or 40 inches and 1 inch, be good, or 40 inches and 5 inches better?—N. E. C., Chicago?”

I TAKE it that you have conceived the excellent wish to make some astronomical observations for yourself with a telescope of your own construction. Even if your curiosity at first draws you only to look farther off in our own little world, it will soon catch upon the stars and the sun and moon—and then you will know a little how Galileo felt.

But I must honestly tell you that with “ordinary lenses” you cannot expect to achieve much. By using them instead of well-made object-glasses and eye-pieces, you would be casting aside all the advantages which experience and scientific investigation have given to the art of telescope making during the last 200 years.

The difference between an object-glass and an ordinary lense is that the first consists of two lenses, each of a different kind of glass, and ground to different curves, united together in such a way that the light rays passing through the combination are brought to a sharp focus, without confusion of the various colors of which white light is composed. An ordinary lens cannot do this. It makes an image more or less blurred and discolored. To use only ordinary lenses, then, would be to throw away the first and greatest improvement ever made in the construction of telescopes.

Between a 3-inch glass and a 1.5-inch, whatever other differences might exist, there would be a vast difference in the amount of light collected in the image. That varies as the square of the diameter of the glass. Since in this case one has twice the diameter of the other, it would collect four times as much light.

As to the lengths of focus for two lenses to be used together, I assume that you mean the greater length for the object lens and the shorter one for the eye-piece or magnifying lens. The proportion of 40 to 1 would give a magnifying power of 40 diameters, since the power depends upon the ratio between the focal length of the eye lens and that of the object lens. The proportion 40 to 2 would give 20 diameters magnification, and the proportion 40 to 5 would give 8 diameters. With the higher ratio, if you used ordinary lenses, the images would probably be too much blurred.

I would not discourage you from trying the experiment, if you have the requisite skill and time. You would be repeating what the first telescope makers did some three centuries ago, and that in itself would be an interesting intellectual undertaking. You could learn a great deal from it, that you might not learn so clearly and thoroughly in any other way.

Nevertheless it seems a pity, since the increase of cost would hardly seem prohibitive, to ignore the great superiority of lenses shaped and combined in accordance with the discoveries of optical science. I should advise you to begin by studying a book on telescope making. You will find a number on the market. Two that I can recommend are Louis Bell's “The Telescope” and Charles Edward Barns' “1001 Celestial Wonders, Seen With Homebuilt Instruments.”

Go ahead, anyhow! To make any kind of a telescope that will work is a performance far above the average level of human doings.

Bible Passages

The Resurrection

(1 Corinthuans 15; 1-22)

MOREOVER, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand:

By which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain.

For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures:

And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve:

After that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep.

After that he was seen of James; then of all the apostles.

And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time.

For I am the least of the apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.

But by the grace of God I am what I am: and His grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I but the grace of God which was with me.

Therefore whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed.

Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen:

And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain.

Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not.

For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised:

And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins.

Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished.

If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.

But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

There Is an Island

THERE is an island that I love
With blue sea circling round;
And many times my fancies rove
To that enchanted ground.
For there I never knew a grief
Nor ever felt a fear;
The glad days sped, too sweet, too brief
For any sigh or tear.

To me it seems when I sailed out
To that far, sun-drenched spot,
I left behind each futile doubt,
And every care forgot.
The winds were fresher on that isle,
The arch of heaven more vast.

The thought of it comes like a smile from out the vanished past.
Oh, well-loved island far away,
Untouched by any stain,
To sunlit sands and lifted spray
When shall I go again?

Some Kidnaped Children

By Herbert Kaufman

IT'S a wise invention that knows its own father.

Many of 'em are the kidnaped children of forgotten brains—and more were abandoned foundlings, deserted by one century, to be adopted, nursed and matured by others.

Thus every age wears a few borrowed feathers in its cap.

Record-snoopers periodically reveal the obscured paternity of plans as well as plots.

Several of our favorite amazements date back to dusty archives, in which they lay, slowly incubating until the favorable moment and environment to break shell.

Gui Patin, who himself hasn't been credited with half what he did for medicine (and, incidentally, a diarist still without his literary dues), in a letter dated 1645, tells how a young Englishman knocked his kuckles bare in Paris, in the effort to promote “the construction of carriages without horses.” Elizabeth Ford's family tree as you may perceive, seems quite deeply rooted.

And, although the British Royal Society insists that one of its members, Denis Pappin, reported in 1687 his discovery of a pump, embodying the essential principles “upon which all subsequent extensions of the use of steam are based,” contrary evidence confers that distinction upon a certain Salomon de Caus, who aroused considerable merriment in the neighborhood of 1500, by proposing to build “vapor-driven engines.”

Friend Pappin, however, does seem entitled to head the class in automotive navigation by undertaking to demonstrate “a boat with oars impelled by heat.”

Legend says that Hero designed a fuel-burning yacht, but legend has proven such an inverterate liar, that the tale is doubtless wagging on the wrong dog.

Yet authenticity speaks when the American Philosophical Society informs us of projected submarines in 1798. At a meeting in that year, Thomas Jefferson presiding, Bushnell of Stamford, Connecticut, submitted descriptions of a vessel to attack enemies under water.

But it required a hundred years of continuous tinkering with the possibility, before John P. Holland's little craft slid from the ways of imagination, to join the battle fleets.

Edison's poured concrete method was long before anticipated at Suez, where monster blocks of artificial stone, “made of sand and plaster,” were cast in wooden molds to line the canal.

And the transfusion of blood, belatedly employed in a variety of ailments, was not only contemplated but extensively practiced a hundred years ago by European specialists seeking a cure for insanity.

Experiment's best hunting grounds are litter heaps and waste piles. Millions of lives and billions of wealth still await recovery among yesterday's throwaways. Dig into some of them.

You might find something—like the photophone, for instance, through which light was transmuted into sound by use of selenium refractors. And that, mind you, just after the Philadelphia Centennial.

A contemporaneous observer, intrigued by this astounding contraption, felt assured “of its being used eventually to convey information by means of a beam of light”—now a fait accompli at Schenectady, one of whose wizards has evolved a singing lamp, which alternately furnishes illumination and radio entertainment.

Television at least bears no bar sinister on its shield.

Nobody dared even think of such witchcraft until Franklin's kite-key brought down a broom to sweep stake and faggot from the paths of progress.

Folks were burned for displaying far less enterprise in his youth.

Which maybe explains why previous genius wore a muffler on its crows, and left us to develop conceptions it feared to follow through.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 25.—Many of the finest characters in a small town are those who seem to have been ennobled by chronic poverty. Yet in New York humanity is often soured by the same penury. The attitude becomes sneering. They mount the soap box and snarl.

I have no particular reverence for wealth, but the most considerate and agreeable people in the metropolis are frequently the very rich. They should, of course, be more tolerant and understanding. And there is nothing at all thrilling in being with the underdogs.

Yet there is something admirably sporting in making the best of it. Oddly enough in the metropolis the grouchiest folk are often those who depend largely for their livelihood upon the gratuities bestowed by the public they serve.

I refer especially to incivilities of waiters, hat checkers, taxicab drivers and even policemen. Not once was I ever snubbed by a high salaried executive to whom I meant nothing, but innumerable times have I received discourtesy from those to whom I meant at least a tip.

As an assignment, reporter in earlier days here my door bell pull at fine mansions or my card in elaborate executive offices were never slighted, but in more humble surroundings I have had doors slammed in my face when on the most inoffensive errands. (Voice: Perhaps stealing a picture!)

I have been rudely pushed off the curb on the Bowery, but never on Park avenue. The glitter of wealth in New York seems to make class consciousness more pronounced. One of the outstanding charms of the smaller city is in its lack of obesiance to riches.

In the metropolis one is always conscious of the shabby sleeve. In the one-ring town it means nothing whatever and may be worn by the leading banker as well as the lowliest occupant of a tin can shanty on the city dump.

A leading catch-and-leap dancer indulges such violent gymnastics in her nightly didoes she is carried to her waiting car in a state of complete exhaustion. A neat press yarn, but the sort that inspires only an editorial yawn.

Many Broadway stage and cabaret clowns have press agents who try to exploit a deep meaning to their art. Behind the mime's laugh is the broken heart and all that piffle. Any number give a pop-eyed hilarity to a robust evening, but their “meaning” has no more significance than a slapstick wham on the sit spot. They are a little above the average hams doing their stuff and what an extraordinarily lucky break they receive so much money for it!

Capital is being raised for a new experiment in the theater—a structure fashioned after the plans of the Viennese opera houses and which will present only operettas of American composers. Otto Kahn, it is rumored, will pay the bill. One of these days they should put a new opera house or theater on some one else's check for a change.

Fashionable johnnies popping over from London the past few weeks feature pantaloons with a single and extraordinarly deep pleat. And the hat brim dipped way down in the back—like Mayor Walker off for Palm Beach—is also good cricket.

The passing of society's movie theater—the Plaza—in the Fashionable Fifties was an illustration of how tickling the ego of the rich paid. It was always crowded. The manager, with a tongue in his cheek, presented curse-you-Roger Hemingway films so buck-tooth debutantes and their translucent eared boy friends could razz the players. This ballooned their feeling of snootiness and maintained a steady line at the box office.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

PERHAPS you have an idea by which some friend or acquaintance could make some money.

You do not do the work as well as he, and you know it.

But for selfish reasons you check your desire to give him a tip.

What lies back of your unwillingness to help him?

Is it that you think you might at some future time make use of the idea, although you are pretty well convinced that you would never use it?

Would it not be a fine thing for you to suggest to him the thought that has come to you?

Would it not give you satisfaction to know that you had helped him to earn money he had not expected to earn?

There are many men who are generous enough to give valuable suggestions when and where they can.

They get a lot of pleasure out of it, too.

You might have the same sort of pleasure if you followed your good impulses, and passed on to another something by which gain would be made.

Why let a mean streak smother the promptings of a better nature?

Why not get more out of life by helping the other fellow when you are able to do so?
